A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$27,800—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public. Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

We Are Developing

A REAL BONANZA

Idaho-Bride Shares The One Best Buy To-day

If any of the readers of this notice are wanting to make a substantial mining investment, we believe they will have but very few chances to make one such as is now being offered by our Company.

With our own mill adapted to handling our ores, there will undoubtedly be a wide margin for profit, such as is seldom brought to the notice of the investor. Evidently in store for us in these mines. WE ARE DEVELOPING VAST ORE RESERVES. BONANZA ORE 1,000 FEET ABOVE US, AND PICTURE ORE AT A DEPTH OF ABOUT 2,000 FEET BELOW THE SURFACE. THAT IS PROVING THE GROUND SOME, IS IT NOT? WHERE CAN YOU BEAT IT? EVERYBODY TALKING ABOUT OUR RECENT BIG STRIKES!

Now, Mr. Investor, WE WANT QUICK ACTION, and if you want goods that can be delivered to you, buy them now.

There is Nothing Shoddy About This Investment

We have the courage of our own convictions, and when we tell you that IDAHO-BRIDE SHARES is one of the best buys on the market to-day, we mean it. We are not offering to sell out treasury stock just for the sake of selling it. We have very good reasons for doing so. We can use your capital to very good advantage RIGHT NOW at both mine and mill; otherwise, this notice would never appear. It's quick results we are wanting, and if youwant to share in our good fortune, you're welcome, and your co-operation will be appreciated.

WE SHALL NOT SOLICIT THE PUBLIC MUCH LONGER. THIS IS ABOUT THE LAST OFFER YOU WILL EVER GET FROM US. THIS STOCK IS CHEAP AT $5.00 PER SHARE; but we are offering it for much less. You can't go out on the market and buy it, as our stockholders are holding tight. There's where they are showing good, common sense. They are expecting big dividends and we don't think they will be disappointed. Our mines are too good for that. If you want in with us

Better Make Your Application at Once

A word to the wise is usually sufficient and what we are telling you is for your own good. If you don't get these shares, some other lucky individual will. NUF CED. So get them while the getting is good.

A QUEENLY GIFT

Fund Raised by the "Marys" of the Empire Put to Splendid Use

There has been opened at Whitestable, England, a Holiday Home for Girls, bought with the money subscribed by the Marys of the Empire as a Coronation gift to the Queen.

"I wish it to be a home not an institution," said Her Majesty, when she outlined her scheme to those who helped in the perfecting of this splendid plan for the holiday happiness of working girls.

Barn House very appropriately faces on Joy Lane. It is a fifteenth century half-timbered building which breathes the atmosphere of home from the farthest hedge of its quaint sun-dialed, seaward garden to the innermost inglenook of its charming and historic interior. Every window invites one to its cosy seat, every chair is deep and restful, every bedroom enticingly fresh and pretty.

Mrs. Sydney Lee was responsible for the interior decorations, but the Queen herself took a very intimate interest in every particular. She chose the cretonne, and when one dollar came after the Coronation from a Mary on this side of the water she ordered the purchase of vases with it, and these very vases are now in the dining-room as an interesting evidence of Her Majesty's keen devotion to every detail connected with the project.

Fourteen girls will be received in the home at one time. These will be for two weeks each Queen Mary's guests.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Customs Building, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received until 4.00 P. M., on Monday, March 31, 1913, for the construction of a Customs Building on Mackenzie Avenue, Ottawa, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of R. L. Deschamps Esq., 103 St. Francois Xavier Street, Montreal and of Thos. Hastings, Esq. Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F," Yonge street, Toronto, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars (75,000), which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

PITCHER'S RECORDS OF PAST YEARS

Old-time Twirlers Bettered Marquard's Achievement But Got Little Credit For It at Time

The Baseball Hall of Fame, which has been enriched by the engaging physog of Rube Marquard, on the strength of his long run of straight victories has set the old-time fans searching the records, with the result that one is convinced that the good old time held celebrities equally great—only they have been forgotten.

A few pitchers have made fame for themselves by getting into a consecutive streak that didn't amount to very much before, or after their achievement. For instance, "Jack" Luby in 1891 fell into a winner's groove and before he recovered some 17 games were won in succession. Luby is credited by some historians with getting away with 20 straights, but no records can be found, that are correct to substantiate this claim. A careful analysis of his work shows that he wasn't entirely responsible for this wonderful record. The Chicago team was going well at that time and Luby was the one to be carried on to fame by being the selection for box duty on the team's lucky and winning days. "Bill" Hutchinson, then the most famous of twirlers, was the mainstay of Anson's team at that time, but Dame Fortune passed him up for Luby.

A world's record in any league, for consecutive wins, was made by Thomas Lovett, a really great pitcher, during the season of 1887. Lovett was then pitching for Bridgeport. Starting on the spring training trip he won 24 straight games, every one nine innings or over. The exhibition games were against stronger and heavier calibered teams than the clubs in his own circuit.

In the major leagues, Timothy J. Keefe holds the world's record, right in the height of the season of 1888. Timothy J. made his remarkable run of 19 consecutive victories with just one flaw, and at that time it was criticized by some writers. He was relieved by Pitcher George in the fifth innings in order to save him for a game the following day. The game was won, however, and to-day it would be considered all right.

James McCormick, the great hurler, who flourished in the big leagues during the early 80's, is credited by some historians of the game with winning 24 straight games, but his records fail to show any such work. His best is 15 consecutive victories made while with Cincinnati in 1884. During 1886-87 McCormack had winning streaks of 12 to 14 games, respectively.

Radbourne's record of 18 straight victories made on 18 successive days is perhaps the greatest feat ever performed by any pitcher for all time.

Ed. Cushman, a left hander of fame during the early days, came the nearest to winning every game pitched in, just missing a complete run of victories by losing one game by a score of 2-1 in ten innings. Had he landed that game, Cushman would have had a record never equalled. He started out by winning 13 victories, then lost that close one and finished by getting 13 more consecutive victories, making 26 won and one lost, a percentage of .963, the highest of all time in organized ball. Cushman made the record while pitching for Milwaukee, then in the Northwest League, and the Union Association in 1884.

"Micky" Welch, of the New York Giants in 1884, had a record of winning 18 straight victories. A twirler making that run to-day would have the baseball world crazy. Welch's record is almost forgotten to-day and at that time created very little comment.

The New York Giants have had on their list more twirlers that go into the big win column than any other team in the land. Keefe, Welch, Ruste, Meekin, Mathewson, McGinnity, and Marquard all having the double number victories to their credit, while members of this organization. No pitchers of recent years in the big league have approached the records left by the old timers. Ed. Rutherh, Chesbro and Mathewson have come the nearest to it.

George Mullin in 1907 had a run of 11 straight victories, every game going the full route. Mullin's work received more newspaper notice, ten times more, than did Keefe's or Radbourne's great work.

A FAMOUS CRICKETER

Tom Richardson's Sad End in South France

The late Tom Richardson, the famous fast bowler had for some years past dropped out of first-class cricket, but he will be remembered as the greatest fast bowler of his day. From 1892 till 1904 he took 2,000 wickets in first-class cricket, at a cost of a little over 18 runs per wicket, an extraordinary average for a very fast bowler on modern prepared wickets, andan enormous amount o. work for one man to achieve in so comparatively short a career.

He was a tireless worker, of immense stamina and powerful physique, and an imposing figure on the field. In 1895 he captured fifteen Essex wickets in one match, and, bowling unchanged, through both inings of the Surrey v. Gloucestershire match in 1894, he took nine wickets for 99, and in 1895, again bowling unchanged in the match, he dismissed eleven Derbyshire batsmen for 60.

During his greatest seasons the following was Tom Richardson's record:

	Runs	Wkts.	Aver.
1897	3,945	273	14.45
1895	4,370	290	14.37
1896	4,015	248	16.32

In the test match at Manchester in 1896 Richardson took thirteen wickets for 244 runs.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the head of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

"So your conclusion as to the authorship is—?" I queried.

"Chinese, undoubtedly," he answered. "These were written, I should say, by a Chinaman, educated, probably, in this country. His English is the English of the educated Oriental, but the quotations from Confucius and his commentators are characteristic. With the average Chinaman, to know Confucius is to know all; what he said is all-sufficient; what he did not say is not worth saying. Another identifying feature is the effort to make afraid. Their religion is fear."

Having concluded his exposition, Professor Griffin was disposed to enter upon a more or less lengthy discourse on Chinese character and literature in general. However illuminative this might have been under ordinary conditions, I was assuredly in no mood to listen to it at this time. The information he had given me, while it merely verified suspicions which I had held from the first, set me to speculating on the individual source of the letters; and with so modern an instance at hand I was naturally disinclined to consider the authorship of writings dating back often a thousand years and more beyond the Christian era.

With what grace I could, therefore, I discouraged a continuance of the theme, and having thanked him most heartily, pocketed the notes with which he was good enough to furnish me, and prepared to depart. But as I stood at his study door, his lean, scholarly hand resting in mine, he detained me for a final word.

"The symbol!" he exclaimed, his pale eyes lighting at the recollection. "We forget the symbol!"

"Oh, yes," I returned, my interest revived, "that silhouette at the bottom."

"It is unmistakably Chinese," he said. "I am not very familiar with the symbolism of the East, not as familiar as I should be, possibly; but Chinese writing, you know, in its origin, is picture writing with the addition of a limited number of symbolical and conventional designs. This figure, I should say, represents a lorcha, or small Chinese coasting junk, and you can rest assured that the threats contained in the letters were with a view to reparation for some crime or injury connected in some way with such a vessel. That is as near as I can interpret it. But if you would like to know more—if you would like to get something more nearly definite—I can refer you to one who can, I think, give you the information."

"By all means," I implored, "I shall appreciate it greatly."

"An authority on this subject is living not very far from here. He spent many years in China, is something of an artist himself, and made, I understand, a study of Oriental symbolism. He lives at Cos Cob, and his name is—"

"Murphy!" I interrupted, as a flood of illumination swept over me.

"Philetus Murphy. Yes. Do you know him?"

"I have met him," I returned shortly.

And thanking the professor once more, I hurried away, with a course of action already shaping in my mind.

CHAPTER XI.

The Chinese Merchant.

It was while Professor Griffin was talking of Chinese characteristics that the thought of little Mow Chee first occurred to me. The professor said something about the average Chinaman's disinclination to speak of death, directly, and how he invariably employed some euphemism. The phrase "pass from sight of men into torment" the professor pointed out as an illustration. And then I remembered little Mow Chee, who was in my class at Yale, and how, once, in speaking of the demise of a fellow classman, he had used the odd expression, "he has saluted old age," which I afterwards learned was quite a common form in China.

It was now a year or more since I had seen Mow Chee, but I recalled that at our last meeting I had made a note of his address; and so on reaching my desk the next morning I looked it up. Curiously enough a private detective agency which I had arranged to consult chanced to have its office in the same building on Lower Broadway as the Pacific Transport company, by which Mow Chee was employed; and thus the plan which had been shaping mentally the previous afternoon, as I hurried away from Professor Griffin's, was readily set in motion before noon of the day following.

In the evening I had discussed it with Evelyn; and though the detective feature did not at first meet with her approval, she eventually conceded that it was a necessary part of the project. It was agreed, however, that the real purpose for which that aid was invoked should not be divulged. Philetus Murphy was to be shadowed and daily reports were to be made to me. That he had been under suspicion of brutally murdering his Chinese servant was sufficient reason for the proceeding, and to the detective agency I gave no hint of any further consideration.

As for my Celestial classmate, I was not by any means sure that I should find him at the Pacific Transport offices. I knew that for some time China had been calling upon her sons of western education to return to their mother country for service, and I feared that little Mow Chee might already be customs taokai of Shantung, or some other imperial province. But my misgivings were very promptly allayed; for no sooner had I stepped within the outer office than he saw me, and came hastily forward, with a smile of greeting on his square, flattened, yellow face.

His desk was just back of the long counter which ran the length of the room, and a glance at its piled contents showed me that he was very busy. Moreover, there was no opportunity here for the privacy which I desired; so after an exchange of greetings, and a few conventional inquiries, I invited Mow to lunch with me at the Savarin, at whatever hour would best suit his convenience.

Somewhat to my dismay, he fixed upon one o'clock. As it still wanted ten minutes of noon I now had over an hour of leisure, which, as may be imagined, promised to hang rather heavy, the more so, as I was impatient to make some real progress in my quest.

Wall street being at hand, I concluded to call on a friend there who usually handles my investments, and make a convenience of his office. On the way, I bought an afternoon paper, and as my broker happened to be at the Stock Exchange, I had ample opportunity to read it from first column to last. It proved about as thrillingly interesting as the early afternoon reprints of what one has already read at breakfast usually are, and I was about to drop it to the floor, when my eye caught a group of headlines on the last page, which, up to that moment, had escaped me, but which now suddenly riveted my attention:

CELESTIAL CLAIMS MYSTERIOUS BOX ON FALL RIVER PIER.

Anything concerning Celestials, I suppose, would have attracted me, just then, but the burden of this was so peculiarly pertinent, that it seemed as if it must have intimate connection with the tangle I had undertaken to unravel.

With the paper gripped tightly in both hands, and my head bent intently forward, I raced through the frivolously-written article which followed; and from a superabundance of cheap wit and East side slang managed to extract the somewhat meager facts. A truck, driven by a Chinaman, it seemed, had that morning taken from the pier of the Fall River Line a square box, measuring about five feet each way, and perforated with a number of auger holes. The brilliant space-writer had given his imagination free rein as to the contents, speculating as to the possibilities, from edible Chinese dogs to smuggled opium, but he had omitted to furnish the name and address of either the consignor or consignee. "The truck, drawn by the slant-eyed white horse and driven by the phlegmatic Chink, clattered away in the direction of Mott street," the account concluded.

After all, it was a very commonplace, everyday occurrence. Probably the auger holes were only knot holes, transformed by the reporter's imagination. Nevertheless, I thrust the paper into my pocket. Mow Chee might throw some light on the matter. He would know, in all likelihood, what sort of goods were shipped by way of the Fall River Line to his countrymen in New York.

We secured a corner table in the inner room at the Savarin. It was not so crowded there and it was less bustling and noisy. My companion attracted some little attention, of course, but not sufficient to prove annoying. New York, as a rule, pays small heed simply to the unusual, and Chinamen are common enough not to be absolute curiosities even in the big downtown restaurants.

A very dapper little fellow was Mr. Mow; neatly and inconspicuously clad, and well brushed and combed. He was for recalling old college days, when he was coxswain of the class crew and I pulled the stroke oar, but my time was too precious for such reminiscence, and as speedily as possible I broached the subject I had at heart.

"Now," I began, perhaps less delicately than I should, "there's a saying, you know, that the only good Indian is a dead Indian. That wouldn't apply to the Chinese, would it? And yet, while there are some very excellent Chinamen, there are some pretty bad ones, aren't there?"

He grinned, exposing his fine teeth.

"Oh, yes," he answered, "there are good and bad, but the percentage of bad is less in my country than in some others." I caught the significance of his remark, and realized that I deserved the rebuke.

"And amongst the educated Chinese, here in New York?" I went on, without stopping for comment. "There are a few bad?"

He was still smiling.

"Bad?" he queried. "What do you mean by bad? There are some who have vices, yes. Some gamble, some smoke opium; some get the best of a bargain."

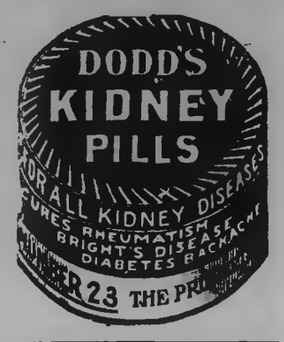
"Are there some who would kill?" I asked, bluntly.

"Oh, no, no!" he protested, without raising his voice. "I certainly should hope there are none such among the educated."

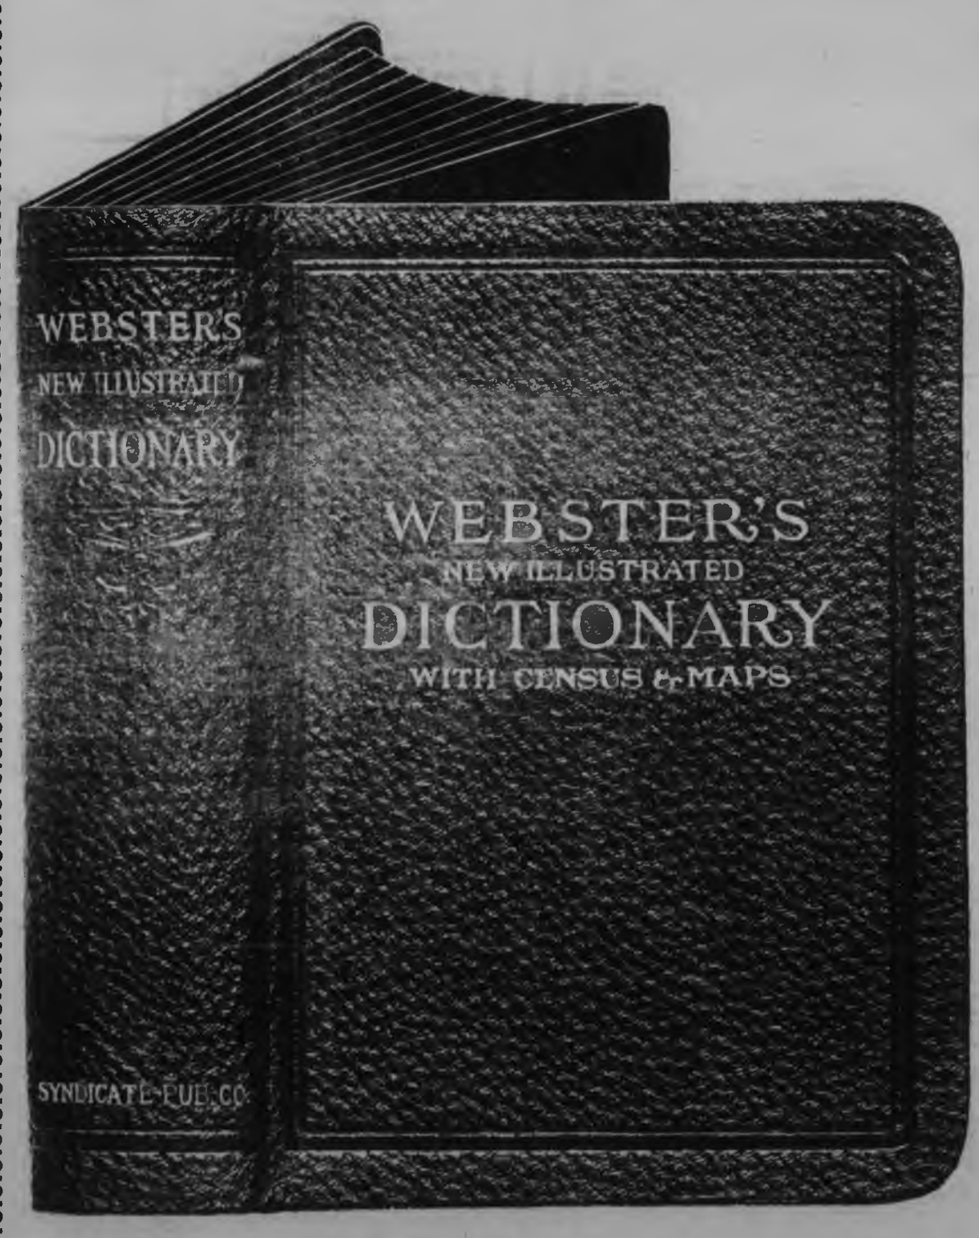
And then I told him about the three letters, and what had happened, omitting only Cameron's name and place of residence and the disturbable little chap that he was. He listened without emotion. When I concluded he said:

"You are sure they were Chinamen who did this?"

"Would men of any other nationality quote Confucius and Mencius?" I asked.



"No, I think not," was his reply, "and yet it might be done by crafty persons to mislead."



But I could not agree with him.

"We are not revengeful as a nation," he said, "we are rather long-suffering. If Chinamen did what you tell me, it was in return for some very great injury; some crime, I should say, against their parents or near kinsmen."

"But my friend was never in China," I declared. "And he was the last man in the world to harm anyone."

Nothing so Sure to "Set Up" a Man Make Him Feel Brisk and Vigorous, as Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Lack of exercise and overwork were the causes that combined to almost kill Samuel S. Stephens, Jr., one of the best known citizens of Wood stock.

In his convincing letter, Mr. Stephens says:

"A year ago I returned home after a long trip, completely worn out, was so badly affected by chronic biliousness, so much overcome by constant headaches, dizziness, that I despaired of ever getting well.

"It was a blessing that I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. In one week I felt like a new man. The feeling of weight and nausea in my stomach disappeared. My eyes looked brighter, color grew better, and, best of all, I began to enjoy my meals. The dizziness, langour and feeling of depression passed away, and I fast regained my old-time vigor and spirits. To-day I am well—thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

For health, strength, comfort and good spirits, there is no medicine like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, five boxes for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Interesting Address at St. James.

At a meeting of St. James' Epworth League, Mr. Ivor Brock, of Toronto, favored the large audience present with a charming address on child life in a great city, London, the modern Babylon being the scene of his remarks. Many beautiful slides were thrown on the screen. Among the audience were many of the sons and daughters of old London, and many home scenes were recognized.

Dan McCabe Leaving.

Local baseball fans and many personal friends will regret to learn that Mr. Dan McCabe, the one-armed former local ball twirler, is soon to leave for Edmonton where he has accepted a position of trust. Dan has many friends in the city who will miss his genial face on the ball grounds as well as behind the tobacco counter.

May Bell Marks Co.

The Village Schoolmarm, a four-act rural drama, depicting country life, was the magnet that drew a large audience to the Grand Opera House last night. May Bell Marks, as the Schoolmarm scored well, and was warmly encored. The support was good and the pandeville well received. East Lynne is the play for the matinee to-day and to-night; that stirring English drama, Woman Against Woman.

* GAINS NEW COMPLEXION *
* BY PEELING HER SKIN *

(Julia Orff in The Queen.)

"Keep still, sad heart, and cease repiging, behind the clouds is the sun still shining." I was forcibly reminded of these lines when, after months of fretting over my ugly complexion, I found how easy it was to remove the cloudy, muddy skin and bring forth a bright, new complexion. I got an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at my druggist's and used this like cold cream every night for two weeks, washing it off mornings. Lo and behold! That old skin had all peeled off! The healthy young skin underneath gave me a complexion as pure, white and soft as any young girl's. I experienced no discomfort, the skin came il so gradually and gently. Several friends having been similarly benefited, I'm sure anyone whose skin is soiled, withered, blotchy, pimply or freckled, can acquire the loveliest complexion imaginable by using this remarkable treatment.

Another treatment that brought more sunshine was one to remove wrinkles. A face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel, soon chased away every line. It's wonderful.

A Sad Case.

Last night the local police had a hand in possibly ending a domestic drama. A woman who has evidently got the alcohol craze, and who is married to a mechanic, was found drunk and incapable on Aylmer street. In fact, a rig had to be requisitioned to bring her to the station. It seems that the woman, in question, has had the alcohol bug buzzing so loudly under her "rats" and "bangs" that her husband recently left her. She will probably face the magisterial music this morning.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Cora S.: As your hair is short and thin and you have so much trouble to make it stay up and look neat try shampooing it with a teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water. This shampoo is the one generally used by the best hairdressers to make the hair look thicker and lustrous. It produces an abundant lather, dries quickly and not only cleans the hair and scalp well, but stops all irritation and gives the scalp a feeling of pleasing freshness. Canthrox makes a delightful shampoo and will have little trouble then to make your hair look nice. Never use soap for shampooing, as it makes the hair brittle, harsh and takes away the glossy look. (a) To get rid of dandruff and stop falling hair, see reply to "Grutrude J."

Meta D.: A delatone paste will remove the fuzz from your lip without danger or inconvenience. Just mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairy surface, apply and after two or three minutes rub off, then wash the skin carefully. One application of delatone usually suffices excepting where the growth is quite thick and stubborn.

Mrs. L.: What a shame to have wasted so much money in vainly trying to get rid of your fat. I have a formula that some of my close friends have tried with marvelous success. Here it is: Dissolve four ounces of parnotis in 14 pints hot water; when cold strain and take a tablespoonful of the liquid before each meal. This remedy will not injure your health or force you to starve yourself in order to get back your comely figure. It cuts down fat rapidly, is not expensive, and will surely help you.

R. C. V.: Remember this: "A beautiful face never lacks interest." It is to your credit that you wish to remain young looking as long as possible. Although marks of age—enlarged pores, rough skin and premature wrinkles—have begun to show in your once beautiful face, you can easily get rid of them and regain your charming complexion by using this greaseless cream-jelly. Get an ounce of almozoin from any drug store; put it in a half-pint cold water, adding two teaspoonfuls glycerine; stir and let stand a few hours. Apply this cream-jelly and you will find it will remove all dirt and excess oil from the pores, make the large pores smaller and leave your skin soft, smooth and fresh looking. I find this excellent for preventing and removing blackheads, skin-pimples, freckles and chapping. When used as a massage cream it is just grand for filling out hollow cheeks and removing wrinkles.

Mosslee: You say your complexion is lifeless and you are constantly tired and drowsy. This comes from too little exercise and an over-indulgence in heavy foods, causing a sluggish condition of the blood and a lack of proper nourishment for the body. Here is a simple and inexpensive recipe for an excellent blood-tonic and body-builder. Buy at any drug store an ounce of kardene and put in a half-pint alcohol (not whiskey) then add a half cupful sugar and hot water to make a full quart. Take a teaspoonful before each meal. This tonic expels impurities and enriches the blood. It will give you renewed energy and your complexion will assume its natural health tint.

Gertrude J.: The dandruff, itching scalp and brittle, falling hair with split ends of which you complain come from a diseased scalp, due to the presence of germs. The surest way to get rid of these troubles quickly and remove the germs will be to shampoo twice a month with canthrox and rub into your scalp twice a week a quining hair tonic made by dissolving one ounce of quinzoin in half a pint of alcohol (not whiskey) when adding half a pint of cold water. Use this tonic regularly, and it will remove the dandruff and irritation, stop your hair from falling out and make it soft and glossy.

S. D.: Yes—nothing is a more important factor in a beautiful face than bright, clear, youthful eyes. You should use regularly a good eye-tonic. Get an ounce of crystos; dissolve it in a pint of water and use two or three drops in each eye daily. It will clear and strengthen your eyes, remove all signs of weakness and inflammation and make them bright and sparkling. For weak dull, expressionless eyes I think this tonic simply wonderful. It is very soothing and is fine for those who wear glasses.

G.E.A.: When you wear a veil face powder will not help your complexion much, as it rubs off too quickly. What you need is a good lotion that will not show on the skin. The next time you go to the drug store get four ounces of spurmax and dissolve it in one-half pint of hot water or witch hazel, adding two teaspoonfuls of glycerine. This lotion will clear up and whiten skin, make it soft and velvety, and give you a beautiful complexion. It will rid your skin of the shiny, greasy, sallow look and make it appear charming and youthful. I find this excellent for cold sores, freckles and pimples. It costs very little and will protect your face from the winds, and prove a splendid beautifier.

St. Peter's Literary Society.

The At-Home held under the auspices of St. Peter's Literary Society at St. Alphonsus Lyceum, at which progressive euchre, was a main feature, was a great success. The ladies' prize was won by Mrs. J. Bogue, while Mr. F. Knapp won the gentleman's prize. A dainty supper was then served, followed by dancing, which continued until after midnight, the music being supplied by Miss M. Gorman, piano; Mr. F Carney and Prof Kane, violin.

Improvements to Water Way.

Yesterday Mr Fuller of the Engineering branch of the Public Works Toronto, was in the city for a short time. Mr. Fuller leaves for Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls and other points along the canal where it is proposed to build a number of new wharves. Most of these structures will be built at Sturgeon and Pigeon Lakes. This work will be undertaken and completed as soon as navigation opens and supplies can be forwarded for the work.

An Ear-Ring Not a Flea.

A young lady residing on Stewart street, attended a dance the night before last. She wore earrings that don't require a shaft sunk through the lower lobe of the ear, but are held by screw compression. On her return from the hall, on her way to bed she discovered that one of her ear jewels was gone. She searched the hall and different rooms she had passed through en route for her beauty sleep. No results. In the hall, outside her bedroom lay the family dog. The dog is long-haired and has fleas. This canine was industriously combing its fur with a left hind paw when a tinkle was heard. The ear-ring had been dropped on the dog's fur.

All Saints Church S. S.

The Superintendent of All Saints S.S. presented his report for the year ending March 15th, after the treasurer's report had been read. The latter's statement was most satisfactory. There are at present 25 teachers on the staff, who are doing good and faithful work. It was, however, regretted that so few male teachers had volunteered. The library contains 620 volumes. Reference was made to interior decorations and improvements. At the Christmas entertainment several of the scholars were given handsome prizes. Mr. Sisson's Bible Class was commended.

Lindsay Minor Gets Stolen Whiskey.

At Monday's session of the Lindsay police court, a minor was charged with supplying another minor with liquor. The boy who supplied the liquor got it from a stranger in town by the name of Stewart. It seems that Stewart stole a valise from the C.P.R. station. The valise contained a flask of whiskey and some valuable papers. The theft was committed on Tuesday, Stewart giving the boy the flask on Wednesday morning. The owner of the valise recovered his papers. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $10.00 and costs for supplying the liquor.

George Was Stung for $54.

George Miller started to do business in this city on Monday. George is one of those debonaire, "you're from Missouri and I'll show you" chaps who gathers in the futive dollar in its flight. George unfortunately omitted to take out a peddler's license before his new scene of activities was fully staged. George sold muffs and boas and possibly an old grey bonnet with red flowers on it, and possibly, within the flowers, like the song given by one of Marks' Co. comedians, lay a bee, that stung George, not on his wedding day, but the day before yesterday. Anyhow, George was stung for $54 fine and costs for peddling without a license.

Herbert Evans Turns New Leaf.

At yesterday's session of the police court, Herbert Evans, charged with non-support of his wife, assured the Cadi that he would get busy and turn in his wages. Mr. McElderry, of Peck, Kerr and McElderry, put in a strong plea for the accused. Whilst it was not brought out in evidence, a glance at Herbert's eye, led one to believe that he was mentally considering whether ostrich plumes, cock feathers or pink flamingo would suit his wife's complexion best. Herbert, however, to keep faith, has to report monthly to the police and also give up $15 to Mr. Chas. Banks for a bicycle stolen in Hamilton. Go to it, Herbert, and see that Pistachio ice cream is served daily instead of tackling the extract of hop!

* THE REAL SECRET OF *
* REJUVENATING THE FACE *

(From the Clubwoman)

She holds the true secret of facial rejuvenation who has learned how to remove the dead skin particles as fast as they appear. It's a secret anyone may possess. The aged, faded or discolored surface skin may be gradually absorbed, in an entirely safe and rational manner, by the nightly application of ordinary mercolized wax. Within a week or two the underlying skin, youthful and beautiful to behold, has taken the place of the discarded cuticle. So little of the old skin is absorbed each day there's no inconvenience at all, and no one suspects you are putting anything on your face. The mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store, (an ounce is sufficient), is applied like cold cream. In the morning it is erased with soap and water. It's the best thing known for freckles, blackheads, pimples, moth patches, liver spots and fine surface wrinkles.

For the deeper wrinkles an excellent recipe is: Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution produces quick and wonderful results.

Tenders for Market Tolls

Sealed tenders, addressed "Ald. Duncan, Chairman Property Committee," and endorsed "Tender for Market Tolls," will be received by the undersigned up to 4 o'clock p.m., on Saturday, March 29th, 1913, for the market tolls and charges of the city for the year beginning April 1st, 1913, in accordance with the By-laws. Tenders must be accompanied by an accepted bank cheque for $200.00, which will be forfeited if the person to whom the tolls are sold does not enter into a contract and furnish acceptable security, and which will otherwise apply on the first payment of purchase money. The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

CITY IN A PARAGRAPH

A team of horses, a cow, and a waggon load of goods were lost through the Bay of Quinte last Saturday, at Belleville.

It is understood that a move will likely be made to cut off several licenses, or bring on a Local Option Contest in Cobourg.

Last night the specialties of the Marks Company were not only applauded, but repeated encores were insistently demanded by the crowded house.

Mrs. J. D. Craig asks that all returns for the Livingstone banquet tickets be made at the prayer meeting at George street Lecture Hall to-night.

Peterborough will be represented at the fourth International Congress of School Hygiene, to be held in Buffalo from 25th to 30th August, by Dr. A. W. McPherson.

A Lindsay drunk at Port Hope named Franklin Chartran, pleaded guilty and was fined $2 and costs. He told the name of the hotel where he got his booze, so further developments may be expected.

During the windstorm of Friday last, a boy living near Belleville who rode an top of a load of straw, was buried under the straw when the load blew over. He was not seriously injured but it is feared hay fever may set in.

VOL. XL, NO. 72. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY MARCH 27, 1913. PRICE, TWO CENTS

Thousand Drowned in Dayton Alone Five Hundred More in Town of Piqua

Town With Four Thousand Population Reported Swept Away--Governor Estimates Homeless at Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand

Marooned All Night on House Tops Dropped, Worn Out, Into the Flood--Would-be Rescurers Look on Helpless While Persons Drift By

Columbus, March 26.—Governor Cox at 1.30 p.m. has received the following telegram from his secretary, George F. Burba, who went to Dayton.

"Deaths may run as high as 2,000. Property loss $10,000,000. River four miles wide. Cannot get anywhere near the centre of the city. Water up to second story of Philips House. Worst calamity in the country since Galveston."

Columbus, Ohio, March 26.—From Lake Erie to the Ohio River and from the Indiana to the Pennsylvania State lines, Ohio to-day is experiencing the worst flood the State has ever known. With an appalling loss of life at Dayton estimated today to run over 500, almost every city and village in the State follows with a death toll that cannot be totalled until the raging water subside.

Although first reports had put the loss of life at Dayton as high as 5000, refugees arriving in Xenia from the flood-stricken city said that it would be below 1000. The most serious news early to-day was that the town of Miamisburg, with a population of 4000, had been washed away.

Heavy rains continued through most of the State last night and all flood records in most sections of the State have been broken.

Bridges have been washed away, railway and interurban traffic is at a standstill, and in many cities there is grave danger of fire loss due to the shutting down of plants supplying water.

250,000 Homeless.

Governor Cox estimated that more than 250,000 people have been rendered homeless. The State is unable to cope with the situation in its entirety and the Governor has called upon the National Red Cross Society and adjoining States for aid. The immediate need is for tents and food for the homeless. Every militia company has been ordered to report for duty to-day, and the troops will be sent to the points which need them.

Millions Loss to Property.

The property damage cannot at present be calculated but will run far into the millions. This includes actual loss by fire and flood and prospective loss where farming lands have been inundated and in many cases washed away. No immediate relief from the flood-bound conditions is in sight, as rainy weather is promised for the State to-day.

Dropped From Tree Tops.

Harrowing tales are beginning to filter in from various sources of famees who spent the night in a drenching rain in tree tops or on the roofs of their flooded houses. Many of those marooned in tree tops are believed to have been worn out from cold and fatigue and to have dropped from their perilous position to death in the flood below.

SCOTT FAINTED AS PARTNER FACED HIM

Young Regina Man Confronted by Man He is Charged With Attempting to Kill.

Regina, March 26.—The preliminary trial of James D. Scott, charged with the attempted murder of his business partner, H. B. Lewis, was adjourned until next Monday after evidence had been introduced, proving the purchase by Scott in Winnipeg of a quantity of dynamite, which he sent to Regina by express when refused transportation with it by rail.

Lewis testified that when he knew the cause of the subsequent explosion the latter fell in a faint.

Scott is at liberty under $16,000 bail.

CRAWLED OVER HIGH BRIDGE

Hon. Louis Coderre Went Over in Darkness on Hands and Knees

Montreal, March 26.—Crawling on his hands and knees over a wobbling bridge with a drop of 50 feet to a swirling river beneath him, was the experience passed through by Hon. Louis Coderre, Secretary of State, last night while on his way to a banquet at his birthplace at St. Anns.

The train he was travelling on was unable to cross a bridge which had been rendered unsafe by the floods, and passengers, among whom was Mr. Coderre had to walk across it, a hazardous performance at any time, but doubly dangerous last night in the darkness with a strong wind blowing.

PROTESTANT FEDERATION MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the Protestant Federation will be held in the S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street, this evening, 27th instant, at 8 o'clock p.m. Addresses are to be delivered by Rev. W. C. Riddiford and others. Every member is requested to be present.

WAS HON. MR. ROWELL LOADED UP BY FORMER ENGINEER?

Charge Made by Conservative Member Against Mr. N. W. Rowell--Will Not Withdraw

Toronto, Mar. 26.—A sensation developed during the inquiry into the accounts of a Hydro-Electric Commission this morning when Mr. T. W. McGarry (South Renfrew) charged before the Public Accounts Committee that Mr. Rowell was being "loaded up" by Mr. T. W. Sothman, the former chief engineer of the commission.

The liberal leader emphatically denied the allegation, but Mr. McGarry would not withdraw his statement.

Mr. F. A. Gaby, chief engineer of the Commission, was the principal witness called during the morning. Under interrogation by Mr. Rowell, Mr. Gaby explained why certain tenders were rejected. That of McLennan and Keyes for construction of the transmission line was not accepted because certain figures were so low that the Commissioner was convinced the work could not be done satisfactorily at the cost quoted.

Mr. Rowell was particularly curious to know the basis for computation of the total estimate from the unit prices. The engineer stated that the figuring was done on memoranda, which were destroyed as useless after retention for a year or so. He could show approximately, however, how the estimate was reached the position assigned to her and, being of a mischievous disposition decides to have some fun with Bartley for his fickleness in Japan. The ensuing family entanglements afford much amusement. Nancy's designs are not serious, however, and after a few days enjoyment of the situation a real lover comes in the person of Count de Brissac, by Allen Brander presents himself and, with fantastic French energy, proceeds to clarify the situation

It is a highly worthy attraction and commendable throughout.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

"The Girl From Tokio"

A laughable farce comedy, with many amusing situations, and much of the grotesquely humorous, is being presented at the Colonial Theatre this week by an able company, headed by Julia Morton. The piece is "The Girl from Tokio," from the German of Robert Pohl, and is being presented in America for the first time this season, after a long success in Germany.

The story is of an actress, Nancy Noyes, who, playing in a European company in Tokio, meets and has a love affair with Bartley Swift, who is in Japan on business. Edmund Ford, as Bartley has a most amusing role, and he makes the best of it. Bartley and Nancy drift apart, however, and she marries an elderly gentleman, Esmond Miller, travelling for his health, who conveniently dies before the piece opens. Bartley, returning to his hime, meets Blanche, the daughter of Miller, and marries her. Adelaide Matthews, as his wife, is most pleasing. The home of the Swifts' is also the home of Austre Aunt Aurelia, portrayed in becoming fashion by Lee Hobbs Martin; and of Molly Miller, a young sister-in-law, very fascinating in the person of May Holton.

The action centers about the efforts to obtain a governess for the sister-in-law and at the time one is expected to arrive it is also learned that the widow of Esmond Miller is coming to look into the settlement of the estate. When Nancy, the widow, in the person of Miss Morton, arrives she is immediately confused with the governess and learning of the presence of Bartley she accepts

MADOC LADY'S BODY FOUND IN A CREEK

A Madoc despatch says: The many friends of Mr. William F. McBain and family of Madoc, will extend sympathy on the sad occurrence of Saturday last, when Mrs. McBain, who for some time has been in poor health, with frequent despondency, left her home in the morning, and only after an extended search was her body found in the creek on Sunday noon. Mrs McBain's death has cast a gloom over her social circle, as she was highly respected by all who knew her. Besides her husband she leaves three children.

Dr. Harper, coroner, investigated the affair, but after ascertaining the facts, deemed it unnecessary to hold an inquest.

BRANCH OF THE PROTESTANT FEDERATION AT YOUNG'S POINT

A new branch of the Protestant Benevolent Association was formed on Tuesday evening at Young's Point. Rev. Mr. Riddifard, pastor of Park street Baptist church, Mr. H. P. Lindsay, Mr. J. B. McWilliams and Mr. Herbert Leader addressed a large audience in Charlton Hall. These gentlemen fully explained the objects and aims of the Federation. One gentleman present said, next morning, that he would be delighted to attend a similar meeting everyday.

Mr. McWilliams explained the reason for starting the Association in Peterborough. He told how the Protestants and Roman Catholics of Peterborough had got along most friendly for 30 years. He also paid a high tribute to the late Father Lynch and Conway and also to Ven. Archdeacon Casey. When Rev. Father McColl took charge in the city, he attempted to swing the T.A.S. as a unit to elect aldermen and others of his choice. This changed the aspect of affairs. The Association was organized to teach him and others who may try to emulate his example a lesson.

If Roman Catholics are dissatisfied with their treatment the past two years, they can place the responsibility with Father McColl, whose actions offended many Protestants who always thought it a pleasure to do kind acts to Roman Catholics."

A Society of over 50 members to start with will be organized at the Point and affiliated with the Peterborough Society.

TORONTO TEACHERS SEE NEW PRESIDENT--THINK HIM NICE

Canadian Army of Occupation Given Precedence Over American Visitors---Wilson Affable Though Busy Man

Washington, March 26.—Toronto teachers, 400 strong, who arrived at the east gate of the White House on Tuesday afternoon, encountered a host as numerous as they.

The Americans, whose reception immediately followed, gave up their position to the newcomers.

In the Canadian contingent pressed, up the broad basement corridor, past the portraits of mistresses of the White House, on up the broad stairway to the main corridor, and finally into the East Room or state parlor.

Smiling, Stately President.

A wait of a few minutes and then precisely at 2.30 President Wilson, smiling and stately, entered the room. Each member of the party was presented to the President by Major Crosby, the President's personal aide, who graciously greeted each by names, correctly, too.

When Miss Hunter, Domestic Science supervisor, was presented and the fact mentioned that she had met him when he was Governor Wilson, he said: "I am indeed pleased to renew the acquaintance."

Of course, the Torontonians did not go out with downcast eyes, but observed the magnificent apartment with its white and gold decorations, its massive crystal chandeliers, and its $15,000 piano.

JUMP INTO WATER TO ESCAPE FIRE

Militiamen Taking People Off the Roofs in Riverdale—Thousands Starving.

Columbus, March 26.—Russell's apartments on Third street are on fire and people are jumping from the building into the water. Militiamen are taking paople off the house tops on Second street in the exclusive portion of the residential district.

From fifty to seventy-five are reported drowned in Riverdale, a north west suburb. Not a house is left standing on Linwood avenue in Riverdale.

Loss of $15,000,000.

New York, March 26.—Conservative estimates of the damage to railroads property in the flooded middle west, plus the loss entailed by the suspension of traffic, range from $10,000,000, to $15,000,000, and it is conceded that these figures may be exceeded by several millions. This was the opinion of railroad men as expressed here to-day.

GOVERNMENT COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE COST OF LIVING

Suggestion Made to Sir James by Associated Boards of Trade

Toronto, March 26.—The Associated Boards of Trade of Ontario, comprising one of the most important deputations of the year, waited upon Sir James Whitney and Hon. W. J. Hanna this morning to urge a schedule of reforms very broad in character and of vital importance to all parts of the Province. Reforestration, municipal government by commission, the encouragement of the cattle industry, Government railway development in Ontario, the appointment of a Provincial Fire Marshal, good roads, trunk roads and railroads in New Ontario, the establishment of a prison farm in New Ontario and the proposal of remedial measures to check the high cost of living were all included in the list of subjects laid before the Administration by different representatives.

PARTY IN AN ICEBOAT STRANDED IN A JAM

Kingston, Ont., March 27.—A jam of ice near Cedar Island prevented the steamer Pierrepont from getting through to Cape Vincent on her first trip. On the return to the city the Pierrepont picked up Patrick McDermott and party from Wolfe Island who were coming over in an iceboat to Kingston with the mail and who were stranded in an ice-jam. They had been out several hours and were suffering from the cold and could make no progress.

ALLIES WIN ADRIANOPLE THE CITY IS NOW IN FLAMES

Turkish Troops, Though Beaten, Leave Little For Victorious Bulgars--Entire Line of Fortresses to the East Captured

Mustapha, Pasha, March 26.—The fortress of Adrianople was taken by storm by the Bulgarians yesterday morning after fighting of the most terrible character, since Monday. Flames are devastating the city at many points.

After the outlying fortifications had been captured, the Turkish troops set fire to all their depots and stores as well as to the arsenal and the artillery park. They also blew up the barracks and a number of powder magazines. Most of the population fled.

Population Often in Danger.

At an early hour this morning fires were raging in various sections of the beleaguered city. The population whose nerves had been shattered by the almost incessant bombardment for a period of over five months was fleeing about the streets from one point to another not knowing where to find shelter. Some of them rushed along the line of forts during the heavy infantry and artillery fire that was in progress.

The great artillery arsenal in the city was burning and the barracks lying between the hospital and the northern forts were also in flames.

The Bulgarians in strong force gradually advanced their lines encircling the city and by short rushes the infantrymen approached near enough to prepare for the final dash.

On all sides the combined movement of the attackers on the cher-resisting city was continued.

Within Three Hundred Yards.

The Bulgarian infantry had reached within 300 yards of the main forts by five o'clock last evening. They entrenched themselves there while ammunition and provisions were brought up from the rear and preparations were made for the final deadly assault.

MARCIL INVITES ARREST

Says Hon. Mr. Doherty, if in Good Faith, Should Back Him Up.

Montreal, March 26.—The Nationalist element of Montreal have not yet seen the end of their accusations against Hon. L. Coderre. Mr. Tancrede Marcil, who was instrumental in bringing the accusations forward, issued a statement to-day by which he invites Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, to have him (Marcil) arrested as a forger or a black mailer, or to repeat in the open what he (Doherty) said before the House under cover of Parliamentary immunity.

Should the Minister of Justice or any other member of Parliament repeat the accusations of Mr. Doherty, Mr. Marcil says he will prosecute them and give them a chance to prove their sayings, as well as his. He adds that the Minister of Justice should arrest him (Marcil), if in good faith.

FEMALE SUFFRAGE MEASURE BEFORE THE ONTARIO HOUSE

Question Came Suddenly and Caught Mr. McDonald by Surprise--Is Left Over Indefinitely

Toronto, March 26.—With barely a moment's warning the problem of woman suffrage popped into view at the evening session of the Legislature and Mr. William McDonald (Center Bruce), who has been guaring a bill to grant Parliamentary franchise to women municipal voters for several weeks, was suddenly called upon to explain his position.

Mr. McDonald was taken by surprise, and in consequence could not stir up the enthusiasm in the subject he would have wished. The question, he stated, had been brought up as far back as 1888, and had been opposed by Sir Oliver Mowat, by Hon. W. R. Meredith and by Sir James Whitney in Opposition. The last word, however, had come from the Premier last year when he had said that when the time came the "floodgates would be opened and all the sisters be let in."

"I do not think that the ladies should be censured for introducing militant methods in England," he declared. "They pour acid into mail boxes, but the men only get their vote by the same violent means. There is no doubt the ladies are going to get the vote in due season."

NEW SUFFRAGE BILLS DRAWN HOUSE OF COMMONS TO DECIDE

Would Enfranchise Women Who if They Were Men Would Have Right to Vote--Meets Hot Criticism

London, March 26.—Home Secretary McKenna's bill, providing for the re-arrest of women hunger strikers after they have recovered, was introduced in the House of Commons last night. A woman suffrage bill, framed by a radical committee, will be presented in the House early in April. It has received the approval of the members of the Cabinet who favor woman suffrage. It is drawn up on lines similar to the previous measure introduced by Mr. Dickinson chairman of the London Liberal Association, and this same gentleman will probably introduce the new bill. It enfranchises women, who if they were men, would have the right to vote, that is with the proper qualifications. It also grants the franchise to women whose husbands have the right to vote. No woman under 25 are to be allowed to vote.

The Labor party leaders are also framing a woman suffrage bill.

CHURCHILL OFFERS ONE YEAR'S NAVAL HOLIDAY

London, March 27.—A naval holiday for a year, as far as new construction is concerned, was the offer made to the world to day by Winston Spenser Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, when he submitted the British naval estimates to the House of Commons.

In this way, he says, the peoples of the world would obtain an almost instantaneous mitigation of the thraldom in which they have been involved by the evil and insensate folly of the present acute rivalry in armaments. Scores of millions, he declared, were being squandered year after year without making any real difference in the relative naval strength in the world's navies, and added:

"We address this proposal to all nations and to no nation with more profound sincerity than to our great neighbor over the North Sea."

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at a low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

Clock Entirely of Glass

A clock constructed throughout of glass is the result of six years' work on the part of a Bavarian glass polisher. The plates and pillars which form the frame work are of glass and are bolted together with glass screws. The dial plate, hands, shafts, and cogwheels are of glass, and glass wedges and pins are used for fastening the various parts of the running gear together. Like the clock itself, the key by which it is wound is of glass. The construction of the remarkable timepiece was a matter of infinite pains. Some of the parts had to be made as many as forty times before a clock that would go could be produced.

Patrick Once More

A traveller who dropped into a North Ontario town vouches for the following: As the "Sudbury to the Soo" train was on its way west the other day a certain judge came aboard, and finding all the seats occupied, finally sat down beside an Irishman who was seated just in front of the judge, who got into conversation with the Irishman, and soon discovered that he had only been in Canada for about two years. His Honor was full of praise for Canada and especially of Northern Ontario. The Irishman listened to the glowing description for some time, but finally became restive and remarked that Canada might be a pretty good place but could in no wise compare with Ireland. To this His Honor objected, and to strengthen his argument said: "Now Pat, you know very well that you would be in Ireland many and many a long year before you would ever have the privilege of sitting with a judge." Pat was fairly bowled out for a minute, but with an Irish ready wit replied: 'True for you, yer Honor, but sure now, yer Honor would be in Ireland many and many a long year before ye'd be a judge."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Men of Canada, Keep Both Hands on the Union Jack!

The weather reports from the Northern States indicate that the early robin, instead of getting the worm, gets its feet frostbitten.

A Berlin dispatch says Germany is confronted by a lack of money. This puts her in a class of the common people and entitles her to a considerable measure of sympathy.

It is a difficult task to make Sir Wilfrid understand that instead of being the "chosen" he is the "rejected" of the people. His extraordinary vanity appears to have dulled the edge of his political perception.

Something should be done to cheer up Hon. J. R. Stratton. Every time he heard Mr. Burnham addressed as "M.P." the Hon. Jimmy experiences the genial thrill of one who has had a piece of ice slipped down his back.

A news item says the bow on the bands of men's hats this spring will be worn in the back instead of the left side. Well, most of us can stand for that, but there will be a general revolt if we are required to wear our vests buttoned up in the back.

A Toronto sociologist has shed a batch of horrifying statistics showing that there are more insane people in this country than there are college students, but let us quiet our palpitating hearts with the thought that an overwhelming majority of the population are neither insane nor college students.

DR. FLEXNER'S GREAT DISCOVERY.

Dr. Simon Flexner's recent announcement that he has at length succeeded in identifying and cultivating the germ of infantile paralysis brings hope with it. This means that a necessary preliminary step has been taken toward the discovery of an agent by which the germ can be destroyed. It does not mean that this discovery will be made in a day or a week, but it does mean that the way to this discovery has been greatly shortened.

In reaching the result from which it is expected great benefits to human beings will flow, Dr. Flexner has made experiments on living animals, because he could not have reached the result by any other means. Yet, strange to say, there are persons of humane dispositions and good intentions who would rather have children suffer and die from infantile paralysis forever than to permit a single one of the lower animals to be used in scientific experimentation. This is hard to believe, but it is true.

THE LIBERAL PARTY VERSUS CANADA.

For three months the naval bill has been before the country. For forty Parliamentary days and nights it has been debated in the House of Commons. There has seldom been a bill which has received a greater measure of Parliamentary time and attention. Months of patient care have been consumed in trying to meet objections; in trying to win the largest possible measure of agreement for this great scheme.

Upon the work of examining the bill hundreds of members of Parliament have been engaged. Reckoning the ordinary session at one hundred days it costs the country $5,375.00 every day they sit, outside of the large salaries paid ministers of the Crown and the leader of the Opposition. In addition to the ministers and members there is an enormous staff of civil servants and officials working on the bill, preparing and digesting memoranda, conducting correspondence and doing a thousand and one things that are not seen but which are costly both in time and money.

All this has been done and now we are told by the Obstructionists that it is to count for nothing. The will of the people of this country as expressed by the majority of their elected representatives in Parliament is to count for nothing. The mandate of the people given to the present Government on September 21, 1911, is to count for nothing.

But they should realize that this sort of thing must have an end. What was once legitimate opposition quickly became obstruction and has now become tyranny—that worst of all tyrannies, the tyranny of a blatant and irresponsible minority.

POET'S CORNER

Readers are invited to contribute to this column. Matter to be either original or otherwise.

THE BLACKSMITH.

(Written for The Times.)

The brawny smith stood by the forge
An iron in his hand,
While the fire flared bright with ruddy light
By roaring bellows fanned.

Where glowing coal, burned fierce and hot,
Like molten lava red;
The stubborn bar he buried far,
Deep down in fiery bed.

Then in short space he drew it forth,
At white and sizzling heat;
For a fashion designed to suit his mind,
On the ringing anvil beat.

Unyielding and resisting still,
Each effort was in vain;
But steady wrought and patient thought,
To reheat it once again.

So again with trusty tongs he caught
And quick from the furnace drew;
The hammer swung and the anvil rung,
And sparks in thousands flew.

Again in ire, to the flaming fire,
He flung the worthless tool,
In the water bucket at last he stuck it,
And left it there to cool.

Now futile the hope he said, to cope
With a useless thing like this,
So if it is good for nothing else,
It can just lie there and hiss.

Thus no merit or worth or use on earth,
The gossip may justly claim,
Yet their veromed dart can wound a heart
Or tarnish the fairest name.

THE KNOW HOW

To Feed Children and Get Good Results.

There are more nervous persons made so by undigested food lying in the stomach than the average individual would suppose.

If food remains undigested in the stomach, it begins to ferment, set up gas and a large portion is thus converted into poison.

That's why imperfectly digested food may, and often does, cause irritation of the nerves and stupor of the mind—brain and nerves are really poisoned.

"My daughter had complained for some time of a distressed feeling in the stomach, after eating, which set me thinking that her diet was not right," writes an anxious and intelligent mother.

"She had been fond of cereals, but had never tried Grape-Nuts. From reading the account of this predigested food it seemed reasonable to try Grape-Nuts for her case.

"The results were really wonderful. The little brain that seemed at times unable to do its work, took on new life and vigor. Every morning, now, before going to school, she eats the crisp little morsels and is now completely and entirely well, she seems to have a new lease on life no more distress in the stomach, nor headache, but sound and well everyway." Name given by Canad an Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read the book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

"There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

A HAPPY, LAUGHING CHILD IN A FEW HOURS

If Cross, Irritable, Feverish, Tongue Coated and Sick, Give Delicious "Syrup of Figs."

Your child isn't naturally cross, irritable and peevish, Mother! Examine the tongue; if coated, it means the little ones' stomach is disordered, liver inactive and its thirty feet of bowels clogged with foul, decaying waste.

Every mother realizes after giving delicious "Syrup of Figs" that this is the ideal laxative and physic for children. Nothing else regulates the little one's tender stomach, liver and bowels so effectually, besides they dearly love its delightful fig taste.

For constipated bowels, sluggish liver, biliousness, or sour, disordered stomach, feverishness, diarrhoea, sore throat, bad breath or to break a cold, give one-half to a teaspoonful of "Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, sour bile, undigested food and constipated matter will gently move on and out of the system without griping or nausea, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

AN EXPENSIVE HABIT.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Hon. Jimmie will require to be very economical at present, as a new Bishop will very soon be appointed. He always claimed that it cost him $1000 every time a new Bishop was appointed, so will require to be saving up his bawbees.

One Who Knows.

"HIGHER CRITICISM."

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Only a very few years ago, any man who would deny the divine authority and the supreme Majesty of Holy Scripture was called an infidel. To-day he is called a Higher Critic, forsooth! When Ingersoll, the noted infidel, was once asked by a friend why he no longer gave his lectures against the Bible, he replied, "The professors and the preachers are doing that work much better than I possibly can, and their influence is much greater than mine."

Yours,

Jno. Carlisle.

THE OBSTRUCTIONISTS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have 1,000 copies of the American Declaration of Independence and about the same number of Yankee flags (stars and stripes) which I would like to deliver to the Hon. Mr. Emmerson, for distribution among the Grit rebel members at Ottawa. I wish also to furnish Sir Wilfrid with a musket similar to the one he proposed shouldering in the Reid rebellion, and a sword carried by a "distinguished" Grit rebel in '37. In fact while not in the museum business, I might say in passing that I have a regular arsenal of Grit rebel arms, gathered from rebellions as far back as 1745, enough to outfit the whole disloyal crew at Ottawa, and would be delighted to place all and sundry at their disposal. Would you, Mr. Editor, advise me as to the quickest way in which to get in touch with the ringleaders.

A Loyal Liberal.

Only a small amount is offered, to enable the Company to raise sufficient funds to install a stamp mill and do further development work.

43 Assays Average Over $70 Per Ton

The Company own four claims of forty acres each, in the Pain Killer Lake District, a Gold Camp of great promise. The property is located nine miles from the railway station at Matheson, with a good winter road.

Equipment: 3 drill compressors, hoist, 45-horsepower boiler, 2 drills, blacksmith's shop and all necessary tools and appliances, sleeping and eating camp to accommodate twenty men, stabling for five horses, buildings for compressor and boiler house; all these have been paid for, and the only debts the Company have are practically current accounts.

VEINS: Eight veins have been located, nearly all carrying free gold. On L. 1891, there is a dyke averaging 15 feet wide, running right across the claim. Assays were made from this averaging $30.90. Two assays were taken from claim No. 16353½, giving $5562.00 per ton and $1326.00 in Gold and $6.00 in Silver respectively. The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co., Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty, forty-three assays were made, averaging $71.40 per ton.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake; have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at fifty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work, and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton; and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS LIMITED, are well known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

In the shaft forty-three assays were made from the ore taken out between 17 and 40 feet, and the averages ran over $70 per ton. The price of this stock will shortly advance. There is a large body of ore ready to treat, which will average $50.00 per ton, and enough ore to keep a stamp mill running for some time. No cash was asked for the property, and the vendors accepted stock in payment, thus showing their faith in the properties.

Assay papers can be seen at this office, and samples of ore, also the button produced from the assay made by The Canada Metal Co., Limited, taken off Claim No. 16,353½, and showing $5562 per ton. Several assays were made by J. Wearing, Toronto, giving values as high as $675.50 per ton, $628.00, $195.00, $416.00, $282.00 and $185.50.

Just as the great silver camp of Cobalt and the Porcupine Gold Camp have come into prominence, so will the Pain Killer Lake district prove to be a great gold camp.

The following Telegram was received from the Mines last week:

To H. C. CROW,

President Cartwright Gold Fields, Limited, care The Canada Metal Company, Limited, of Toronto.

Vein is improving. We are making trial shipment to Campbell & Deyell at Cobalt to-day for them to treat, so that we can see how it runs. It shows free gold in every piece of quartz, and pans excellent. Have shipped you fifty pounds by express to-day.

H. V. CARTWRIGHT.

The trial shipment of ore made by this Company gives returns of

$38.10 PER TON GOLD

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell at Cobalt. This again proves the value of the property. $6.00 ore will pay to mill. Samples can be seen at our office, assay papers, etc. We invite you to call.

When Appetite Fails and Digestion is Bad

THERE IS DANGER AHEAD FOR THE MAN WHO NEGLECTS NATURE'S WARNING.

Dyspepsia Tendencies are Serious and Should be Treated Accordingly.

There is a strong moral in the statement of James Sohrum, of Pleasant street, Dartmouth, N.S. Like thousands of people, he was failing in health because his stomach and digestive organs were out of repair. His vitality was slipping away; he was losing ground every day.

"I could not have held on much longer. I was wasting away simply because no remedy I used gave tone and strength to my stomach. The vital forces of my system seemed dead. I was advised to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills. What hidden weakness they searched out I don't know, but in a miraculous way they have made a new man of me. My stomach troubles are cured, rich blood now runs throughmy veins—clear skin and unmistakable evidences of health and vigor I feel every day. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have certainly mastered the secret of curing the sickly unnervated man and I strongly urge everyone in failing or lost health to use this grand remedy."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut are purely vegetable, 25c. per box, five for $1.00, all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

APPEARANCE OF SCOUTS

Uniforms Should be Worn Correctly, Even to the Minutest Detail

Mr. H. G. Hammond, Assistant Commissioner for Ontario, has the following to say with regard to the appearance of Boy Scouts:

"We cannot emphasize too fully the necessity for a Scout to always appear neat and properly dressed, not only when in uniform, but every day. Much is expected of you, and when your buttonhole badge is in evidence, you are under the fire of inspection.

"You will likely say, 'Oh, well, the other fellow can get better clothes than I can.' Remember, that good clothes do not always denote neatness. Clean boots and flesh, with your collar and tie clean and properly put on, your clothes brushed, hair neat, and the best made of what you have, are the ear-marks of a tidy, neat lad.

"Then your Scout uniform, wear it correctly, even to the minutest detail. Have your stocking tops properly rolled, and don't forget the green tapes hanging neatly below the roll, properly fastened to your garter. Have your scarf knotted neatly, and don't forget that chin strap; have it fit your chin neatly, and, say, press the brim of your hat occasionally. Put on your badges correctly. It does make such a difference to the appearance of a troop. And then, to top it all, walk down the street showing you are proud of your movement—head up, step alert, proud that you are a son of this Old Empire, showing your citizens that you are 'playing the game' and 'playing it fair.'"

GERMAN TOAST

Cut thick slices of bread, dip them in milk to soften, and then in beaten egg. Just grease a frying pan with butter, and fry the bread a light brown. Sprinkle with castor sugar and serve with jam sauce.

Oil Burners a Success

The oil-burning locomotives in use on the Shuswap section of the Revelstoke, British Columbia, district are proving a great success in every particular. As soon as the oil tanks at Field and Golden are completed the locomotives on the mountain section will also be converted into oil-burners.

BALL FRANCHISES UNCERTAIN GAMBLE

Fortunes Made by Owners by Lucky Purchase at Right Time—Navin's Case Unique

Professional baseball offers a field of speculation about as uncertain as any gamble known to modern times. Fortunes have been made out of clubs which looked like sure failures, and in other instances apparently gilt edged investments have drained the pockets of the men who undertook to cater to the baseball loving public. The element of luck, of course, hinges largely on the acquisition of a team that will be at least contenders for the pennant.

Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the "Pirates" of Pittsburg made his entire fortune in the baseball business, and he has prospered amazingly. One of his most notable achievments is his magnificent Pittsburg stadium, costing—land and grand stand—about three quarters of a million dollars. Cleveland boasts of a feminine baseball magnate, Mrs. Helen Robinson Britton and her mother, Sarah C. H. Robinson. Philadelphia is something of a mystery so far as ownership goes.

"The stock is held nominally by Horace Fogel, president of the 'Phillies' corporation. Mr. Fogel was a telegraph operator and then a newspaper writer. He was a baseball official in Indianapolis and New York before he took charge of Philadelphia. The major part of the stock is said to be distributed among a number of prominent men, some in Philadelphia and some elsewhere, who prefer to remain in seclusion. Of these, Charles P. Taft is reported to be one. The club is fairly prosperous financially, having earned something like $70,000 last year on a valuation of perhaps $300,000.

The American League, organised ten years ago as a rival of the National League, but now working in harmony with the latter, is headed by Ban Johnson, who is said to combine the money-raising power of a college president with the "sand" of a college half-back.

S. F. Angus, a railroad man, who owned the Detroit "Tigers" in its early days, dropped $60,000 on it. Then William H. Yawkey bought it, and engaged Frank J. Navin to manage it for him.

"Any time you want a half interest," said Yawkey to Navin, "you can have it." Navin had been bookkeeper for Angus and had little money himself. There was no written agreement.

The next two years, 1905, 1906, Yawkey lost $45,000, while the original investment had been only $35,000. Then Hugh Jennings was drafted from Baltimore and made bench manager for Detroit. That year the "Tigers" won the league pennant, and the profits were $50,000. It was then that Navin said to Yawkey: "I think I'll take formal possession of my half interest."

With some men, contracts are superfluous; Yawkey is that sort of man. There might have been a law suit, but there wasn't. The verbal understanding was carried out to the letter, and Navin came into a bonanza. With his profits he purchased an equal partnership. His total investment in the club was now $17,000. Then next year the "Tigers" captured the pennant again, and the net profits were $75,000.

Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago "White Sox," is a distinctive figure among baseball owners. He is said to have made all his money in baseball. His club is in the million-dollar class. His original investment was $30,000. Comiskey owns the grounds, the franchise, and the stands—all paid for.

CHOOSING A BAT

Giants' Indian Backstop Follows Example of His Forefathers

"When I want a bat," said "Chief" Meyers, of the Giants, in an interview, "I go personally to a certain factory where they are made. Then I pick out the rough piece of ash, just as it has come from the tree. My early life and perhaps the knowledge inherited from my Indian forefathers has made me an expert on wood.

"Then I watch the lathe-man turning the wood into shape; stop him every once in a while and 'heft' the club; and never let that bat out of my sight until it is a finished article. That may all sound foolish, but I'd never carry a bat to the plate that I hadn't seen developed out of a rough piece of wood.

"My bats are all several inches longer and many ounces heavier than the average. I own about twelve of them now, including 'Old Grandad,' a monster club. I use in practice. I was nearly heart-broken a couple of years ago when the Polo Grounds fire ate up nearly all my sticks. I 'slumped' then until I replaced them.

"On the road I carry about three or four, and before and after each game I 'nurse' them, as the boys jokingly say.

"When I was a kid I used to see the old Indians of my tribe giving their bows a peculiar treatment. They would rub the bows down with a big, heavy beef bone. This, they told me, glossed with the oil from the bone and fragments of the bone itself the pores of the wood. That strengthened it and prevented it from cracking, at the same time polishing the surface.

"So when I got into the ball game I thought this: 'The bows brought their living to those old fellows. My bats bring my living to me. So I'll give them the old beef bone treatment.' And I still do it."

Buys at Edmonton

George Pearson, of Glasgow, Scotland, brother of Lord Cowdray, head of the famous Pearson Contracting company, completed a real estate purchase in Edmonton which will ultimately bring about $1,000,000 of new English capital into that city.

The immediate purchase price is a little under $500,000, the estimate of the ultimate investment in Edmonton of $1,000,000 being based on the intention of Mr. Pearson to erect a number of modern business buildings on his newly acquired holding.

Canada's historical collection under the direction of Dr. A. G. Doughty, Dominion archivist, is to be greatly enriched by a gift from Mrs. E. M. HISTORICAL DOCUMENTS

Papers Which Deal With Western Affairs of Years Ago

The most valuable Canadian historical documents which have been discovered for years have been collected together by Prof. Oliver, professor of history, in Saskatchewan University. Prof. Oliver, who has been working at the archives for the Government, has succeeded in locating practically all the records of the Assiniboia Council of Manitoba, which was the only government in the west for years before Manitoba entered Confederation.

Hon. Dr. Roche, Secretary of State, thinks that these manuscripts will prove of exceeding value to historians and believes that they will throw fresh light on the early history of the west.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2300 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$27,800—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public, Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Ancient Fish Found

The remains of an ancient sea fish, the dinichthys, has been found in Eighteen Mile Creek, Chautauqua County, by W. C. Bryant of the Buffalo Society of Natural Sciences. The fish resembles the shark, and lived centuries ago. The rock in shows that it was of the sand bar which the remains were embedded formation which existed in the age when that region was part of the sea bottom.

Manufactured From Pure Blades of Arctic Moss

Mining engineers and prospectors along the Peel and Mackenzie Rivers, on the Arctic Ocean Slope, discovered a new breakfast food in the Arctic moss abundant there. Thousands of square miles of moss await either consumption by settlers and their pack animals or conservation for future generations by Canadian Pinchots. James East, a mining expert, noticed that dogs were fond of the moss which grows prolifically in that region. His tests showed it contains sustenance for man and beast.

For dogs he made cakes of moss mixed with lard and caribou tallow. Dogs ate the cakes eagerly and thrived. The miners then tried it and subsisted chiefly on the moss. Other prospectors learned of the new food with joy and began using it.

Mr. East named the new food Mosolyte. If conservationists do not prevent it, it is intended to produce reindeer along the Arctic slope to help consume the great moss supply.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Customs Building, Ottawa, Ont.," will be received until 4.00 P. M., on Monday, March 31, 1913, for the construction of a Customs Building on Mackenzie Avenue, Ottawa, Ont.

HIGH SPEED OF BATTED BALL

Close Decisions at First Base Are One of the Fascinations of the Game

Ask any baseball enthusiast how fast an average grounder travels during its first hundred feet from the bat, and his answer will be anywhere from 20 to 200 miles an hour. Split second watches and careful timing of many grounded balls ave established the fact that the average speed of ground balls—that is, those struck by the bat of the batsman from a fair pitched ball, which strike the field before they are in a fielder's hands—is at the rate of almost sixty miles an hour. Sixty miles an hour is eighty-eight feet per second. The bases are ninety feet apart. A man who can run 100 yards in eleven seconds, which is fast running for any one, particularly so for a man with baseball shoes and uniform on, can run ninety feet in 3.3 seconds. Is it any wonder that a ball which is fielded in its first 100 feet of travel usually reaches first just a fraction of a second before or after the runner sets foot upon it? Every fan knows that the many close decisions at first base form one of the fascinations of the game. The speed of the batted ball, the speed at which a fielder can travel from his position to a point where he can meet and field the batted ball, pick it up, set himself for the throw, the speed of the ball across the diamond from his throw, and the speed of the travelling runner are so nicely balanced that it is always a question of whether or not the runner will get there in time for the crowd to see the umpire's hand go down or whether he will face a thumb over a shoulder.

MAN WHO AIDED DARWIN

Always a Student of Nature, a Great Reader and Writer

When Darwin was making his researches which were afterwards given to the world in the "Origin of Species," "The Descent of Man," and other epoch-making works, one of his chief assistants was Mr. W. B. Tegetmeier, who died in London at the age of 96.

As a boy Tegetmeier used to buy wild birds and keep them in his father's house in St. James's, and he also adopted pigeon fancying. It was through a neighbor, Mr. Yarrell, who was also a well-known writer on birds and fishes, that Mr. Tegetmeier made the acquaintance of Darwin, who at the time was in search of facts about variation in animals. Darwin gratefully accepted his help, and in his volumes made many acknowledgments of the assistance rendered by his fellow naturalist.

Mr. Tegetmeier was of service to Darwin in many different directions. For instance, he tabulated for him the "Racing Calendar," the births of racehorses during a period of twenty-one years, and also the births of greyhounds as recorded in the "Field" for twelve years.

On more than one occasion he suggested a method of research which Darwin adopted. For instance, he tried an experiment by which a bee was led to build a singel cell, and found, as he suspected, that the "geometrical" instinct of the bee was a myth. The cell, in fact, was circular, and he read a paper on this discovery at the British Association meeting in 1868.

Mr. Tegetmeier was on the staff of the "Field" for about fifty years, and wrote more than 1,100 consecutive weekly leaders for the "Queen." He wrote many books on bird life.

It was one of his few boasts that he was he oldest holder of a reading ticket at the British Museum. He took out his reading ticket in 1838, at the age of seventeen.

STARVING AND ALONE

Terrible Case of Destitution Reported From the Duck Mountains

A distressing case of want and suffering was brought to light at Alpine, a Swede settlement, in the Duck mountains, 34 miles south-west of Swan River. Mr. and Mrs. Findley, of Durban, which is 12 miles from Alpine, heard of a woman in distress in a lonely homestead on the mountain. They went to investigate, and found a Swede woman sick in bed and starving to death, with a baby 15 months old crawling around. The child could not walk, and was clothed only in a small shirt, and was very dirty. It had crawled in and out of the house at will, often sleeping outside the door.

The mother was in a pitiable condition, a veritable skeleton. There was no money in the house and only dry bread to eat. The woman had been sick for six months. Her husband had deserted her and no one seemed to know his whereabouts.

Mrs. Findley took charge of the woman and the child.

TRAINING GERMANS

In keeping with the German Government's idea of making the empire one vast training school for the development of the best there is in the youth of the country for national commercial success, regular business school courses are being organized in the Germany army, so that the recruit during his term of military service will be training himself for the business life he will have to enter on quitting the colors.

The hundreds of thousands of children are not permitted to pass through the public schools and to drift through life as unskilled laborers. Each one, as far as the Government can order it so, is turned out skilled in some occupation.

One of the most powerfully educative forces in the empire is the continuation school originally intended to maintain some kind of discipline over youths from 14 to 18 years of age prior to their enlistment in the army. Of late years these continuation schools have been changed into vocational schools.

Twice every year great flaming posters call the youth of the land to obligatory attendance at the trade and commercial schools. These posters enumerate more than 100 trades or vocations and each youth is summoned to appear at the school devoted to his particular calling.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, for whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a door where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to investigating alleged infractions of game laws and speaks of finding the boy of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X.—Johnson is allowed to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature, who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

For a little while Mow Chee ate in thoughtful silence. Presently he looked up

"Clyde, my friend, I know so little of my own people here in New York. But one man I know, a merchant, who is very prominent and very upright. He is a big man in the Six Companies. I will give you a card to him; you can speak to him in confidence, and if he can help you, he will, not only because I sent you, but because he stands for all that is best, and desires that my countrymen in the United States shall have the respect they deserve from your citizens. I would send you to the Chinese Consul, but my friend, Mr. Yup Sing, is better."

My hand was on the newspaper in my pocket, but I did not show it to Mow Chee. I would reserve it for the encyclopaedic Yup Sing, whose address, as written on the card which my classmate furnished me, was on Mott street, a few doors from Pell.

New York's Chinatown is a much more familiar locality to the transient visitor than to the average citizen. In all the years of my residence in the metropolis, of which I am a native, I had never before had either the occasion or the desire to dip into this most foreign of all the city's foreign sections. To me, Chinatown was as a far country. Vaguely I had an idea of its location. It lay, I knew, east of Broadway and west of the Bowery; but its latitude was not clearly defined.

My impulse was to hail a cab, give the driver the number of the Mott street establishment, and so, without further individual effort, be whirled away to my destination. But there are no cab stands on lower Broadway; and to walk to Broad street, where the cabman lies all day in wait for the prosperous stock broker and his affluent customer, required more time than in my impatience I was willing to grant. Therefore I boarded a Broadway car and was drawn haltingly northward, until, on reaching Canal street, I alighted in sheer desperation and turned eastward.

Here a letter carrier, of whom I inquired, sped me straight to my goal—a couple of blocks as I was going, a turn to the right, a few blocks more, and the bulk windows of the Yup Sing Company would come into view.

I found the establishment easily enough. But had it not been for the name printed in big Roman lettering, I should never have imagined it a Chinese business house. There was no display of goods in the big windows, which were screened half way up by light blue shades, giving the front an appearance similar to that of the average American wholesale house.

Having passed inside, however, there was no such illusion. All about me were the characteristic products of the Orient, from brilliant silken embroideries, and exquisite gold and silver and bronze work, to cheap cotton and linen fabrics, lacquer furniture, and straw slippers. And the atmosphere was further enhanced by the half-dozen or more Chinamen who were lounging in the middle and far distance, each with shaven crown and coiled queue and each in the more or less brilliantly colored native dress.

One of these, a comparatively darkly-attired young man with full, round visage, came forward as I entered.

"Is Mr. Yup in?" I asked.

He was inclined, I saw, to hesitation and so I produced Mow's card.

"Oh, yes," he said, after studying it for a moment. "Oh, yes. Mista' Yup! He in." With which he left me, and taking the card with him disappeared behind some draperies at the back of the big crowded store.

Between the others, who regarded me for a moment only with idle interest, there was, while I stood there, a rapid exchange of observations in their native tongue, mingled with a sort of high-pitched cackling which I assumed to be laughter.

I had turned my back towards them, but presently a shuffling of feet along the floor informed me of the approach of what I imagined was my returning emissary. On whirling about, however, it was to face an elderly man in purple silk garments and a black skull cap—a man of thin, almost cadaverous yellow visage, whose upper lip and chin were adorned with a sparse growth of silky blue-black hair, and upon the bridge of whose nose rested a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles.

"You would see me, sir?" he asked, and I noted that there was scarcely the slightest indication of the foreigner in either pronunciation or accent.

"If you are Mr. Yup," I smiled, "you can, I fancy, from what Mr. Mow tells me, give me the information I am in search of."

He did not smile in return, but his thin face assumed an expression of benignity that was as much of an invitation to lay my problem before him as were his words.

"Anyway I can serve a friend of Mr. Mow," he said, "will be a pleasure."

But, as he spoke, the benign expression passed. Once again that thin saffron-hued face, with its hollow cheeks, and small deep-set eyes, had become unfathomable.

At least two of his partners or salesmen were within ear-shot, and I turned a significant glance towards them, as I said:

"The subject is a confidential one, Mr. Yup. If I could speak to you—"

"In private?" he finished. "Certainly, sir. Will you kindly step this way?"

He led me to the rear of his store, holding aside a curtain of heavy embroidery, through which I passed into a smaller room, furnished in carved teak wood and ornamented with magnificent specimens of Chinese porcelain and pottery. A little Chinese girl, not over eight years old, and wearing a blouse and wide breeches of a pale cerulean silk, stood beside a table. Before her were several small sheets of rice paper on which she was making designs in water colors.

Ignoring the child, he indicated a chair near the only window, screened, like the windows in front, with a blue shade. And when I had sat down, he drew up a chair for himself opposite me.

His manner, in spite of the benignity of a moment before, was not encouraging, and for a little I was embarrassed as to just where to begin. At length, however, I said:

"I fear, Mr. Yup, that some of your countrymen have recently made a terrible mistake."

"A mistake?" he echoed, gravely.

"A mistake that I trust it is not too late to repair. Briefly, they have kidnapped a gentleman of fortune and influence, one of my dearest friends. In a manner most mysterious, after first subjecting him to the annoyance of a series of anonymous letters and a succession of singular, nerve-torturing acts of trespass."

Mr. Yup glanced at Mow Chee's card, which he still held.

"Mr. Clyde," he said, with no more emotion than he might have exhibited had I told him I wished him to sell for me a Chinese bronze on commission, "Mr. Clyde, I do not see, exactly, why you come to me."

"I came at Mr. Mow's suggestion," I explained. "He tells me you know the Chinese of New York as no one else does."

"The police, I should say," he returned, "know the class you seek better than I. Why not go to the police?"

It was not easy to explain to him why I had not gone to the police, for I did not care to reveal all that we feared, and how we dreaded that which police pursuit might precipitate.

"Because," I began, after a moment's hesitation, "I believe the whole thing is a mistake. I believe that those involved in the plot must sooner or later find out it is a mistake. If the aid of the police is enlisted, the fact that a mistake has been made will not be any extenuation. My object is to find the plotters, prove to them that they are in error, promise them immunity, and recover my friend."

"What you have told me," said Yup Sing, speaking slowly, "is not enough. If you will tell me everything, I will let you know what I think. You must give the names and the places and the dates."

I did give him the names and the places and the dates. Mow Chee had told me I could rely upon him, implicitly, and I told him all, without reservation. I gave him even the letter, the only one of the three that remained to us—the last letter in which the final threat was made.

As I look back on it, now, I cannot understand why I did this. It was the only piece of proof, the only clue left. And yet, when he asked to keep it for a little, I consented without so much as a demur. I argued, I suppose, that he was a reputable merchant, with an established business, and that, therefore, treachery on his part was not to be considered.

"And your friend," he said, as he folded the paper, "was never in China?"

"Never." I affirmed.

"How do you know?"

"He has told me so."

It was neither a smile nor a sneer which floated for just a moment across those sphinx-like features. It was a look of pitying tolerance, a patronizing gleam, merely, from the small, deep-set, almond eyes. One of England's greatest actresses, in speaking of the Chinese, has said: "They look as if they are always thinking, 'I have lived before you; I shall live after you.'" That was how Yup Sing looked then. But he merely said:

"Very well. I will learn what I can."

"Soon?" I begged. "Very soon?"

He stood up, an imposing figure in his purple silk.

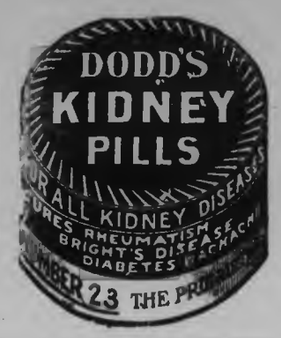
"Come to me tomorrow evening. Not here, but at the Chinese restaurant on Doyers street. Come at nine o'clock."

From my pocket I drew out the copy of the afternoon paper, and pointed to the article about the Celestial and the mysterious box.

"Do you suppose that could have any bearing on the matter?" I asked.

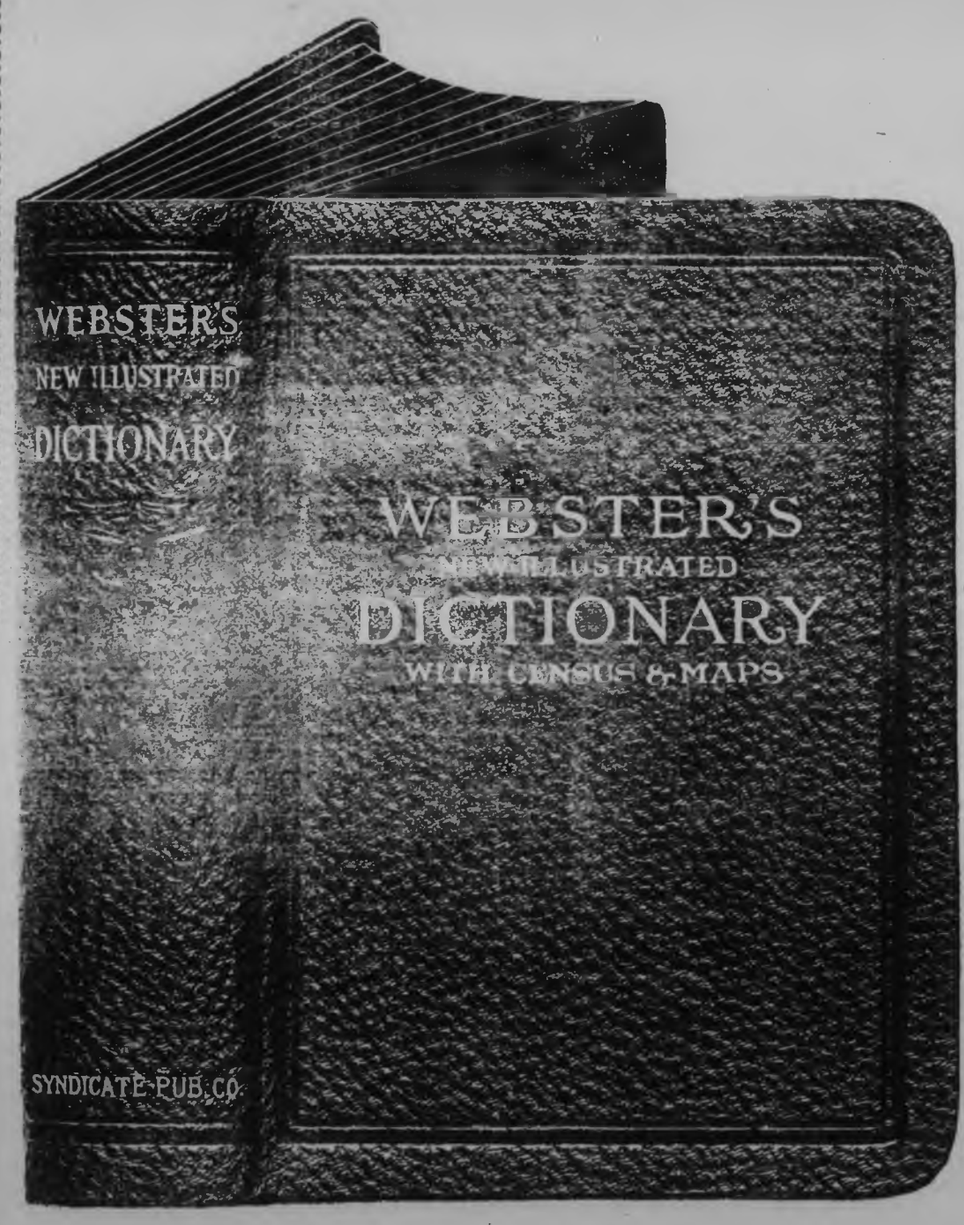
He adjusted his spectacles and read the half-column, slowly, from first to last. Then he smiled.

"I have that box in my cellar," he said. "It contains woolen underwear shipped to me from Lowell, Massachusetts."



But I scarcely heard him, for my attention was on the swiftly moving brush of the little Chinese maid, as, deftly and rapidly, it now blocked out with bold black strokes a silhouette upon the piece of rice paper before her—a familiar silhouette of a short, clumsy curved boat with broad lug-sail.

CHAPTER XII.



"We Were in Peking Together."

At my evening conference with Evelyn Grayson, reviewing the day's events, I dwelt with some insistence upon the singularity of that episode at Yup Sing's.

Headache Over the Eyes? Look for Nasal Catarrh

Catarrh Never Stops in One Place—It Spreads Rapidly—Often Ruins Health Completely.

In this changeable climate it is the little colds that drift into Catarrh. Unless the inflammation is checked it passes rapidly from the throat or nose to the bronchial tubes and then to the lungs. You can't make new lungs any more than you can make new fingers or toes, but you can cure Catarrh.

The surest cure consists of breathing in the healing balsamic essences of CATARRHOZONE, which is simply a medicated vapor so full of rich curative properties that every trace of Catarrh vanishes before it.

"The soothing piney vapor of Catarrhozone is the most powerful medicine I ever used," writes Mrs. Edmond J. Christine, of Saskatoon. "Every breath drawn through the Inhaler sends a grateful feeling through the air passages of the nose and throat. Catarrhozone cured me of frightful headaches over the eyes, relieved me of a stuffy feeling in the nose, and an irritable hacking cough that had been the bane of my life for a year. My general health is greatly improved, my appetite and digestion are considerably better than before. Catarrhozone has been the means of giving me such health as I always desired, but never possessed."

Even though catarrh has a firm hold on you, and affects your throat, nose or ears, you can thoroughly cure it with Catarrhozone. Large size, guaranteed, costs $1.00; smaller size 50c.; sample size 25c. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Coal to Be Cheaper.

Local prices for coal are likely to go down soon. Those long suffering philanthropists, the mine owners and railroads realize that the demand will decrease with the coming warm weather and will thus kindly lower prices. They have also found, with the advent of spring that more coal is now available. Let as hope that in the next world the coal dealers will never suffer from cold!

Both Remanded a Week.

The unfortunate woman, who was, as noted in yesterday's issue, been picked up on Aylmer street, drunk, was remanded at yesterday's police court for a week to enable her to sober up. She has frequently been assisted home. Her two children died some time since. Edward Butler, who fell from grace and indulged too frequently, was also given a week for a similar purpose.

An Unneeded Run.

At 6.35 last night an alarm took the fire brigade in quick time to North Harvey street. It seems that a resident of that street had decided to turn the sutt out of his chimney. He used a small amount of combustibles to effect this purpose. Some hysterical individual seeing the fire shoot from the chimney sent in an alarm. No damage except to the feelings of the boys in blue.

Sudden Death at Fraserville.

Yesterday morning the dead body of a middle aged man was found on the roadside near Fraserville. It was found to be that of Mr. H. Perrin, of Bensfort. It seems that Mr. Perrin left his home early in the morning to drive to Fraserville, from where he intended to take the train for Peterborough. He had fallen from his buggy, death being due to heart failure. The deceased was 50 years of age and leaves a wife and family.

A Lakefield Lecture

Last night Mr. Alex Hall, Past Grand Master of the Junior Orange Association of Ontario and a member of the Orange Sentinel's editorial staff, visited Lakefield and delivered a most interesting and instructive address, before an open meeting of the Orangemen. Bro. Brown, District Master very ably filled the chair. Mr. Hall took as his subject the wonderful strength and growth of the Orange Order from ocean to ocean.

Bowmanville Is Ambitious.

Bowmanville Review shows that that town has ambition. Whilst not realizing that Peterborough is playing in swifter company, this paper says: "It may be somewhat premature, but would it not be a good idea for the different towns in this vicinity to get busy and formulate plans to have a Lake Shore Baseball League. A league composed of Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Lindsay, Peterborough and Bowmanville would make a classy circuit."

NOT A VILLAGE IN ALL CANADA

BUT CAN TELL OF GENUINE CURES BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Dunnett, Ont., Man Tells How Quickly they Built Him Up and Brought Him Back to Perfect Health.

Dunnet, Ont., Mar. 26.—(Special.)—That there is not a village or post-office in Canada that cannot provide a genuine cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills has been shown again and again. In this little village many people bear grateful testimony to the wonderful curative powers of this simple remedy. Mr. Alex. Roy is one of these.

"I used Dodd's Kidney Pills for a run-down system," Mr. Roy states. "My head ached, my limbs were heavy, and my skin had a harsh dry feeling, and would itch and burn at night. Three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills simply cure the kidneys. The work of the kidneys is to strain all the waste matter out of the blood. If the kidneys are out of order they fail to do their work, the waste matter remains in the blood putrifies and causes serious diseases. The natural cure is to make the kidneys do their work. Dodd's Kidney Pills always do this.

Hens at Shelter Going.

Manager Henry of the Children's Shelter has decided to dispose of his big flock of chickens. He told The Times yesterday that the way the Shelter children waded into eggs on Easter Sunday was enough to make feathers stick to the comb put through their hair. Still this has nothing to do with his selling his hens. His many duties prevent him giving the attention he would like to the chickens.

Lacrosse for Peterborough.

It has been decided to form a local committee to get a Peterborough lacrosse team in the C.L.A. There is good raw material with the encouragement behind them that Peterborough in bygone days had one of the swiftest lacrosse teams in Ontario. They also know, or should know, that many people would willingly pay 25 cents to see a lacrosse game who would not accept a pass for a baseball game. On the other hand it would be hard to switch a baseball fan from his allegiance to the great American game.

Growth of the Order.

Mr. Alex. Hall, of the Orange Sentinel, Toronto, passed through the city yesterday, on his way to Lakefield, where he delivered an interesting address last night. Mr. Hall favored the Times with a fraternal visit. In speaking of the great advances made by the Orange Order, he noted that there are 72 lodges in Toronto at present, which with those of surrounding suburbs, now total 100. During the past year 87 new lodges were organized in Canada, with an increase of 6,000 members. The Supreme Grand Lodge will meet next July in St. John, Nfd. Peterborough is keeping pace with the rest of the Dominion and shows a healthy and steadily increasing membership.

THIS, WORST TRAGEDY IN HISTORY OF REPUBLIC

Governor Cox of Ohio Telegraphs Appeal for Help--Water Assumes Unknown Heights--Some Relief Sure To-Day

New York, March 27.—Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, telegraphed early yesterday morning from Columbus, as follows:

"The exact extent of the appalling flood in Ohio is still unknown. Every hour impresses us with the uncertainty of the situation. The water have assumed such unknown heights in many parts of the State that it will be hardly less than a miracle if villages and towns are not wiped out of existence in the southern and the southwestern parts of Ohio. The storm is moving south of East.

"Please give great publicity to an appeal for help. My judgment is that there has never been such a tragedy in the history of the Republic.

Expected Relief at Daylight.

"Columbus was the centre of all activities in behalf of the stricken cities. Every hour has apparently been filled with an accumulation of drastic circumstances.

"Piteous appeals have been made by men who were surrounded by water and confronted by the approaching conflagration in the city of Dayton. Every human energy has been exerted so give relief and yet the measure of assistance has been comparatively small. It is my belief, however, that by daylight, those imprisoned in the business section of Dayton can be relieved.

An Early Storm Signal.

"The day began by a storm signal from the weather bureau advising that there would be a dangerous rise in the waters of the Muskingum River. All the towns along its source, including Zanesville and the historic "Y" bridge was blown up with dynamite.

10,000 Dead?

Dayton, O., Mar. 27.—"If the death list is only 1,000 I will consider it marvellous," telegraphed Governor Cox's Secretary yesterday. "If it is 10,000 I will not be surprised. Horrible as this is," he said, "the real suffering will grow worse for days. There are 70,000 homeless. The refugees are being fed from hand to mouth with less than a day's food supply ahead."

Zanesville and Marietta, too.

"The loss of life in Zanesville is uncertain because all telephone communication ceased at noon. Marietta cannot be reached, but it is safe to assume that the same devastating results at Zanesville was carried on to Marietta.

"A flood situation developed in the Maumee and Sandusky Valleys in Northwestern Ohio, but the damage to life and property was nothing compared with that in the south.

Situation Without Parallel.

"In many respects the Dayton situation is absolutely without parallel. The city is unable to send to the outside world any accurate idea of the real loss."

TWO SENATORS HURT IN WRECK

Nova Scotia Members for Upper House Victims of Derailment. Seven Senators on the Train.

Ottawa, March 27.—Grand Trunk train No. 23 from Montreal for Ottawa was derailed at noon to-day about a mile east of the Village of Maxville, 45 miles from here.

Three coaches, baggage car and tender were ditched.

Conductor A. J. Leamy, of this city was slightly injured.

Senator Prowse, of Prince Edward Island, sustained painful abdominal injury, being thrown against a seat, and several passengers, including Senator Murphy, of Prince Edward Island, were bruised, but so far as known none of the injured are in serious condition.

Seven Senators from the lower Provinces were in one coach and all were among those shaken up.

The cause of the derailment is supposed to have been a spread rail. First reports of the accident were alarming and doctors were rushed to the scene from stations east and west.

The passengers from the wrecked train arrived here at 3.30 this afternoon.

To Cross The Ocean

London, Eng., March 28.—The "Daily Express" says: Naval developments of a remarkable nature are taking place under the clock of great secrecy. In the course of the next twelve months some astonishing details will become known regarding the changes in warship types, but there will be none more noteworthy than the development of the submarine. An entirely new type of underwater craft, of considerable offensive power and capable of crossing the Atlantic at a high rate of speed, is being built for the British navy.

L. O. L. NO. 50 CELEBRATE

5th Anniversary of Lodge and Farewell to Rev. Bro. Riddiford

Duke of Manchester, L.O.L., No. 50, last night celebrated the 5th anniversary of its organization. A large number were present. The affair took the form of a banquet, supplied by Hoopers, the well known caterers. The edible were excellent--worthy of special mention.

Bro. Ernest Reid, Worshipful Master, occupied the chair, and acted in the capacity of toastmaster.

The first toast on the list was "The King," which was responded to by the singing of the National Anthem.

The toast of "The Grand Lodge of Ontario East," was proposed by Bro. Spence and responded to by Bro. J. B. McWilliams, the veteran Orangeman of Peterborough, who gave a short history of Orangism. He said the Orange Lodge was not organized at the time of the Battle of the Boyne, as is generally believed, but some one hundred years afterwards. As a matter of fact it was organized on the 21st of Sept., 1797. The first Grand Lodge was organized in 1798. In 1835, after the Lodge had had severe differences with the Roman Catholics, the British Parliament said the "Orange Lodge was a loyal and patriotic society." Since that time a marvellous increase has taken place in its membership. To-day there is a Grand Lodge in every part of Canada. He immortalized the late Sir Richard Cartwright, who in a speech once said "The Orange Society is incorruptible." In conclusion the "Grand Old Man" said, "We must be on our guard. We must stand united. Let not politics come between us and our rights."

"Sister Lodges," proposed by Past Master Perry, and responded to by Brothers John Waldie, Chas. Wylie and Eoftall.

"Our Guests," proposed by Rev. Bro. Riddiford, and responded to by Revs. Keith and Rollins.

It would be well to remark that this banquet also took the part of a farewell to Rev. Bro. Riddiford, one of the most valued members of No. 50, who has recently received a call to London, Ont. Several grateful and appreciative speeches were made by different members.

Bro. Chas. Wylie proposed the toast to "The Protestant Federation," Bro. Johnston responded by speaking in eloquent terms of the rights of Protestantism.

GREAT WORK.

THE VERMONT MARBEL CO. PROPOSE LOCATING HERE

By-Law to Grant Them Free Site and Exemption for Ten Years Passed Council Last Night--Will Go To Ratepayers on Tuesday, April 22nd--Biggest Firm of its Kind in the World

Another industry contemplates locating in Peterborough and engages to be in operation by January, 1914, providing, of course, the by-law to aid the firm passes the ratepayers. This industry is the Vermont Marbel Co., and their object in seeking location for a branch in Canada is to have raw marbel shipped to them here for polishing, cutting and dressing for use, thereby saving the 20 per cent duty on the finished product imported into Canada from the States. This company is one of the oldest manufacturing concerns in the United States. In Vermont they employ 3,500 men in quarries and factories. In one factory alone at Proctor, Vermont, where their head office is situated, they employ 1,000 men. In addition they have a quarry in Alaska, and two factories on the Pacific Coast in the U.S. They enjoy the highest rating in Bradstreets, employ more hands in the States than the DeLaval people and are the biggest dealers in marbel in the world.

Last night the City Council passed a by-law to aid this company by giving them a free site and exemption for ten years excepting for school rates and local improvements. The company agrees to erect a building and install machinery and plant at a cost of at least $20,000, and to employ at least 20 hands the first year and 30 hands each of the remaining nine years of its term of agreement with the city. The site proposed to be granted this company is situated on Maria street, East City, just south of the C.P.R. track.

Ald. Duffus, Chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee, expressed his pleasure that a new industry had at last been secured for East City.

The votes of the ratepayers will be taken on this by-law on Tuesday April 22nd.

A citizens' meeting will be called in the course of a couple of weeks to appoint committees in the interests of getting the by-law carried.

A by-law authorizing the execution of an agreement with the Vermont Marbel Co. was here passed.

The city will be fully protected in its deal with the company.

The City Fathers met last night in special session, all the members present.

Closing of Rubidge St.

The City Solicitor reported that under the act any person whose property would be affected by the proposal to close that portion of Rubidge street required by the Wm. Hamilton Co. for siding and shed purposes, could legally block the proposition. The City Clerk was instructed to write the Wm. Hamilton Co. that they would have to pay all costs of closing the street and assume all liability for the same.

Ald. G. Walter Green saw the piece of ground the company want to use was the old creek bottom, which they themselves have filled up level with the railroad track. The use by them of this property is not going to inconvenience anybody or injure any citizen's property. The city is aiding new industries, and he was surprised that Council should think of asking an old firm like the Wm. Hamilton Co. to pay the trivial legal costs (about $25) to be entailed by closing this little portion of land against the public. However, Ald. Green was overruled on motion.

Substitute for Thompson.

The question of appointing Mr. Archibald to fill Plumbing Inspector Thompson's place during his illness was left in the Property Committees hands.

Market Tolls.

The Market tolls will be advertised for sale as usual.

The New Bridge.

Ald. Anderson is anxious for a new bridge to East City at Hunter street, and street car connection. He would like a by-law for this purpose submitted to the people. His colleagues, however, seem afraid that such a proposition would be turned down by the people this year.

PROTESTANT BENEVOLENT ASS'N MEETING LARGELY ATTENDED

Rev. W. C. Riddiford Delivers a Stirring and Pathetic Address Before Leaving to Accept His New Pastorate

Last night the Protestant Benevolent Association held a largely attended gathering in the Sons of England Hall. President Dawson Kennedy very ably filled the chair. Speeches replete with loyalty and patriotism, and breathing a spirit of equal rights for all, and no favoritism for no creed or sect. The feature of the evening was the address of Rev. W. C. Riddiford, of Park street Baptist church, who is leaving to accept his new pastorate. Mr. Riddiford said in part:

Mr. Chairman, I thank you for your kind words of introduction, and I sincerely hope and trust that I shall always be found so near to the heart of God that I may catch the faintest whisper of His sweet will and so interested in the fundamental principles of Protestantism, that I will die rather than befray them, or sacrifice them to some pandering pope-enslaved politician, who thinks more of Roman Catholic priests and votes, than the inoculating this growing nation of ours with the principles of religious and civil liberty, and let that howling rag-time editor of the Catholic Register say what he likes about the Baptists. I wish to tell him that Baptists will keep right on "Doing the work of Satan, if that work consists of granting religious liberty to all, and the giving of the word of God to all the people." A few more editors of the Burke type, and a few more Eucharistic Congresses, and there will be another French revolution, but it will be in Canada instead of France, and old Quebec will become new Quebec by virtue of her adoption of Protestant principles and liberty, that permits a man to think for himself, and to act like a free-will agent and not a wound-up machine.

I am proud to be a member of this Protestant Federation, and in this farewell address may I be permitted to suggest a few things that in my humble judgment are very essential to the life and prosperity of this organization.

First—Absolute divorcement of this Society from the political arena.

Second—The unification of all classes of Protestants in one grand Federation.

Third—The popular education by public lectures and the circulating of Protestant lietrature.

Fourth—The winning of the emigrant, both British and foreign to the liberty loving principles of the British Constitution.

Fifth The establishment of a national school system, with equal rights to all and special privileges to none, be they Catholics or Protestants.

Sixth—The complete separation of Church and State.

Seventh The settling of the marriage question for the mutual protection of all concerned.

NO DAMAGE BY SPRING FRESHETS OF OTONABEE

The water in the Otonabee River is maintained at its regular height. No damage has been done this year by spring freshets. The reason for this is, the dams built in the north country. The lakes that these dams control the water of are now being all filled, so the present conservation of the northern waters is answering two purposes, viz., preventing the spring freshets, as of old and holding the water back for use, during the summer months, for power and navigation purposes. Great credit is due Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals for the active and intelligent interest he is taking in this district.

A 25 MILLS RATE WAS FIXED BY CITY COUNCIL LAST NIGHT

The City Fathers last night struck the rate at 25 mills, an increase of 3 mills over that of last year. This rate is based on the estimates as published in these columns last week. Finance Minister Anderson contended that while the rate seems high it is lower than that of any city but one or two in the province. Were many vacant properties in the city assessed anywhere near their actual value this rate would be considerably reduced. Then with the growth of the city and the need for meeting public improvements neglected for many years, appropriations for the several civic departments had to be materially increased this year. This 25 mills rate means a tax of $12.50 per head. Alderman Anderson pointed out that half the city's debentures debt applies to schools and the Water Works.

The Board of Works had at last meeting asked an appropriation of $29,000. To keep the rate down to 25 mills $500 had been struck off this appropriation, leaving it at $28,500. Ald. Buller took exception to this and cautioned his colleagues that it would probably result in some work arranged for would have to be abandoned.

The Mayor warned Council that with a 25 mills rate the Committees must live within their appropriations.

As a new member of the Council, Ald. Langford expressed his disappointment at the increase in the rate, still he admitted that the expenses provided for could not be avoided, and agreed that every member of the Council was working as economically as possible in the interests of the ratepayers. And perhaps, after all, he said, the increase is commensurate with advances in all lines of public and private expenditure, and the city's progress.

DAYTON FIRE IS UNDER CONTROL

Columbus, O., March 27.—Information that the Dayton fire was under control came from the marooned chief operator of the Bell Telephone Company.

He said that a temporary morgue had been established in the United Brethren Church, and he could see many bodies as they were carried into it. Most of them were women and children.

SIR ISAAC RUFUS RESENTS THE ATTACK ON HIMSELF

Sharp Exchanges Between Attorney-General and Counsel at Inquiry--He Invites Charges

London, March 27.—Ministerial transactions in wireless shares gave rise to some sharp exchanges between counsel and Sir Rufus Isaacs, the Attorney-General, at to-day's sitting of the Parliamentary Committee of Inquiry.

Lord Robert Cecil subjected the Attorney-General to such searching questioning that Sir Rufus hotly turned and asked if he were casting imputations on his personal honor and integrity. He added:

"If so, I demand that a charge be plainly formulated. I am entitled to that kind of justice, which is meted out to the commonest criminal."

With a Corrupt Purpose.

Lord Roberts agreed that if should turn out that there was ground for suggesting corruption he ought to put the charge plainly, but he continued:

"There is another charge requiring investigation—namely, whether your conduct has been such that those who did not know you and your character might form an adverse opinion and whether if people did it who were less scrupulous than you are it might not have been done with a corrupt purpose."

The inquiry arose out of the admission of Sir Rufus Isaacs that he had taken 10,000 shares of an American Wireless Company some of which he had disposed of to David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the Master of Elibank, the chief Liberal Whip, at about the time when the British Government was negotiating a huge contract for the establishment of a "wireless Empire chain."

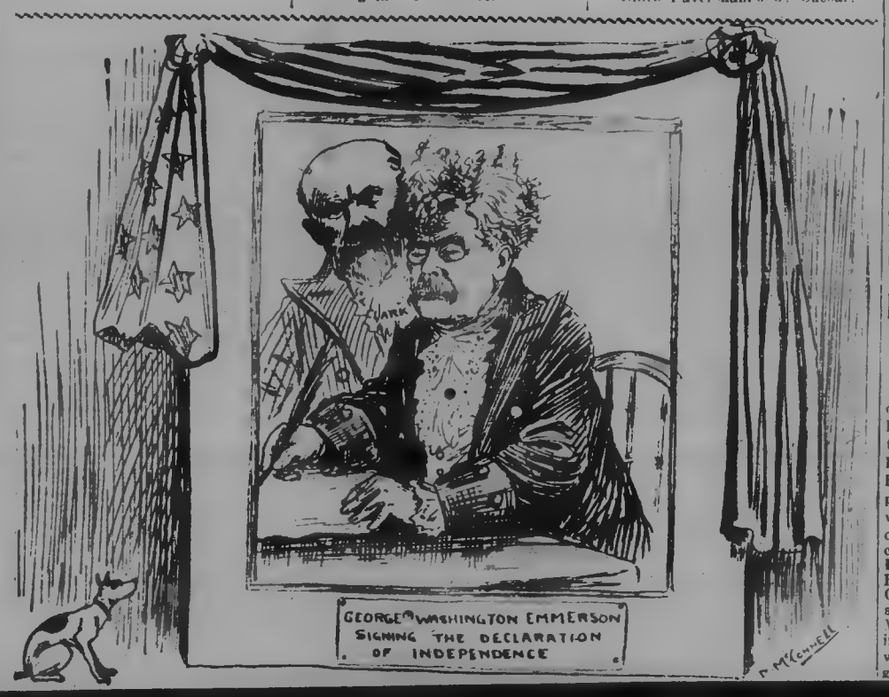
COMMONS UNITE FOR PEACE BEST EXAMPLE TO CANADA

Premier Asquith and Sir Edward Grey Gracefully Accept Co-operation of Opposition for Peace Move

London, March 27.—The extent to which the foreign policy is removed from party conflicts is exemplified in the Commons when Sir Edward Grey and Premier Asquith cordially acknowledged the co-operation of the Opposition in making England's influence for peace supreme in the councils of Europe.

Mr. Asquith said: "There has never been a chapter in our history with so few discordant notes. The government acknowledges the patriotic support which the Opposition is giving."



Simultaneously papers here publish evidence of the continued bickerings between the Canadian parties on an equally vital Empire issue.

It would admittedly be of enormous gain to British prestige if even now Canada's decision on the naval question could be such as to adapt the phrase Premier Asquith used on the Balkan question: "Go forth to all concerned as the considered judgment of the commons speaking with full authority as representative of a united people."

A dramatic feature of the European situation is the fact that after centuries of misgovernment and oppression and bloodshed Turkey for all practical purposes quits Europe by the unanimous assent of the great powers.

REV. W. C. RIDDIFORD BANQUETED LAST NIGHT

Last night a most interesting banquet was served in Coleman's parlors to the local Ministerial Association. The event was a farewell to Rev. W. C. Riddiford of Park street Baptist church, who has accepted a pastorate at London, Ont. The chair was occupied by Rev. Isaac Couch, of the George street Methodist church. Among those present were Revs. Canon Davidson, F. Sawers, R. Pogue, Webb, Keith, Rollins, and Clary. The evening was brought to a comparatively early close as Rev. Mr. Riddiford had two other meetings to attend. Felicitious speeches were made by all present wishing the guest of the evening every success in NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 306 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

EDITORIAL NOTES

...e having granted women the right to vote, some bilious cynic will probably declare that it was done because there are no women there.

...s item informs us that a Perth Amboy man has made his own coffin and lined it with asbestos which indicates that he anticipates a decidedly hot hereafter.

We opine that John Bull would gladly pay a large sum for the services of a pied piper capable of leading the militant suffragets into the deepest part of the English Channel.

After talking almost incessantly on the naval bill for three months, the Obstructionists are crying out for free speech. Verily there is some humor left in these political comedians.

Fraulein von Horst says wealthy American girls marry European noblemen for their manners rather than their titles. Perhaps so, but the trouble is the manner wear off very quickly after the nobleman gets a grip on the bank account.

"Well, there, I won't play in your back yard!" is the prevailing note in the Liberal argument at Ottawa. When Canada's trade is threatened by fears of a general election, should not those Grit dogs in the manger be dealt with, like the Militant suffragettes should, with a good flexible slipper?

Whilst all Canada is being help up by the Liberals over a debate on a real navy, where are the gunboats, bought by the Laurier government, the Niobe and the Rainbow? Have they, as often noted by the Calgary Eye Opener, gone to Gibralter for a supply of booze for the officers or to Cuba for a fresh supply of cigars?

This is the question: Shall we go swiftly to the help of the Empire in its day of extreme need, in the manner definitely outlined by the Admiralty or shall we refuse that help and leave the Empire to its fate while we go about something quite different, which the Admiralty does not want, and which is likely to leave us still unarmed on the Day of Armageddon?? It will not take the people of Canada long to decide between those two propositions.

THE TIMES' OPINION ALSO.

At the annual meeting of the Calgary Liberal Association, Major Duncan Stuart, a brother of Mr. Justice Stuart, and a prominent Liberal, arose and repudiated the Laurier policy. When a resolution was introduced endorsing Sir Wilfrid and his naval policy, Major Stuart arose and said: "I have been Liberal all my life, and have great admiration for Sir Wilfrid, and what he has done for Canada, but we must all admit that even Sir Wilfrid is liable to be wrong sometimes, and I think he is wrong this time."

ITALIANS WANT PUBLIC SCHOOL

A very significant action was taken last week by a deputation of Italians in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. This deputation, supposed to represent some 300 Italian families, appeared before the city council of the "Soo" and asked that a public school be erected in Ward 9. They declared most positively that they would not send their children to the separate schools and they gave as their reason that too much time was spent in religious exercises, and they wanted their children to get their religious instruction in the church, not in the school. The words of the spokesman are worthy of note. He said: "When our children grow up we want them to be able to take positions in banks and commercial houses, and this can never be done when they are taught catechism more than English and arithmetic. We want to be Canadians and worthy members of the Empire, and to do this our children must have the education set down by the public schools. You may think we exaggerate, but I can say that if our children are denied the education they need here there are 300 Italian families who will move to a place where they can get it." All the delegates assured the council that their taxes would be paid to the public school, no matter what the priest may say. The incident is but one of many that indicates very plainly that for many, perhaps for most, of the Italians who come to Canada, the Church of Rome has ceased to be the controlling factor in their lives. They are not Protestants, but they have really ceased to be Roman Catholics. They are in a transition state, and some of them at least are open to the gospel appeal. We fear that as a church we are not doing enough for these people.

A WOMAN'S LOVE.

(Published by Request.)

A sentinel angel sitting high in glory
Heard the shrill wail ring out from Purgatory:
"Have mercy, mighty angel, hear my story!
"I loved—and blind with passionate love, I fell.
Love brought me down to death, and death to hell.
For God is just, and death for sin is well.
"I do not rage against His high decree,
Nor for myself do ask that grace shall be;
But for my love on earth who mourns for me,
"Great Spirit! Let me see my love again
And comfort him one hour, and I were fain
To pay a thousand years of fire and pain.
Then said the pitying angel, "Nay, repent
That wild vow! Look, the dial finger's bent
Down to the last hour of thy punishment!"
But still she wailed, "I pray thee, let me go!
I cannot rise to peace and leave him so,
O, let me soothe him in his bitter woe!"
The brazen gates ground sullenly ajar,
And upward, joyous, like a rising star,
She rose and vanished in the ether far.
But soon adown the dying sunset sailing,
And like a wounded bird her pinion trailing,
She fluttered back, with broken-hearted wailing.
She sobbed, "I found him by the summer sea
Reclined, his head upon a maiden's knee—
She curled his hair and kissed him. Woe to me!"
She wept, "Now let my punishment begin!
I have been fond and foolish. Let me in
To expiate my sorrow and my sin."
The angel answered, "Nay, sad soul, go higher!
To be deceived in your true heart's desire
Was bitterer than a thousand years of fire!"

THE SITUATION AT OTTAWA.

Editor Morning Times:

Sir,—Conservative members are amused over the reports sent out by the Liberal newspapers that the Opposition intend to force the Government to the country. I see by the papers that one Conservative member suggests that the following questions be placed on the order paper:

1. Has the Government been advised if the Opposition intend to bring on the general election?
2. If not, why not?
3. If so, has the Government been advised as to the date that the Opposition has decided upon?
4. Is there any constitutional authority for the Opposition bringing on a general election without informing the Government about it?
5. Will the Opposition allow settlers in Alberta and Saskatchewan to vote at this election even if they are British subjects?

Anti-Humbug.

EASIEST AND CHEAPEST WAY

Editor Morning Times:

Sir, I should think the easiest and cheapest way for the city to acquire a municipal power and lighting plant would be to accept the Seymour Power Co.'s proposition. They offer the Otonabee Power Co.'s generating and distributing plants at the Hydro-Electric Commissioners of valuation, which could be in operation as a city-owner system in a month or two. The company would also agree not to cut Hydro-Electric rates. If the city's private bill passes Legislature in its present bill passes Legislature in its present form and the Peterborough Light & Power Co. are legislated out of business, I should think the company would combat the measure for all they are worth, and use every available means to get heavy damages for business expropriated. This might mean expensive litigation, resulting in delay beyond the time citizens expect to have a municipal plant in operation.

DIXIE SUFFRAGISTS SEE NEW PROBLEM

Fear Negresses Might be Allowed Ballot Under General Amendment

New Orleans, Mar. 28.—A communication from the National Women's Suffrage Procession Committee which was read in Gibson Hall Saturday, requested that any further testimony members of the Era Club might have that would shed light on the scandal arising from the suffrage parade of March 3, be forwarded to Miss Alice Hall. It was also urged in this letter that the individual members write to President Wilson and to their representatives in Congress.

The opening of this Washington parade question brought on a lively discussion in the club with regard to the proposed seventeenth amendment to the Federal Constitution. Miss Kate Gordon pointed out the complications that would arise as a result of federal indorsement of equal suffraze, because of the negro woman.

Miss Gordon told the club members that the question is a big one, and that the women have to face it now. She was prepared with a comprehensive grasp of the situation and she explained briefly the difficulties that lie in the path of equal suffrage in the South. Several suffragets, commenting on Miss Gordon's speech, said that they wanted the ballot at all hazards, and that they were willing to trust to the future for any complications that might arise. This sentiment was roundly applauded.

Tamper With Lock and Force Congregation to Postpone Communion Service.

Baton, Rouge, La., March 28.—Several small articles of little value were stolen from St. James Episcopal Church Wednesday night and the thieves, in an effort to get into the safe in the sacristy, so damaged the lock that Rev. J. Gilmer Buskie was unable to operate it, and as a result there was no communion service on Thursday morning, the communion waters having been deposited in the safe with the chalice.

DEPOT FOR LILLOOET

Site Selected by Citizens and P. G. E. Engineer.

Lillooet, March 1.—The people of Lillooet are much elated as a result of an arrangement with the Pacific Great Eastern Railway respecting the location of a station for this town. A committee of the citizens, accompanied by Chief Engineer Calaghan of the railway, went over the survey on Thursday and selected an ideal spot for a depot a few minutes' distance from the centre of the town. This arrangement has created a feeling of confidence and enthusiasm, and the erection of new buildings is progressing vigorously. There can now be no doubt as to the future of Lillooet and throughout the community there is a feeling of the utmost satisfaction.

OBLIGED TO WASH HER HUBBY'S FACE

New York, March 28.—That her husband was so lazy it was impossible to live with him longer and that he had been attentive to a New ark girl was asserted by Mrs. Jessie Wood of East Eighteenth street, Paterson, N.J., when she testified in her suit for divorce before Vice-Chancellor Stevenson in Jersey City.

"We were married on Sept. 22, 1902," Mrs. Wood said, "and for the next nine months lived in Rutherford. Immediately after the marriage my husband developed laziness. He hung about the house day and night and never did a lick of work. "Why, he got so bad he absolutely refused to wash his own face and hands or dress himself. I had to do these things for him. I got tired of that and went back to Paterson to live.

CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS LIMITED

No Personal Liability.

Incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act and subject to Part XI thereof.

Capital Divided into 1,000,000 Shares at $1.00 Par Value

600,000 SHARES IN THE TREASURY

You Can Buy This Stock Today at 50 Cents Per Share

Only a small amount is offered, to enable the Company to raise sufficient funds to install a stamp mill and do further development work.

43 Assays Average Over $70 Per Ton

The Company own four claims of forty acres each, in the Pain Killer Lake District, a Gold Camp of great promise. The property is located nine miles from the railway station at Matheson, with a good winter road.

Equipment: 3 drill compressors, hoist, 45-horsepower boiler, 2 drills, blacksmith's shop and all necessary tools and appliances, sleeping and eating camp to accommodate twenty men, stabling for five horses, buildings for compressor and boiler house; all these have been paid for, and the only debts the Company have are practically current accounts.

VEINS: Eight veins have been located, nearly all carrying free gold. On L. 1891, there is a dyke averaging 15 feet wide, running right across the claim. Assays were made from this averaging $30.90. Two assays were taken from Claim No. 16353¼, giving $5562.00 per ton and $1326.00 in Gold and $6.00 in Silver respectively. The first assay was made by THE CANADA METAL CO., Ltd., of Toronto, and the second by Milton Hersey Co., Limited, of Montreal. None of the samples taken were picked. The shaft is down about forty feet and between seventeen feet and forty, forty-three assays were made, averaging $71.40 per ton.

It is intended to sink the shaft to the seventy-five foot level, which will make the bottom of the shaft on a level with where the $5562.00 and $1326.00 sample was taken from. The vein on the surface of this shaft was two inches and has gradually widened to about thirty. The properties are heavily timbered and adjoining the lake; have plenty of water for mining purposes.

Development work has demonstrated the property to be of such value that the directors have decided to order a five stamp mill at once. A small amount of stock is offered to the public at fifty cents a share, to furnish funds for future development work, and to install the mill. Twenty men are employed on the property and working steadily. A thousand tons of ore are ready for the mill that will average over $50.00 Gold to the ton, and enough ore is blocked out that will keep the mill running for several months.

THE CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS LIMITED, are well known among mining men. We advise the immediate purchase for an early advance. Money does not have to be spent in hunting for the ore, as they have plenty, and all they require is a mill to stamp out the Gold and return dividends to the stockholders.

In the shaft forty-three assays were made from the ore taken out between 17 and 40 feet, and the averages ran over $70 per ton. The price of this stock will shortly advance. There is a large body of ore ready to treat, which will average $50.00 per ton, and enough ore to keep a stamp mill running for some time. No cash was asked for the property, and the vendors accepted stock in payment, thus showing their faith in the properties.

Assay papers can be seen at this office, and samples of ore, also the button produced from the assay made by The Canada Metal Co., Limited, taken off Claim No. 16,353¼, and showing $5562 per ton. Several assays were made by J. Wearing, Toronto, giving values as high as $675.50 per ton, $628.00, $495.00, $416.00, $292.00 and $185.50.

Just as the great silver camp of Cobalt and the Porcupine Gold Camp have come into prominence, so will the Pain Killer Lake district prove to be a great gold camp.

The following Telegram was received from the Mines last week:

To H. C. CROW,

President Cartwright Gold Fields, Limited, care The Canada Metal Company, Limited, of Toronto.

Vein is improving. We are making trial shipment to Campbell & Deyell at Cobalt to-day for them to treat, so that we can see how it runs. It shows free gold in every piece of quartz, and pans excellent. Have shipped you fifty pounds by express to-day.

H. V. CARTWRIGHT.

The trial shipment of ore made by this Company gives returns of

$38.10 PER TON GOLD

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell at Cobalt. This again proves the value of the property. $6.00 ore will pay to mill. Samples can be seen at our office, assay papers, etc. We invite you to call.

DISOBEYED PARENTS TO WIN WORLD'S TITLE

Jackson Who Won 1,500 Metre Race at Olympiad Had to Run Away From Home

A. N. S. Jackson, the young English runner who captured the 1,500 metre event at Stockholm, figured on John Bull's Olympic team against the wishes of his parents, in fact he literally ran away from home to join the team, after having been selected for a place because of his splendid showing in the trials. Jackson's father is very wealthy, and even now that his son is a world's champion, objects strongly to the young man's continued efforts on the cinder path.

As far back as two years ago, when Jackson took up a course at Oxford, his parents were against his participation in athletics.

The Englishman is a truly remarkable runner. Students of athletics in England had little confidence in his ability to trim speed merchants like John Paul Jones, Abel Kiviat and Mel Sheppard. Jackson's victory is made all the more remarkable when you consider that 300 yards from the finish he was running in fifth position with only one chance in a thousand of winning.

Jackson is one of the best English stock. He is a clean liver, and for his short career in the game has done remarkable work. Twenty years old, tall and lithe, he is bound to duplicate the wonderful run he showed in the Swedish stadium.

Last March he effected a surprise on the cross-country by winning the mile event at a meeting between Oxford and Cambridge. The time was good and they say he could have done better had he been pushed harder. He is an example of what can be expected of a youth who pays strict attention to his trainer.

ROME GRANTED PETITION

Canadians to Hold Chief Offices in Great Teaching Order in Quebec

The agitation among the members of the Christian Brothers in Quebec Province for a return to the system under which the chief places in the Canadian division of the Order were filled by the appointment of brothers either born in Canada or with long Canadian experience, seems to have borne fruit.

Much dissatisfaction existed for some time, over the appointment of French and Belgian members to many of the important positions in Canadian houses.

So keenly did certain sections of the Canadian brotherhood feel about the matter that Rome was petitioned, and certain changes have now been announced.

The most important of these changes was that by which the Rev. Brother Regis, was re-called to the Mother House in Belgium. His successor the Rev. Brother Sigisbert was formerly director of St. Lawrence, St. James and St. Patrick's schools, Montreal, and of the Training College at Maisonneuve. He is a Canadian by birth, a noted educationalist, as well as a skilled musician. Brother Sigisbert was the choice of the Canadian members of the order.

TURFMAN BEGINS ANEW

Racing King Now Working for a Living—Fortune Gone

Edward Corrigan, former king of the American turf, has gone back to Kansas City to start life over again where he left it more than thirty years ago. With what little he could save from the wreck of his fortune after the final crash came three years ago, the former millionaire horseman has leased a few acres of land near the 'Frisco tracks at Kansas, set up a stone crusher and has settled down to devote the rest of his life to leveling the limestone cliffs—the same sort of work he was doing as a railroad contractor before taking up the racing game. The former "master of Hawthorne" now goes out to his little quarry every morning carrying the dinner pail, quite as contented, apparently, as though he had never been the most imposing figure on the world's greatest paddocks.

YACHTS AND YACHTING

Most of the Boats Registered by Lloyds Are on Power List

The total number of yachts owned in Canada, the United States and the West Indies, as shown by Lloyds Register for this year is 3,533, about 60 per cent. of which are in the power division of the fleet. The list, of course, does not include the open launches, whose numbers are at best a matter of guess.

The changes from last year are for the most part made up of the dropping of a number of the older sailing yachts, both small and large, and the addition of several sizes of gasoline cruisers, notably the handy and convenient little raised deck launch of 28 to 35 feet length. The additions of the sailing division of the fleet are comparatively unimportant, and the conversion of sailing yachts to auxiliaries which went on so rapidly several years ago is less marked, for the reason that most of the outclassed sailing yachts have been already converted, and the older ones, dating from the early Burgess era, about 1895, are being sold for fishing or for breaking up.

The club list in the register now includes 578 clubs and 39 associations and miscellaneous organizations. These clubs are distributed along the Atlantic coast from Cape Breton Nova Scotia, to Jamaica; in the West Indies; inland they cover every lake and river of any importance, and on the Pacific coast they form a continuous chain from San Diego, at the southern extremity of California, to Nelson, British Columbia, close to the Alaska border.

HAD BAD SORE FOUR YEARS

ZAM-BUK HAS HEALED IT!

Mrs. Wilson, 116 Wickson Ave., Toronto, says: "About four years ago a sore spot appeared on the right side of my face. This spot increased in size until it became about half an inch in diameter and very painful. I went to a doctor, but the ointment he gave me did not have any good effect. The sore continued to discharge freely, and was most painful. I had it cauterized, tried poultices and all kinds of salves, but it was no good, and I continued to suffer from it for four years!

"A sample of Zam-Buk was one day given to me, and I used it. Although the quantity was so small, it seemed to do me some good, so I purchased a further supply.

"Each box did me more and more good, and, to my delight, before I had been using Zam-Buk three weeks, I saw that it was going to heal the sore. In less than a month it was healed!

"I know a lady in the east of the city, whose husband suffered for years with an open sore on his leg. On my recommendation, Zam-Buk was tried in that case. The other day, when I saw her, she told me that it had healed the sore completely.

"My daughter, who lives in Lethbridge, Alta., has also used Zam-Buk with the same satisfactory result. I think it is, beyond all doubt, the finest healing balm known."

Such is the opinion of all persons who have really tried Zam-Buk. It is a sure cure for eczema, piles, abscesses, ulcers, scalp sores, ringworm, cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. In case of skin disease use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

If you have any stomach distress at all you will certainly be interested in the following experience which is told by Mr. Edward Dawkins:

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salt or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour and always after eating there was pain and fullness and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter I am sure, proves it."

Refuse a substitute. Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c. per box or five for $1.00 at all druggists and storekeepers, or post paid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

OUR GREAT BUFFALO HERD

The Old Monarchs of the Plains Thrive in Captivity

The five hundred buffalo purchased by the Canadian Government from Michael Pablo of Montana has increased prodigiously and now numbers over fourteen hundred animals, which is by far the largest collection anywhere in the world. Great care is being taken to weed out the cross-breds and to keep the strain pure.

Whether it dies of old age or is killed or lives on to multiply its kind, a buffalo is a first class investment. Dead it is worth $500 for its head and hide. Killed it is worth the same amount of money plus forty cents a pound for its meat, which is esteemed a great delicacy by gourmands. Buffalo roast makes delicious Christmas fare for people who can afford it, and between whiles may figure as a piece de resistance at banquets of the New York Canadian Club and similar gatherings. Alive, the buffalo is worth $5,000, at which price every zoo Europe and the two Americas has given orders.

Fifty years ago the buffalo ranged freely over the whole north-western plateau. The Canadian prairies still show frequent signs of him in the shape of old buffalo wallows, and at one place near Medicine Hat, at the foot of a cut bank, some two hundred feet high, is a great heap of buffalo bones which marks the spot where the Indians made one of their cruel drives. But nowadays the buffalo is a limited monarch. Buffalo Park, near Wainwright, Alberta, where the big herd is located, is an enclosure twenty miles square, with a high wire fence around it. Inside the fence the buffalo finds the old familiar scenery of his glorious past—the rolling prairie, the poplar bluffs, the knolls and chaparalle, the sloughs, and wallows, but not the old excitement of white men and Indians on slaughter bent. A visitor who tries to drive across the reservation in a buggy a buffalo bull will charge savagely, but a man on horseback the buffalo rather welcomes, probably because it reminds him of old times. On the whole, civilization has made the buffalo a little slack. Instead of dying on the prairie when the thermometer is sixty below zero, and the snow too deep for him to rustle grass for himself, he will come meekly into the station and eat baled hay out of the feed racks.

Magdalen College Deer

Magdalen, where the Prince of Wales is a student, is the only college in the world that possesses a deer park. How or when the fallow deer were introduced into the Grove nobody quite knows. Some imaginative people consider them to be descendants of the original wild deer that roamed the wastes and forests by which Oxford was formerly surrounded. They have certainly been there for at least two centuries, because they are mentioned in the college accounts about the beginning of the eighteenth century. These deer are endowed with iron constitutions and have thrived on a diet of mustard sandwiches, and similar delicacies with which they were regaled, not by the present undergraduates, but by the playful "young barbarians" of bygone generations.

Discussing the life work of the late General Booth, Commander Rees, the highest officer of the Salvation Army in Canada stated that the Army was officially started in the Dominion at Toronto in 1882 by a party of officers from New York. According to the latest figures there are 465 branches in Canada, 950 officers; 4,052 local officers; 1,306 bandsmen; 27 social institutions, and 42 day schools.

In one year as many as 44,000 immigrants have passed through the Army's hands in this country.

General's Childhood

Born in old-fashioned Sneiton, a suburb of Nottingham, on the 10th day of April, 1829, William Booth rambled as a boy among the Ruddington Hills and swam in the shimmering waters of the Trent. The house of his nativity still stands, but the neighborhood is greatly changed, as is the England of that day.

His boyhood was spent during one of the darkest periods of England's history, the nation was in the midst of the depression which followed the Napoleonic wars. Ignorance, intemperance, and disease had not yet been confronted by an enlightened public opinion; the dawn had not arrived, and in the darkness destiny was preparing one who would some day stand head and shoulders above his fellows in the amelioration of his race.

Physical Force Chartist

Early in life he was compelled to go out in the world and earn his own living, and the poverty and misery which he saw on every side filled him with a spirit of passionate revolt against constituted authority, and resulted in him becoming a physical force Chartist.

In 1848, Rev. Samuel Dunn, of Connexion, London, wanted the promising young layman to offer himself as a candidate for the Methodist ministry, and at last he consented to see the doctor for the necessary examination. The result was very discouraging; this gentleman promised the prospective preacher a lifetime of twelve months in such a career.

For several years he preached during the evenings, working during the day. When 25 years old he was made a local preacher. For two and a half years he was a traveling Methodist evangelist, visiting some of the principal towns of England. His success was so great that Conference reappointed him to regular circuit pastorates, much to his regret, and as he felt in violation of a very solemn arrangement.

After he had been traveling evangelist for nearly twelve months, he married Miss Mumford. Four years of submission to regular circuit work was sufficient for them. So in 1861 they left the Conference in order that they might devote their lives to evangelical work and the alleviation of the miserable lot of the outcast and poverty-striken. They immediately proceeded to Cornwall, and after being instrumental in the conversion of 7,000 souls there, settled down in Whitechapel, London, a locality notorious for its vice and misery.

Organized Army in 1875

He commenced work at Mile End Waste on July 5, 1865, and in spite of much opposition and persecution, the Salvation Army was organized ten years later. Denunciations hailed the work on all sides. The newspapers had all sorts of fanciful otoriet about the General and his family feathering their own nests, and by and by running away. But in spite of everything the work prospered. Mrs. Booth was her husband's mainstay during all the period of persecution, and in fact was his chief advisor even up to the time of her death in 1891.

The Army has branches in Scotland, Ireland, Wales, the United States, Canada, Newfoundland, France, Belgium, Italy, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Japan, India, Ceylon, Australia and New Zealand, Java, South Africa, West Africa, Barbadoes, South America, Jamaica and Bermuda, in short to almost every country in the world. In 1886 the General made the first of five visits to Canada.

SIR CHAS. FITZPATRICK
Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada.

BY HIS FIRST WIFE

A certain New Brunswick clergyman had occasion to visit the Provincial Asylum in the city of St. John. Passing through one of the wards, he was accosted by a patient, an individual who could hardly lay claim to any but the most mundane cast of countenance, who gravely said to him: "I am St. Peter."

The reverend visitor expressed his gratification at meeting so famous a character, and passed on presently to another ward. On returning, a few minutes later, he was again stopped by his piously inclined friend who surprised him by remarking, "I am St. Paul."

"But," exclaimed the clergyman, "you told me a minute ago that you were St. Peter."

"Ah, yes," explained the man, "but that was by my first wife."

Polecat Captured

A polecat was captured at Altmawr, Breconshire, Wales. This rare animal is better known in the county by its Welsh name, "Ffwibart." The marincat, which differs very much from the polecat, is supposed to visit the Henallt Wood, in the vicinity, occasionally.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a [illegible] where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from [illegible] lodger.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes [illegible] to call on [illegible] and [illegible] pretends [illegible] fractions of [illegible] finding [illegible] the [illegible] found [illegible] next morning [illegible] boy is found [illegible]

CHAPTER VI.—[illegible] in his [illegible] of the night.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill [illegible] of the shock. The third letter [illegible] seriously on Cameron's sick [illegible] direct threat against [illegible] Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron [illegible] was empty. He tells Evelyn [illegible] and plans to take Cameron [illegible] trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X.—Johnson is allowed to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature, who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

"It was impressively significant," I maintained, "even if it was only a coincidence. Incidentally it convinced me that nothing escaped Mr. Yup's observation. I had no intention of referring to my discovery. I chose rather to have him think I had not noticed the figure the child was painting. But my choice was not to be gratified. He knew that I had seen and noticed it; and so, to relieve the situation, he frankly directed my attention to the symbol, explaining that what I had regarded as mysterious was most commonplace. 'It is one of the first things that Chinese babies learn to draw,' he went on, 'it is like the pothook and hanger of the American primary schools. First they draw houses, then ships, then men; and the houses, the ships and the men are all alike, just as are your A's, your B's, and your C's. 'And when signed to a letter,' I queried, 'what does your ship stand for?' He shrugged his lean shoulders in a manner almost Gallic. 'Who shall say?' he returned."

"And do you believe the pothook and hanger explanation?" Evelyn asked, pointedly. It was her way to probe at once to the heart of a matter.

"I can't say that I am altogether convinced," I answered, non-committally. "In spite of Mow's enthusiastic encomium, I was not very favorably impressed by Yup Sing. His wall of reserve is too high and too thick. It is neither scalable nor penetrable. And yet he stands well, I believe, in the community."

We sat in the music room, where a fire of drift wood wove a woof of green and violet strands through the red warp of the blaze, for the weather had turned chill. Evelyn wore a clinging gown of black panne velvet, with purple orchids at her waist. It had a wonderfully mature effect for one so young as she, but it was not unbecoming. Indeed it effectively accentuated the deep raw gold tints of her hair and added to the transparency of her unwonted pallor. I was marvelling once again over her outwardly brave up-bearing in spite of the constant anxiety of which pallid cheeks were the only visible sign, when she said:

"I was sure we should hear from Captain MacLeod today.

"He has probably met with rough weather," I consoled. "It isn't child's play rounding Point Judith at this season, you know."

"Rough weather or not," she insisted, "he must have reached Gloucester by now. And if he found Peter Johnson, or if he didn't, he was to telephone, you remember."

"Gloucester is something of a place," I explained, adopting the vernacular. "It includes no less than eight villages and five thousand men are engaged there in the fishing industry. MacLeod can't be expected to learn in five minutes whether a man named Peter Johnson is one of the five thousand."

"But the whole community would know if one of their number had such an experience as he just passed through." And for this argument I had no answer ready.

Fortunately, however, none was required of me, for at that moment steps were audible crossing the hall, and when our eyes turned downward they encountered the dapper figure of Louis, Cameron's French valet, halting respectfully on the threshold.

"Mademoiselle," he said, bowing, "mais voici des lettres qui jai trouve." And we saw, then, that he carried a tin despatch box.

Evelyn directed him to place it upon the table by which she sat. It seemed that she had not given over the idea that the letters for which we had searched so diligently on Sunday were somewhere in the house, and had directed Louis to bring to her [illegible] that [illegible] upon.

He had found the despatch box, he told us, [illegible] some sel-dom employed volumes in the library, and thinking it might contain that of which Miss Grayson was in quest, had foced the lock, to discover several carefully-tied packets of letters.

I wish I could give even a half adequate idea of the way she thanked Louis. It would add so much to a realizing sense of her sweetness without detracting at all from the enviable agement of her dignity. No one could have heard her "bon garcon" and not have felt impelled to consecrate his endeavors henceforth and forevermore to her service. As for Louis his respectful homage and fidelity were almost pagan. I verily believe he would willingly have suffered martyrdom to serve her.

As he withdrew we fell avidly upon the contents of the box, yet with small hope of finding what we sought; for the letters it contained were all, apparently, of distant date; letters, for the most part, of a private, personal nature, carefully assorted, and arranged in red-taped or elastic-banded bundles.

It was no mere idle curiosity which impelled us to read many of them. We were in a position which may best be described as anomalous. Though Cameron was my dearest friend I knew little of his life prior to our meeting, and Evelyn, his niece and ward, was scarcely less uninformed than myself. In the letters just brought to light there might, we decided, be found some clue of incalculable service in the task now before us. And so we untied the tapes and stripped off the bands and set ourselves to careful painstaking examination.

Seldom have I engaged in a labor so deadly uninteresting at one moment and so keenly engrossing at the next. There was correspondence here which meant nothing to us whatever, and there was correspondence which threw a search-light upon portions of Cameron's career, baring good deeds and follies alike, without discrimination.

It was only natural, I suppose, that we should dig up a romance—a gem of luster shining amidst dun, sordid surroundings. Evelyn and I came upon two of its facets, simultaneously, and paused in our work to question its disposal. It seemed to us a holy thing, too sacred for a stranger touch, and, even at the risk of passing over what might prove our one agent of revelation, we folded it away again with a sense of guilt at having dared to lift even the corner of the veil.

For a full hour I had scanned one letter after another in absorbed intentness, but with small profit. Evelyn, across the table, had been quite as busy. Rarely had we interrupted our employment with exchange of words. But now the writing which I held provoked exclamation.

"Addison!" I cried, so sharply cutting the silence that the girl started. "Addison! Did you ever hear of him?"

She gestured a negative. Not that I remember, she qualified. Why?"

"Because we must find him," I declared, a little excitedly, I imagine; for the letter seemed wonderfully important.

Instantly she was all alert.

"What is it?" she asked, springing up and coming to my side. "What have you found?"

"Look!" I commanded, the sheet of paper in one upraised hand, a finger of my other hand pointing to a passage. "Look! In 1903, your uncle Robert was in Peking; and yet he gave me his word that he had never visited China."

Resting an arm on my shoulder and bending forward she read for herself. "Just to think! We were in Peking together and neither of us was aware of it until too late! What a foregathering we missed! Even five minutes' chat would have been something; but I no sooner saw you, than the crowd on Legation street swallowed you up."

"Have you read it all?"

"Not to the end," I told her, "just the beginning and the signature. Come," I added, "we'll read it from first to last, together." And I turned back the page.

It was written from Cairo, and bore date of December 7, 1903.

"My dear Cameron," it began, "I am wondering whether you are back in New York again. However, you will probably be there for Christmas and therefore this letter will not long await you. We have been making a rather leisurely tour of the east. Arrived here two days ago and shall remain until some time in January."

The writer then gave a general outline of his travels. "You will probably be surprised to learn that once you and I passed each other as ships in the night, save only that we did not even speak each other in passing," he went on. "It was my last day—indeed my last hour—in northern China. Otherwise I should have made search for you. Just to think! We were in Peking together, and neither of us was aware of it until too late. What a foregathering we missed! Even five minutes' chat would have been something; but I no sooner saw you, than the crowd on Legation street swallowed you up. Half an hour later I was on the train for Tien-tsin."

The rest of the letter was rather confusingly personal in its references, to mutual friends and interests. It was signed: "Always with warm regard, Addison."

"Do you suppose that is his first name or his last?" Evelyn asked me as we came to it.

"I refuse to suppose," I returned, smiling. "It's an even chance. What is more to the point is, how long has Louis been your uncle's valet?"

"Several years."

"Several is indefinite. Too indefinite. Too indefinite. Suppose we have him in here and ad out exactly. Possibly he knows Mr. Addison."

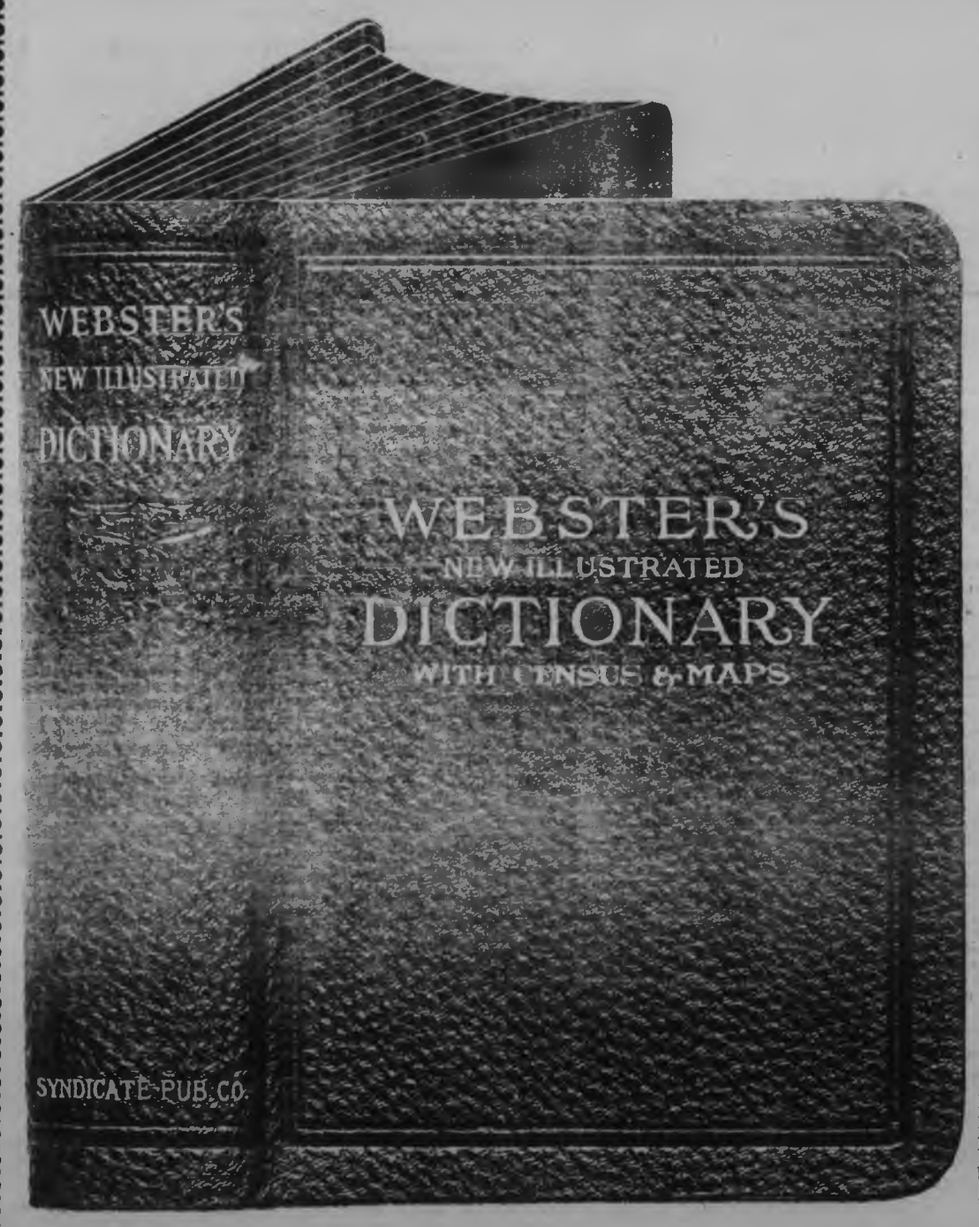
When Louis came, however, he knew nothing. He had never heard of a Mr. Addison or of a Mr. Addison Something, in all the three years and eight months of his service with Mr. Cameron. So Evelyn thanked him once more in her own gracious way and we continued our work, directing our efforts especially now to unearthing further Addison-signed letters which might prove enlightening.

"Why should Uncle Robert tell you he had never been in China?" Evelyn asked me, looking up suddenly and dropping to her lap the letter she was at that moment examining. "I can't understand that."

"Nor I," I admitted. "If I had asked him out of idle curiosity he would have been justified perhaps in misleading me; but he must have known that it was in his interest I made the inquiry."

For just a moment she sat in silence, her narrowed gaze on the glowing embers in the fireplace. Then she turned to me again.

"Do you think, Philip, it was because he had something to hide?" she asked, seriously. "Something he was ashamed of and feared might become known?"



Instantly I sprang to my friend's defense.

"No," I assured her, with emphasis. "No, Evelyn. Whatever his motive was, I am satisfied it had no dishonorable basis. If he told me a deliberate falsehood it was not to spare himself. Possibly—yes, probably, it was to shield others."

Baby's Body Found at Auburn.

As William Hartley, superintendent at Auburn Mills was crossing the wooden bridge at Auburn, with Maurice O'Hern, gatekeeper at the Mills, he saw the naked body of a new born babe floating in the river. They brought the body ashore and notified the Police Department. The officers arranged for the body to be taken to Comstock's undertaking establishment. It was apparent that the body had been in the water for several weeks. Coroner Greer decided that no results would attend an inquest and issued an order for burial.

Another Victim to Our Pavements.

It seems the irony of fate that a public official of the city should break a leg on the icy pavements of Peterborough. Mr. Peter Thompson the plumbing inspector, whilst on his way home, fell and fractured his leg above the knee. Dr. Frederick was in attendance. This is his second accident to the same leg. Some years ago, Mr. Thompson fell from a building and so severe was the fracture below the knee that part of the limb had to be amputated. Mr. Thompson will have the sympathy of many friends

Trent Canal Clippings.

Hastings Star: The signs of spring activity on our waterfront are commencing to appear and inside a couple of weeks it is likely that canal operations will be started for the season. The dredges will likely work below the dam this season mostly, as the great bulk of the work is yet to be done between here and the Falls, as well as some construction work at Trent Bridge. We understand that the concrete foundations for the Seymour Company's power house at Healey Falls has been condemned on account of the seepage from the river getting through and washing out part of the cement before it was set in the forms.

A French-Canadian's Age.

Yesterday a number of local French Canadians were talking at the corner of George and Charlotte streets. They became excited, and, with the habits of their ancestors, shoulders were shrugged and hands used to emphasize remarks. A Times reporter noticing their excited conversation, "butted in." The talk was the estimated age of Mr. Delphis Guerin, of the Boundary Line, near Chamberlain Street. Guesses were made from 49 to 62 years of age. The Times man respectfully suggested that Mr. Guerin, who was present might be between 65 and 70 years of age. However it was shown that this sturdy descendent of a sturdy French-Canadian stock, was 89 years of age yesterday.

Edward Tighe Had Trouble.

Edward Tighe seems to have had his own troubles a week ago Thursday. Edward is a G.T.R. gateman at Reid street. Several men came up the track and raised herry mell or trouble with him. They called him names and even threw lumps of that expensive commodity called "coal," at him. He kept the coal so thrown. On the afternoon of Good Friday, Joseph Thornton and Charles Miller came to the gatehouse. Thornton put his fist through a window. Dan McNea also joined in the assault on the peace, person and dignity of Edward, who, however, like a knight so bold, in days of old broke a lance, or rather a flag stick over the heads of these renegate knights, renegate, because they broke the ethics of the tournament by calling Edward bad names. Tighe could not, in answer to Mr. F. D. Kerr, acting for the defendants, explain the attack. The trio were bound over to keep the peace in the sum of $100 each.

Receding Flood Allows Looters Chance to Rifle House Valuables

Alarming Reports Reach Headquarters of Relief Organization at Dayton--Say Loss of Life Was Exaggerated

Piqua Casualty List Now Put at Twenty, Not Over Five Hundred--New York State Suffers

Dayton, Mar. 28.—The flood situation in Dayton yesterday is this:

Previous estimates of the number drowned are greatly exaggerated.

The property loss from fire will not exceed a million and a half dollars.

The damage caused to mercantile houses, factories and residences will run anywhere from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

The water has receded from the business section of the city and from a large portion of the residence section.

Residents in portions still inundated are being taken to sections not affected by the flood.

There is no lack of food. The telephone systems are being restored.

There is much suffering from cold, but all available fuel has been appropriated and there is prospect of immediate relief. So far there has been no epidemic of sickness.

South Dayton, O., Mar. 28.—Alarming reports that looters well armed were in the district from which waters had partly receded, have reached the headquarters of the emergency committee. Militia are preparing an expedition to quell disorders.

Loss of Life Exaggerated.

Chicago, March 28.—Revised estimates which came in to-day from the flooded districts of Ohio and Indiana showed that reports of loss of life in many cities and towns had been exaggerated.

The greatest anxiety still centred about Dayton, where an accurate estimate of the number of victims of the flood continued to be an impossibility.

The death tolls promise to be much less heavy at Solumbus, Ohio, than first reports from the western part of that city indicated.

In the parts of Dayton which have been explored by a motor boat, the death list has been greatly reduced from first estimates, and until the number of victims in the north section of the city is found to be large, the dead in the entire city may not number more than 200.

MYSTERY OVER C. N. R. REQUEST

Whether It Is a Loan or a Subsidy Is Not Yet Clear.

Ottawa, March 28th.—There seems to be a good deal of mystery over the stories which have been floating around during the past few days that Mackenzie and Mann have been asking the Government for a forty million dollar loan. Well posted men at the capital who think they know it, claim the story is correct, but a denial is given by the Government. It is intimated that the C.N.R. is not asking for anything more than the ordinary subsidies.

However, there is no doubt that there have been negotiations of some character, as prominent C.N.R. men, as well as Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, have recently been at the capital in conference with the Government.

BRILLIANT MASQUERADE BALL AT THE LOCAL ARMOURIES

Over Three Hundred Guests of Company D, 57th Regiment Enjoy One of The Most Brilliant Functions Ever Held in Peterborough

Last night the local Armouries was a scene of gaiety and beauty. The occasion was a masquerade ball given by Co. D. of the 57th Regiment. The dancing which began about 9 o'clock was held in the dance hall. This big room, with its fine hardwood floor, well waxed, was decorated with flags of all nations. One set of flags spelled out the word "welcome." On the walls were shields with No. 4 Company's emblem.

As the guests arrived they were met by the Reception Committee consisting of Lieut. Gemmell, Lieut. Cameron, Col. Sergt. Waterman, Corp. Target and Sergt. Mitchell. Every arrangement had been made for disposing of the wraps of the more than 300 guests present.

The big dance hall, with Tucker's Orchestra very efficiently supplying the music, presented one of the most brilliant scenes ever witnessed in Peterborough. As the dreamy measures of the waltz resounded, Kings danced with Copetuas, curate's arms encircled the trim waists of ladies of the stage, warriors bold tripped it with Amazons and boys of the Home Brigade danced with the blushing girlhood of Peterborough.

At midnight supper was served in the Recreation Room. This was beautifully embellished with flags and bunting. A table on the platform was reserved for the officers. Mr. Thos. Hooper catered in his usual satisfactory style. The dancing was continued until an early hour in the morning.

The Guests.

Among the invited guests, with their respective ladies, were:

STREET PAVING

Peterborough's Main Thoroughfares Should Be Modernized This Year —An Economical Policy.

It is to be hoped that the city council will not be so depressed over the increased tax rate as to neglect to pave some of our streets this year. Chambers street was cement paved last fall as an experiment, it was said, and anyone who has seen the road after a winter's test must admit that the experiment was a success. Frost has had no effect upon the work, and what was once a shamfully dirty lane, now puts even George street to blush. Alderman Buller, chairman of our Board of Works, rightfully contends that Chambers street now offers the only decent roadway in Peterborough, and his decision that the business portions of George and Charlotte streets should be similarly treated this year, will probably be endorsed by council and citizens in general. Street paving is a permanent work of an economic nature in the long run, and the policy of laying dirt on our streets and scraping it off again in the shape of mud is an expensive one, which considerably augments the appropriations needed by each year's Board of Works.

A NEW LAND MARK.

In the History of Peterborough's Choral Work is the "Messiah."

The definite announcement that Handel's famous oratorio and master piece, the "Messiah," will be presented in Peterborough on April 30th, for the first time in the city's history, constitutes a new land-mark in the history of choral work here. Nearly all of the church choirs of this city are represented in the chorus of St. George's Choral Society who are to be congratulated on their enterprise in undertaking a task of such magnitude as the "Messiah," which ranks first of all oratorios ever written. It is interesting to recall that Handel wrote the "Messiah" score in three weeks, and it was first produced in Dublin, Ireland. A year later, London, England first heard it and since then it has ranked as the favorite choral work with the British people. Mr. R. J. Devey is to conduct this performance of the "Messiah" in Peterborough, making the fourth musical work of this nature he has prepared in the past seven years, the others being Stainer's "Crucifixion," (13 presentations), Stainer's "Daughter of Jairus" (twice), and Mendelssohn's "Come Let Us Sing." In opera Mr. Devey has presented the "Mikado" (four performances), and the "Geisha" (four performances), one of these at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto, in the Earl Grey competition. The assisting artists in the "Messiah" are of Toronto and include Ruthven MacDonald and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra Quartette. The committee are sparing no effort or expense to make this coming event as worthy as they can of the great work, and of the patronage and approbation of all citizens.

The "Messiah" will be sung in the Grand Opera House and promises to be a huge success. It is a stupendous undertaking, but the rehearsals demonstrate that our local talent is capable of handling it in a very creditable manner. The guarantee list being circulated is meeting with generous patronage by leading citizens, and so educative a musical production as the "Messiah" is worthy of the support of all music lovers.

MR. G. T. BLACKSTOCK ILL IN ATLANTIC CITY

Atlantic City, March 28.—Mr. Geo. Tate Blackstock of Toronto, is ill and confined to his bed at the hotel here.

Inquiry at the office of Beatty, Blackstock, Fasken, Cowan and Chadwick this morning elicited the information that Mr. Blackstock had been in New York on business.

Another member of the firm had met him there and conferred with him on certain metters and at the time Mr. Blackstock complained of not feeling well.

It is probable that he has gone to Atlantic City to recuperate before returning to Toronto.

GIVEN FIVE-YEAR TETM PAROLE FOR ILLNESS?

Minister of Justice Asks Mr. Justice Middleton to Report on the Bruce Flindall's Case.

Toronto, March 28.—The Minister of Justice has been petitioned by Mr. T. O. O'Rourke, of Trenton, who defended Bruce Flindell, charged with manslaughter, to pardon the prisoner or release him on parole.

Bruce Flindall was sentenced at Cobourg to five years in Kingston Penitentiary as a result of his father's death, but, in connection with a verdict of guilty, the jury added a recommendation to mercy on account of the prisoner's ill-health.

The Minister of Justice has asked Mr. Justice Middleton to report on the case.

THOSE WINDSOR CLERGYMEN WOULD LOSE THEIR THOUSANDS

New Marriage Law Requiring Three Weeks' Notice For Non-Residents Not Popular—2,500 Marriages in This Gretna Green

Windsor, Ont., March 28.—The Hanna Bill before the House is being anxiously watched by the issuers and ministers of this Gretna Green. It is true there are about two thousand five hundred marriages performed in Windsor yearly, which, of course, brings quite a lot of people to our town, but the people of Ontario are often misled by reports from American newspapers. Windsor being just across the river from Detroit, where a large number of the people are Canadians. These naturally prefer being married on good old Canadian soil. The Americans seem to be jealous of us getting so many of these weddings, and print many things with regard to them that are untrue. The issuers here are probably more careful than in most places on this account. If application is made for license and either party saying they are under age of eighteen, they not only refuse to issue, but phone other issuers not to do so.

It has been proven on many occasions that parties seeking divorce in Detroit, and pretending they were married in Windsor, and had not been, if their certificate had been asked for could not have produced it. "It would be a big mistake to pass such a law as far as this city is concerned for a large amount of money is left here every year by touring parties and others," said a prominent citizen to-day.

PATRICK SCANLON IS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Patrick Scanlon, at yesterday after noon's police court, was charged with stealing between $35 and $38 from Mr. Wilt Metheral, on March 21st. Patrick elected trial by a judge.

Mr. Metheral, who boards at the American House, saw the prisoner first about two weeks ago. He saw prisoner in his, Metheral's bedroom in the afternoon. Witness said he had about $40. The door was unlocked. The money was in his trunk. He and prisoner had been friendly. Witness took $2 in silver out of his trunk whilst prisoner was there. He and prisoner went out for a walk together. Prisoner saw the money in his trunk. He locked the trunk and took the keys with him. He missed the money next morning. He did not lock the door on the preceding night. The money was all taken.

Mr. Thomas Palmer, the next witness said he had known prisoner for some months. Saw prisoner in the Oriental on Good Friday morning. Scanlon was blowing himself in the bar. Prisoner was feeling pretty good and spending money freely.

COLUMBUS CITY HARD HIT MINISTER SAW MANY DEAD

Rev. P. H. Chappeleare Counted 57 in His Own Church and Said 40 Were Dead in an Apartment House Next Door—Rescuers Add to Tales of Casualties

Columbus, March 28.—In total darkness save for the flickering lanterns of flood rescuers, Columbus sat down to await the receding of the waters to learn the number of dead, which conservative reports placed at about 126.

The verified deaths total 29, and early to-day twenty bodies have been recovered.

Rev. P. H. Chappeleare, pastor of the West Park church, in the centre of the inundated district, declared that he had penetrated the flooded district to the church and had counted 50 bodies in the structure. Forty more, he asserted were in an apartment house next door.

CITY BOARD OF WORKS IN BUSINESS SESSION LAST NIGHT

Action Rending to Re-Divert Downie Street Drain--Board Will Boost The Scheme for a Bridge at Dalhousie Street

The City's Board of Works met last night in business session.

Euclid avenue residents petitioned that the road be repaired to facilitate ready travel. This work is arranged for.

An account of $35.80 from the Works Commissioners for repairs to the upright steam boiler, used by this department for thawing out mains and connections was received. It appears that this old boiler gave out while in use by the Board of Works men, and it was agreed that the cost of its repair be equally divided between the Water Works and Board of Works departments. However, Street Commissioner Evans contends that the foregoing account is not equable, hence it was referred to the chairmen of the two departments for adjustment.

The Quaker Oats Co. has offered the city the piers and lumber of the old London street bridge out of which to construct a footbridge to East City, providing Murray street is closed even with their property. Mill street closed and London street divided to the bridge.

The question of whether this course would sufficiently effect any adjacent property as to create a legitimate claim for damages will have to be gone into before definite action is taken.

The Quaker Oats Co. will also deed to the city ten feet of their property south of Hunter street to facilitate the erection of a high level bridge at Hunter street, providing the street line at this point is set back ten feet and Dickson street south of Hunter closed.

Street Watering.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and McIntyre, the Water Commissioners will be asked to grant the city the privilege of connecting with hydrants for street watering purposes wherever convenient.

Chairman Buller offered that it would be advantageous to arrange with the street railway company to use a tank car and water the street along their track.

An effort will be made this year to extend the territory to be watered as far as practicable with the board's appropriation. Many petitions for street watering are to hand.

The New Bridge.

The Board is going to boost the scheme for a bridge across the river at Dalhousie street.

Caterpillers!

On motion the clerk was instructed to write St. Catharines authorities re the system they have adopted to combat the caterpiller plague.

Downie Street Drain.

On suggestion of Ald. Johnston an agreement will be entered into with Mr. Blodgett for diverting this drain through his property, on the lines heretofore published, to relieve contingent residents from periodical flooding. However, as the Engineer reported that 12 feet of land instead of 8 feet will be required as understood by Ald. Johnston and Mr. Blodgett, to permit of constructing underground batting and footing to the concrete walls of the ditch, Mr. Blodgett's consent to this will have to be secured before definite action is taken.

THEY "SHOOT AT LEGS FIRST AND THEN SHOOT TO KILL"

This Is The Order to the Soldiers Who are in Dayton to Give Relief and Keep Order in Stricken City

West Dayton, Ohio, Mar. 28. Backed up by the militia and hundreds of special deputies, the citizens' committee in charge of the relief work in the various sections of the flooded city have a tight hold on the situation to-day. The work of clearing up the chaotic conditions brought on by the flood is progressing with marvelous speed and rapidity. President G. B. Smith of the Chamber of Commerce expressed the prevailing sentiment to-day when he said:

Dayton Will Come Back.

"We do not want the world to think that Dayton is unable to recover from the effects of the disaster. We are going to show it that we are capable of coping with the situation with entire efficiency."

To-day began with great promise. A brilliant sun tempered the keenness of the frosty air. The flood subsided perceptibly. Flood victims who had been penned in the downtown sections of the city were able, unaided, to make their way to the suburbs by the thousands. On Main street, in the heart of Dayton, it was possible to pick a dry path over the pavement.

Militia Co-Operates.

Co-operating with the citizens' committee, appointed by President Smith, the militia began early to make arrangements to handle the situation in the downtown districts. A survey of this territory, it is said, would lead to the stationing of separate patrols, to bar everyone except those engaged in the work of rescue from the scene. Sightseers were barred.

Militiamen and deputies were given instructions to shoot offenders against the prearranged plan of relief work.

Shoot at the legs first, then shoot to kill, was the way the soldiers were instructed to act.

ONTARIO CLERGYMEN DO NOT LIKE PROPOSED LEGISLATION

Toronto, March 29. Clergymen who discussed the proposed new legislation regulating marriages yesterday morning expressed the opinion to the press that while the law could doubtless be much improved it should not be done in such a way as would place any more responsibility on the man performing the ceremony. They agree that the license should be harder to get and it should cover the question of physical and mental fitness of the contracting parties.

Rev. Canon Dixon said he thought something different to what we have got seemed to be necessary, but the ministers were not entitled to be saddled with more responsibility. "We cannot decide on the spur of the moment as to the medical fitness of a couple to be married. We can only decide on their mental condition. That is a case for the doctors. When a couple come to a minister with a license they are entitled to have the ceremony performed."

"I am in favor of an amendment to the law but it should be framed carefully and a minister should not be asked to do things which are really absurd!" remarked Rev. J. D. Morrow.

"When is a person under the influence?" asked a marrying minister, who did not wish to be quoted.. "How are we to know?" That is a question which the magistrate cannot often decide. Would it mean that we could not marry a man who had taken a drink to brace him up for the ordeal? No minister would marry a person who was plainly drunk, but it would be hard to tell if any parties being married were under the influence of liquor.

"And how is the clergyman to know whether the people who come to him to be joined in marriage are or are not of sound mind?

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 336 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area — At the Junction, Ottawa South

OWING to the fact that so many new industries are locating around Ruskin Place, an interesting calculation has been made of what an industry employing 1,000 hands means to a community. $90,000 would be spent in housing accommodation.

The population would increase by 5,000. The assessment would be augmented by $600,000. Salaries would amount to $559,800. The construction of buildings of all kinds would be $2,000,000. The annual expenditures for foodstuffs would be $63,000 for meat, $96,000 for potatoes, $5,000 for sugar, $18,250 for milk, $65,700 for butter, $27,600 for eggs. All told the farmers of the district would gain $221,600. The amount spent for clothing would be $167,750. The expenses for taxes added to the cost of building construction will amount to $2,428,350.

The fine new $40,000 plant of the Bishoprick Wallboard Co., is now built at Ruskin Place. A second industry to employ 300 hands at its inception has already purchased the required land while a third guaranteeing to employ 1,000 hands is now negotiating for enough land to commence operations.

JUST THINK what the above means—practically a small city in itself right on the edge of the Capital.

JUST THINK of the number of stores to be built there.

JUST THINK of the number of carpenters, bricklayers, stonemasons and other tradesmen altogether seperate from the number of employees in the different factories that will be needed to build homes for those who work there.

JUST THINK of the thousand and one different jobs of any and every kind that will spring up at Ruskin Place during the next few years and buy your homesite now so as to be one of the main few who got in on the ground floor.

RUSKIN PLACE offers one of the finest and best opportunities for speculation ever presented to the residents of Peterborough.

Lots at Ruskin Place are Now Selling at $275, $300, and $375. 1/4 down, Balance 3, 6, 9 and 12 months

EDITORIAL NOTES

The French-Canadians in Maine have lost in the conflict with their Bishop, but a change has been made, which allows laymen to be added to the board governing church property. But the end is not yet.

The legislature is thinking of making hotel men keep the bars closed two hours more in the morning and two hours more in the evenings. Probably this move is to be made in the interests of the overworked bartender.

The appeal on behalf of Christian unity which has been in circulation amongst the Anglican Clergy in Canada, has received more than 300 signatures, and now it is being circulated for signature amongst prominent laymen. It will afterwards be sent to the House of Bishops.

THE CATHOLIC PRESS

In a recent letter to some Italian journalists Pope Pius X. took occasion to "remind all that only by unconditional conformity to the directions received from the Pontiff," can the press, religious and secular, be sure of the blessing of God and "work with profit for the benefit of religion and society." There can be no "freedom of the press" with loyal Romanists, says the Christian Guardian. The editor must subordinate his views, his reason, his conscience, to the voice from Rome. It may be hard, yet it must be done, or Rome's thunders are let loose.

PAINKILLER LAKE

First Shipment of Ore From Cartwright's Gold Fields.

A shipment of ore has been made to Campbell & Deyell by The Castwright Gold Fields, limited, which has been operating for over a year on its properties, and the directors have decided to erect a five stamp mill, for the development work done demonstrates that the property is very valuable. It has installed a three-drill compressor hoist and a 45-horse boiler, etc. Sinking operations are proceeding on a vein which on the surface was very narrow, but has gradually widened out to nearly three feet. It will be remembered that upon these properties the phenomenal assays of over $5000 per ton gold and $1326 and $6 in silver were made in 1912. The ore is being sorted and bagged. Some thousand tons are on the dump that will average over $50 per ton. H. C. Crow, the president of the company, returned to Toronto after spending a few days inspecting the properties and expresses himself as highly delighted with the progress made.

Development has been retarded in this section owing to the lack of roads, as everything has to be packed in. The winter roads are good and the government roads, which were commenced last summer, will assist the district considerable when finished. Conditions are so essentially western that unless an engineer or prospector is familiar with the west, particularly Colorado and Nevada, he would hardly find much to interest him in Painkiller Lake district. This fact has undoubtedly kept this section behind. Now it appears to be coming into its own and gives every promise of eventually becoming a steady producer of high grade gold ore. It is attracting a great deal of attention, and the work now under way will be watched with keen interest.

Courting in Church.

The Rev. F. B. Meyer has been declaring at Leeds that he does not seriously object to a "little courting" in chapel. One recalls an incident in a Midland chapel some years ago.

The preacher was annoyed by the sound of whispering coming from the semi-darkness under one of the galleries. At last he paused in his sermon and declared:

"If the young couple making love under the gallery do not come to me in the vestry before service next Sunday morning I will name them to the church."

It was a chance shot, but next Sunday he found twenty couples awaiting him in the vestry!—London Chronicle

IF IT CATCHES YOU IN THE BACK

IT IS TIME TO TRY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mrs. Doucet Tells How Backache Developed Into More Serious Trouble Until Cured By Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Petit Rocher, Gloucester Co., N.B. Mar. 28.—(Special).—"I wish to make a voluntary statement for the benefit of those who suffer from backache," says Mrs. Joseph P. M. Doucet, a well-known resident of this place. "For two years my back troubled me and I could do no work. Rheumatism also developed. Then I was fortunate enough to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and the benefit I received from them is something for which I am indeed thankful."

This is the story told by women all over Canada. They were ill and in pain; they used Dodd's Kidney Pills and were cured. They cured their kidneys and the kidneys are the mainspring of a woman's health.

Backache is nearly always the beginning of a woman's troubles. Backache is also one of the first symptoms that the kidneys are out of order. Cure the backache with Dodd's Kidney Pills and thereby ensure against more serious trouble.

IN CASE OF POISONING

Use Ground Mustard in a Cupful of Warm Water

In case of sickness from eating poisonous berries or impure food, send for a physician promptly.

While he is coming give the patient an emetic at once. Such cases cannot be allowed to go for any length of time without some simple, and quick remedy if the patient is to be cured without great suffering or a long illness.

A teaspoonful of ground mustard dissolved in a cupful of warm water is most satisfactory. But plain salt water or luke warm water, alone, in large quantities is also effective.

After vomiting has taken place, let the patient swallow the whites of several eggs or some sweet oil to help absorb the poison. Also give a simple cathartic such as castor oil, and follow with a good enema of warm water, after the cathartic has acted.

Let the patient drink plenty of water and keep him on a diet of milk and toast for twenty-four hours.

TRANSLATION A HARD MATTER

Few Make Success of Work, but There Are One or Two Instances Quite Recently Brought to Light.

Reading Shakespeare in a foreign language is generally a weird experience not without its amusing side. It matters little what language one selects, for Shakespeare has been translated into all of them, and the translationsare in all grades of badness. Arthur Bennington writes in the North American Review. Similarly a Frenchman reading Corneille in English is moved to laughter or tears, and an Italian reading Dante in English scarcely recognises the divine poet.

Good translations are rare. For a faithful rendering of mere words much thought, backed by intimate knowledge of the subtle shades of meaning of the words of both languages is a primary requisite. But more than words are to be translated; thoughts, spirit, atmosphere, art, are more important than words. And it is in this that most translators are an exemplification of the old Italian epigram, traduttore, traditore.

This is not to say that every translator is a traitor. Among the cases in the desert are one or two of the more recent translations of Shakespeare. Continental Europe—Germany excepted—is really only just beginning to know Shakespeare as we know him. Italy is ringing with praises of Diego Angeli's version, of which four volumes—"The Tempest," "Julius Caesar," "Hamlet" and "Macbeth"—have already appeared. France was thrilled two years ago by Maeterlinck's translation of "Macbeth" and applauded De Gramont's "Julius Caesar" in 1906.

Married Women as Millworkers

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Dundee Day Nurseries, Mr. James Cunningham said he estimated that of the 36,000 workers in the jute trade of Dundee, 22,000 were women over the age of eighteen, and of these about 8,000 were married women. This was not a satisfactory state of things, but it was difficult to know how it was to be cured.

FLOATING BOTTLE TEST

Pacific Current Direct From Japan to British Columbia Coast

A bottle containing a message, thrown overboard from a Japanese vessel in mid-Pacific, exactly where the steamship lane from Victoria to Tokio crosses the 180th meridian was picked up at Prince Rupert recently. The sender was the Captain of the ship whose object was to discover the direction of the tidal current at the point referred to. The importance of the discovery rests in the fact that it proves the tend of tide from the steamship lane in mid-Pacific is practically straight for Prince Rupert.

Entomologist's Pet.

An unusual "pet" now is harbored in a box at the office of the state entomologist, Charles H. Baldwin, at the state house. The "pet" is a praying mantis, an insect about one and one-half inches long, with a long, thin neck, blunt head and heavy body. On its front feet are claws, shaped much like those of a crawfish or lobster. The insect has become so tamed that it eats flies and ants from the fingers of Mr. Baldwin's assistants, while sitting on their hands in the position from which it derives its name—praying. The insect sits almost upright and, folding its long front claws up in communicant attitude, remains for several minutes. The insect in general appearance resembles the outline of a horse. It is not poisonous and devours flies and other insects. Many specimens have been found recently in the northern part of Indianapolis. It has many of the habits of a grasshopper.

SOME SAGE ADVICE FOR YOUNG MOTHERS

As Good at Least as the Babble of Advice Handed Out by Callers

One of the trials of the young mother is the amount of advice which is hurled at her from all sides. For months she cannot call her child her own. Knowing very little about babies, she feels bound to listen to the advice which comes from every point of the compass, but to her confusion she discovers that the moment she has decided to follow the advice of A her faith is demolished by the protests of B. One will tell her that on no account must she ever wake the baby. Another will tell her that she must wake him regularly to give him food. A third will tell her that she must bath him twice a day. A fourth will warn her that she will wash him away to nothing. A fifth will insist on flannel next to the skin. A sixth will protest that there is nothing so bad as flannel. In addition she will be told all kinds of fantastic things, and there are even people who will tell her that she must hold the baby's head when he sneezes.

It is necessary, therefore, that the young mother, being in so alarming and helpless a position, should have something on which she can fall back with safety, something which will make her independent of the confusing advice of her friends.

Here is some sage advice: Don't preach at your child. If he persists in giving away to temper, simply make him feel that he is a nuisance, and that therefore his society is unwelcome, by sending him out of the room until he gets over it. Don't fetch him back angrily because you hear him stamp outside the door to 'let off steam.' If he had no temper he would not be worth much. You don't want to 'break his temper,' as people often say, merely teach him to control it.

"Don't snub your children, especially before other people. It may be necessary to repress their exuberance or prevent them from interrupting others, but do it without snubbing, which ruins their self-respect.

"Don't be upset if your child seems selfish. It is as natural to a child as to a wild animal to take what he wants if he can get it. The remedy is to let him play with other children and interfere as little as possible unless you find him either too yielding or too domineering. He will soon find his level, and realize that there must be 'give and take,' with very little direct teaching. If he persists in quarrelling, make him play alone for a time; he will soon be anxious to play amicably with the others.

"Don't allow your children to put on airs with servants. Teach them to be always polite. Snobs are made in the nursery.

"Don't punish your child for accidental breakage, etc. If you do you need not be surprised if he learns to tell lies to hide his responsibility for something he knows will anger you. Let him see how sorry you are that you have lost something you valued; show him how to avoid such a mishap in the future; but don't treat him as if he had committed a crime. Teach him to tell the exact truth about everything that he does.

"Don't wait hand and foot on your boy, and don't let your girls do it. If he is an only boy don't idolize him. He is a very ordinary boy after all; and you make him selfish, conceited and ill-mannered. The son of a doting mother has generally a very poor opinion of women, and his wife's life will not be a happy one. Foolish mothers make unhappy marriages."

An Imperial Exhibition

An imperial exhibition, adequately representing all parts of the British Empire, will be held in 1915 if the plans of a committee recently organized in London do not miscarry. The chairman of the committee is Captain Sir Peter Stewart Bam, and it is stated that Lord Strathcona approves of the scheme. Such an exhibition would give the colonies an opportunity to display their manufactures in the United Kingdom.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a door where it has been used as a target. Cameron pledges Clyde to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese [illegible] by Philetus Murphy, an art [illegible] recently had been a rift [illegible]

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes [illegible] to call on [illegible] He pretends to [illegible] fractious [illegible] finding the [illegible] the [illegible] Cameron's portrait was found. [illegible] boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room, a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X.—Johnson is allowed to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature, who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

I was perfectly sincere in this, but even had I believed otherwise I should have been tempted to prevarication could I have foreseen my reward. Before I quite realized her purpose Evelyn was out of her chair, had slipped over behind me, and encircling my neck with her arms, had pressed her lips softly to my cheek.

"Oh, how glad I am to hear you say that! You believe in his bigness—in his nobility, just as I do, don't you, Philip, dear?"

"I'm sure he could never have been guilty of anything dishonorable," I declared again, imprisoning her hands. But the next moment, hearing steps again crossing the hall, I reluctantly released them.

For a third time Louis stood in the doorway. Now he upheld a small red-bound book, and his face was beaming.

"Voila, mademoiselle!" he exclaimed, delightedly. "Je viens de trouvais ce livre."

It was a book of addresses, and the valet nervously turning the pages, put his finger upon the name of Horatio Addison, M. D., with the air of one who had discovered buried treasure. I am inclined to think that we were ourselves almost as demonstratively elated as he, for though we could not be sure that this was Cameron's correspondent, the odds certainly favored that conclusion; and unless the physician had died or moved away since the entry was made, we were now in possession of his address, which chanced to be an apartment house on Madison avenue, that I knew to be given over entirely to doctors' offices.

This time Evelyn assured Louis that he was not merely a "good boy" but an incomparable assistant, and the richness of the reward came nigh to totally wrecking his composure, for, as he started to back from the room, I detected unmistakable tears glistening on his lashes.

"Louis," I checked him, with sudden inspiration, "apportez-nous le directoire telephonie, s'il vous plait."

And when the book was brought the fact that Dr. Addison's address had not been changed was promptly established. I was for calling him up, then and there, but Evelyn pointed to the clock and advised patience. It was already after midnight.

"Tomorrow," she said, in her wise fashion, "you shall call on him, and learn, if possible, how Uncle Robert replied to that letter. There is a difference, you know, Philip, between being in a place and having some one see you there. No one's eyes are infallible."

CHAPTER XIII.

When Damon Doubted Pythias.

Not until I had been passed into an elevator by a dainty young woman in the white habit of a trained nurse, shot up four floors into the hands of another who might have been the first's twin sister, and ushered by her, in turn, into a severely professional-appearing waiting room, did it occur to me that I was upon an errand involving the employment of an extraordinary degree of tact. So imbued had I been with the importance of learning whether Cameron had or had not been in Peking in 1903, that up to this moment I had quite lost sight of my own position. Now I asked myself, on what ground was I to make my plea for information? To tell this Dr. Addison the whole story would certainly be inexpedient. To hint even at alarm concerning Cameron might involve the precipitation of that financial disaster he had feared and regarding which he had warned me. Indeed, would not any effort to obtain the facts I desired be likely to arouse suspicion, no matter how delicately made?

The more I pondered the situation, sitting there thoughtfully while one after another the patients who had preceded me passed into the physician's consultation room, the more beggarly, it seemed to me, became my chances of success. And when, at length, my turn came to enter the presence of my friend's friend, I was about persuaded that I should very soon be making an ignominious exit, branded as an impertinently meddling busybody.

I have always contended that it was Dr. Addison's severely professional air which was responsible for my inspiration, for no thought of such a course occurred to me, until standing dumbly hesitant before him, I became conscious that he was making mental inventory of me with a view to a diagnosis.

The penetration of his gaze impressed me at once. His steel gray eyes were like a pair of converging probes; and they were his dominant feature. Aside from them his face was commonplace.

"Doctor," I said, and the sound of my voice was a relief to the strained tension of the moment, "I learned of you through Mr. Cameron—Mr. Robert Cameron, a mutual friend."

I hoped to see his expression brighten at the name, but it did not. If there was any change whatever it was in the reverse direction. After a second's deliberation he asked:

"You wish to consult me regarding yourself?"

On a sudden impulse I answered, "Yes," though I had neither ache nor pain, and, so far as I could judge, was perfectly normal.

"I see," he replied. "Am I right in assuming that your trouble is of a nervous character?"

Heaven knows that in spite of my fancied normality there had been sufficient reason in the past few weeks for my nerves to go awry. I confessed that I had been under considerable mental strain.

Thereupon, having bade me be seated, he began to ply me with questions with a view to sympathetic revelation. I fear, however, that I gave him meager material upon which to base a conclusion. I slept well, my appetite was excellent. I had observed neither a numbness nor a supersensitiveness in my finger tips, nor a sensation of fulness at the base of the brain. I could not recall any twitching of my muscles, nor any diminution of muscular power. At length, after a brief pause, he inquired:

"Will you be good enough to tell me, Mr. Clyde, why you think you require professional attention?"

And my inability to answer him, offhand, paradoxical as it may seem, eventually supplied me with an answer at once truthful and convincing.

"Because," I explained gravely, "I find that of late I am losing my power of mental co-ordination."

The ardor with which he seized upon this index of my supposed malady was amusing. Instantly he grew obviously and deeply interested. I have since learned that what is known as confusional insanity, a rare condition, usually has its inception in this wise, "without essential emotional disturbance," if I may quote an authority. At the time, I believe he was suspicious of a developing paresis. What he thought, however, or what he did not, is aside from the story. I know only that his manner changed abruptly, his object evidently being to gain my full confidence. Whereupon, the bars of reserve lowered between us, I ventured to revert to our so-called "mutual friend."

"This isn't anything like beri-beri, is it, doctor?" I began. My ideas of the disease I mentioned were of the haziest character. I knew, however, that it was common in the Orient, and thither I would lead him.

"Oh, no, Mr. Clyde," he answered, suavely enough, now. "Beri-beri is merely the eastern name for multiple neuritis. You haven't a neuritis or you would know it. I saw a great deal of beri-beri in China and on the Malay peninsula."

"Do I remember to have heard Cameron say he contracted it in the east?" I asked, plunging for a connection.

"I don't recall that Cameron ever had it," was his response. And then his brow grew thoughtful. "Are you sure he told you that he had; and that he was attacked while in—in Asia?" I noted his hesitation over fixing the place, and wondered. At all events I had arrested his interest. Purposely I adopted a tone of uncertainty.

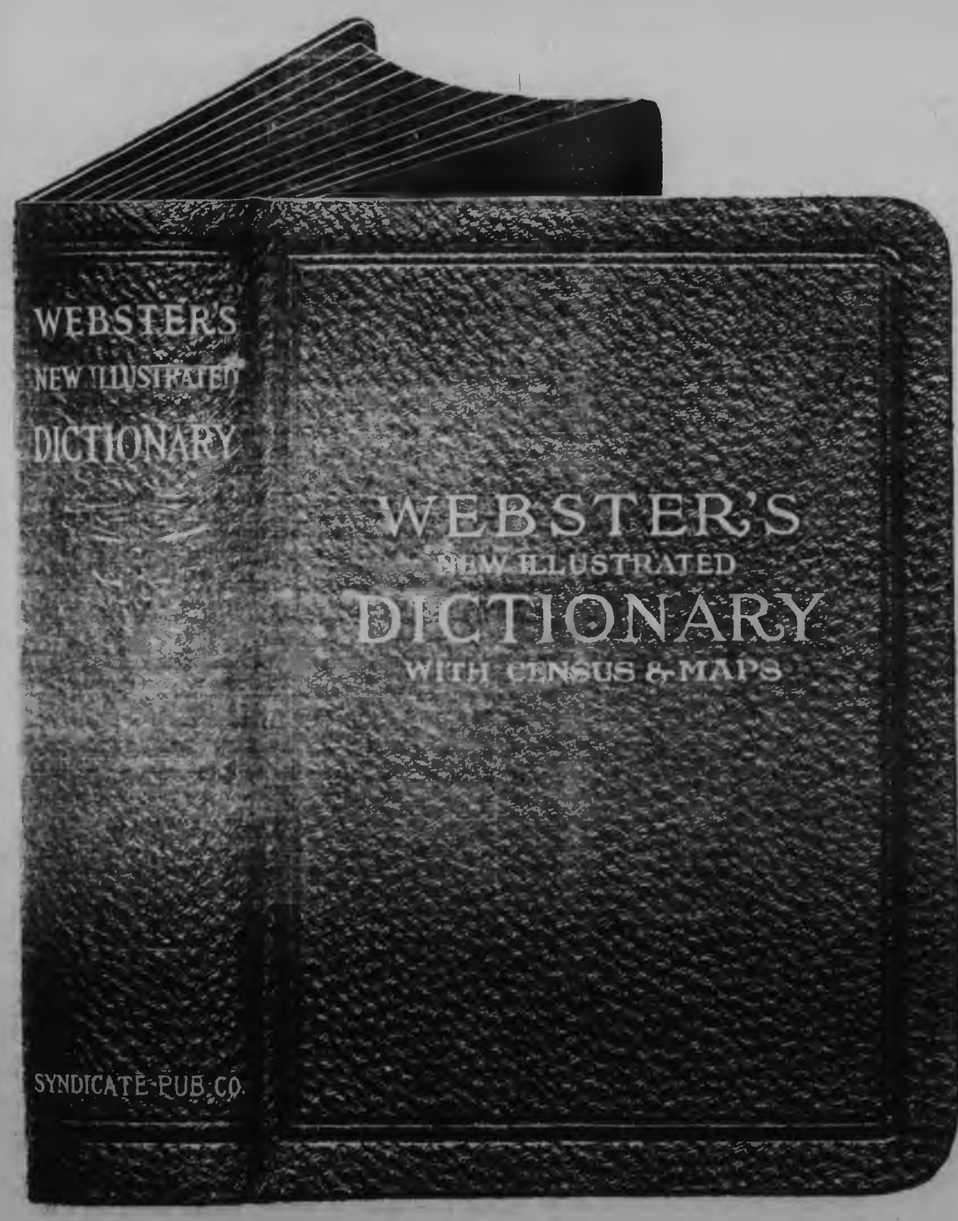
"N-n-no. I can't say definitely. But I had an impression that—" And there I paused. When I continued it was with the direct question: "Do you happen to know, doctor, whether Cameron was ever in Peking? It seems to me it was—"

"I do know that he was in Peking," he interrupted, almost savagely. "He was in Peking, in September, 1903. To be exact, he was there on the fourteenth day of that month. I have reason to know it—a particular reason to know it."

After all, how easily the information I craved had come to me! And yet I would have been glad to hear the contrary; for Cameron had assured me, in all solemnity, that he had never been in China, and it jarred upon my conception of the man's character to discover that he had tried to deceive me. I could only conclude that his purpose was praiseworthy. But Dr. Addison had not finished.

"Tell me!" he was demanding, eagerly. "Tell me! I have excuse for asking. Has he ever admitted to you that he was there?"

"Now I come to think of it," I returned, "he hasn't. But I had the information from some one, I am pretty sure."



With an effort the physician commanded himself. When he spoke again he was comparatively composed.

"Mr. Clyde," he said apologetically, "I am not given to discussing personal matters with my patients, but the fact that you and Cameron are friends, and the fact that this subject has come up, make it almost imperative, I suppose, that I should explain briefly the feeling I have just exhibited. Five years ago Rob Cameron and I were about as near counterparts of Damon and Pythias as ever existed. While Cameron was in Europe, I had an opportunity to go around the world with a patient. We dawdled a good deal, and, you understand how uncertain correspondence is under those circumstances. I never knew just where I should be at any given time. Consequently, a number of letters were missed by both of us. I was still thinking of Cameron as in England or on the European continent, when lo and behold, I saw him one morning, hurrying along the principal street of the inner city of Peking. I don't know whether you have ever been there or not, but if you have, you know what that thoroughfare is. It was all bustle and activity that day, and about as crowded as Broadway at the noon hour, but with much more picturesque and contrasting currents of individuals and vehicles. I was in a carriage, myself, and Cameron was afoot, walking in the opposite direction. As we passed each other, he did not seem to see me, though I called to him loudly. This, however, did not surprise me, for there was an ungodly racket in progress. Instantly, I had the carriage turned about, but before I could overtake him, he was lost in the crowd. I was leaving Peking that afternoon, and so had no chance to look him up. I wrote him afterwards and told him of the incident, and how I regretted having to go away without exchanging at least

Gained in Weight, Digestion Restored, Health Renewed

Here is More Proof of Quick Cure For All Folks That are Weak, Ailing, Nervous.

More Praise for Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodge, of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made me listless and the distaste for food reduced me to condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemedto go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all source of nausea disappear, but I began to crave food and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

Get this best of all medicines today and refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers, 25c. per box or five for $1.00. Sent postpaid by The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Wind Loosened Bill-boards.

Mr. Walter Stocker had a gang of men yesterday tearing down the bill boards on Hunter street, just at the edge of the creek. The recent heavy winds played havoc with the structure. He is replacing the boards, but putting in a heavy beam so as to hold the new advertising space.

A Coming "Bridge."

There was a large attendance at the regular meeting of the 57th Chapter, Daughters of the Empire, held at the Armouries. It was decided to hold a bridge party about the middle of next month. After this was settled, tea was served and the meeting brought to a close. Mrs. (Col.) Clegg occupied the chair.

Chased Wild Geese With Whip.

Mr. Geo. Twigg, of Bethany, a few days ago found that a large flock of wild geese, had taken possession of his barn yard. He drove them off with a whip. The geese raised quite an objection to being disturbed. Mr. Twigg evidently forgot that a shot gun is sometimes a handy weapon

Casey at It Again.

"Casey" Jones, who some weeks ago was held at the Children's Shelter until he became too hot a proposition to retain, and who was to have been sent to Orillia is again giving trouble. Yesterday in the Post Office, he bothered the usually long-suffering and obliging staff, until he was thrown out bodily.

A Tug's Narrow Escape.

Leg Broken by a Falling Limb.

As Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald, Street Inspector, with a gang of men were pruning trees in Central Park yesterday afternoon, Mr. M. Carton happened to pass through. The big limb of a huge elm had been sawed off, and was held suspended by wires. Mr. Fitzgerald claims to have warned Mr. Carton not to pass beneath. However, the latter seemed to think there was no danger and proceeded on his way. The limb fell and striking Mr. Carton's left leg, broke it just above the ankle. He was taken to his home and Dr. Halliday was summoned.

Did Scanlon Steal the Birds

Patrick Scanlon seems to have a good eye for game chickens. He was charged at the police court yesterday morning with stealing five valuable game fowl from Geo. Graham. Mr. Gordon, acting for the prisoner, did not elect. The birds were found in the loft at the American Hotel, where Scanlon boarded. The prisoner had formerly worked for witness and knew the premises. Scanlon was committed for trial. The prisoner was also charged with stealing $26 from Fred Spry, an employee of the Oriental. He was also committed on this charge.

Time For New Revolvers.

Now that the police are to get new revolvers, it is of interest to recall that last fall one of the local "finest" went rabbit shooting about four miles down east. He was armed with a centre-fire revolver. A rabbit sat on its stub tail ten feet away from the officer. Click, click, click, click, click, went the hammer, the rabbit in the meantime looking puzzled and flopping its ears. Only the click and no report was heard. The cop was using rim-fire cartridges. This story is no "Kidd," either.

May Bell Marks Makes Hit.

Last night the R. W. Marks Co., with May Bell Marks as star, presented Duma's strong play Camille, at the Grand. May Bell Marks very ably filled the title role and again demonstrated the fact that, as an emotional actress, she has few equals and no superiors on the stage of Canada to-day. Her support was of high grade and the play went with snap and vigor. Camille was well staged, scened and admirably rendered. This afternoon, the play "How London Lives," will be presented. To-night, that old-time favorite. "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room."

A Fine New Launch.

Mr. Thomas Palmer, of 390 Queen street, yesterday put the finishing touches on his new power launch. This recent addition to the local pleasure craft is in the cellar at his residence. The boat is 18 feet long, by 4 ft. 2 in. beam. The cockpit, railings and upper works are of varnished oak. The craft is of the "V" shaped build for speed. The hull is of cypriss painted white. She will have the engine, an eight horse-power gasoline machine, now on the spot installed as soon as the boat is taken from the cellar. The boat is expected to make 15 miles an hour. Mr. Palmer has had several offers for his boat.

"The shock at beholding myself in the glass after nine long weeks abed, nearly caused a relapse," writes Emily Colson in Home Queen. "The faded face, with its lines of illness and worry, seemed thirty years older. Now, I thought, I would not attend my chum's wedding, eleven days off, to which I had looked hopefully forward.

"She herself came to my rescue. She procured an ounce of mercolized wax, which she bade me spread on like cold cream, washing it off next morning. Applied nightly, this apparently absorbed the withered suin, so gently I experienced no discomfort. Upon the wedding morn the pallid complexion had entirely given way to one of youthful color and loveliness.

"And there wasn't a wrinkle. This due to a wasg lotion made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. The daily face bath had dispersed every line."

Great anxiety is felt by Mrs. Jean Bell, 154 Rubidge street because her nephew Mr. Melville Wright was residing in Dayton and nothing has been heard concerning his safety.

Ald. Buller, who has returned from a trip to the north country reports that considerable damage occurred to the timber limits, as a result of the recent high winds.

Lindsay town council are considering the matter of having Kent street paved with cement. Kent street, it might be noted was not referred to by Euclid when that mathematician described a line as "length without breadth."

A young man of Lindsay was fined $3.20 for speeding a horse on the William street pavement. If this offence had been committed in Port Hope, he would have probably got life for showing speed.

At a meeting of the Port Hope council, Mr. Russel of the Police Commissioners, explained a "secret" meeting alleged to have been held in a hotel, by saying that the town hall, there, was not fit to hold a meeting in.

Bobcaygeon seems to be a perennial sufferer. First, Chief Howard goes out and depletes the river of bass in the good old summer time, and now, heavy wind of a few days ago blew down a saw-mill smoke stack and disarranged the whiskers of the oldest inhabitant.

Eat and Get Thin

This is turning an old phrase face about, but modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion and likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Co. Farmer Building, Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) 75 cents. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a large case of Marmola Prescription Tablets (compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription), one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat at the rate of 12 to 16 ounces a day. That is all. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.

Prisoner said he had cleaned up $35 or $40 the night before.

P. C. Meagher, who arrested Scanlon on Saturday morning, on searching the prisoner found $11 in bills and silver. He found keys in prisoner's pocket. One of the keys fitted the lock on Metheral's trunk.

Detective Newhall spoke to Scanlon, on Saturday regarding a large key that fitted Metheral's door, and the trunk key. Scanlon said the keys were not his. He said "Little Sammy" at the hotel, who works at the C.G.E. Co., made him the big key to open the hotel doors. The big key opened nearly every bedroom door in the hotel, and the small one Metheral's trunk. Prisoner confessed knowing the big key would fit every door but one.

J. R. Dundas saw prisoner at the fire station Good Friday afternoon. Prisoner showed him a roll of bills. There is no poker playing at the fire hall. The prisoner was committed for trial.

NEW GOLD COINS BEING "SWEATED"

Dishonest Persons Taking Advantage of Design—Canadian Money Being Mutilated for Profit

Although only a short time has elapsed since the appearance of Canadian five and ten dollar gold coins, struck at the Ottawa branch of the Royal Mint, the possibility for "sweating" the new currency has already been discovered. Since the design on the coins is raised, it is necessary, in order that the coins may stack properly, to have raised milled edges and of this the "Sweater" takes advantage.

The process of "sweating" is a simple one. The practice is to put newly made gold coins to the value of three or four thousand dollars in a chamois bag and shake them together in order to abrase the rough edges. The metal being soft, a considerable amount of gold dust is the result.

The object is to reduce the coins from the mint weight to the least current weight.

It is currently reported that dishonest persons have already done considerable 'sweating,' and many of the new coins show the effects and will have to be returned to the mint and melted over.

On the ten dollar piece the Currency Act has fixed the standard mint weight at 258 grains and the least current weight 256.71, while the figures for the five dollar coin are in proportion.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the abrasion on English gold coins entails an enormous annual loss to the Treasury, and the edges on the Canadian gold coins have an even more pronounced flange than the English sovereign. It is most noticeable on the reverse side of the coins

In the matter of fineness the Canadian gold differs from the English The English sovereign is eleven twelfths fine, but the Currency Act provides that Canadian gold coins should be nine-tenths fine.

Offensive Breath Caused Usually by Catarrh

A Simple Remedy Discovered That Cures Without Drugs.

The American people suffer more from Catarrh than from any other disease. It undermines more constitutions and creates more sickness than all other diseases combined. It is, therefore, very dangerous.

You can't successfully treat catarrh by internal dosing—you must in some way send a purifying, healing agent through the breathing organs so that the germs can be reached. This you do every time you inhale Catarrhozone. Its rich essences and healing balsams are breathed all through the nose, throat and lungs and effectively destroy every trace of Catarrh. This is a proven fact.

I endorse Catarrhozone because I know of six bad cases of Catarrh, including my own, that it has cured. It is a sensible remedy because it is capable of going where the disease is. I believe it cures quicker than other remedy because it gets sooner to the source of the disease than anything else I know of. I had headaches, bad breath and much stomach trouble associated with my Catarrh, but they have disappeared since using Catarrh ozone, which keeps me free from colds, headaches, catarrh and all winter ills." OTTO E. KRAMER, Belleville, Ont. FDEDED FDEDE DEDEF ville, Ont.

Catarrhozone is needed in every home. Large size lasts 2 months price $1.00; small size 50c; trial size 25c. At all storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y. and Kingston, Canada.

NERVOUS, LIFELESS DEBILITATED MEN

YOUNG MEN AND MIDDLE-AGED MEN, the victims of early indiscretions and later excesses, who are failures in life—you are the ones we can restore to manhood and revive the spark of energy and vitality. Don't give up in despair because you have treated with other doctors, used electric belts and tried various drug store nostrums.

Our New Method Treatment has snatched hundreds from the brink of despair, has restored happiness to hundreds of homes and has made successful men of those who were "down and out." We prescribe specific remedies for each individual case according to the symptoms and complications—we have no patent medicines. This is one of the secrets of our wonderful success as our treatment cannot fail, for we prescribe remedies adapted to each individual case. Only curable cases accepted. WHY THIS OTTAWA TRUCE IS COMPROMISE IN SIGHT?

Both Sides Have Been Marking Time, But Move Forward is Expected This WeeK—A Piffling Scandal Aired and a Little Business Transacted

Ottawa, March 30.—If there has been nothing going on behind the scenes in Ottawa this week, then its story is scarcely worth telling. The interest has been not in the public proceedings of parliament, but in surmises and speculations as to what was being said and done by the big men of the government and the big men of the apposition outside of the chamber. Both sides protested that no negotiations for compromise or settlement were going on. The average Conservative member would tell you that the government was absolutely confident of a complete victory; the average Liberal member would be more guarded, saying it was up to the government to make the next move, but he would at the same time indicate that the opposition was determined and unafraid.

Naturally the looker-on at Ottawa is inquiring the reason for the parliamentary truce. The house has been meeting day after day and there has been a pretense of debating and a semblance of contest, but the fighting spirit has been nowhere in evidence. Thursday night the Landry case was brought up for the third or fourth time for discussion and there was a party debate and a party division, but the combatants fenced languidly. Judge Doherty became almost lachrymose in resenting the charge that political considerations had influenced his department in granting ticket-of-leave. Carvell promptly characterized the minister's speech as "point hypocrisy" but withdrew the term almost immediately.

Britain's Greater Navy

London, Mar. 31.—The new building programme of the British navy is now complete in every detail and the dawn of to-morrow will see under construction in England of battleships, 3 battleship cruisers, 13 light cruisers, 35 torpedo-boat destroyers and 21 submarines. These craft will cost the Government nearly $.25,000,000.

SUFFRAGETTES NOT ALLOWED INTO N. Y.

Florence Ward, Who Served Four Months for Window Smashing Refused Admittance.

Boston, March 29.—Miss Florence M. Ward, an English suffragette, who admits having served four months in jail for participating in a window-smashing crusade in London, is in custody of local immigration authorities, and has been debarred from landing.

She reached Boston as a second-cabin passenger on the Cunard liner Invernia, and was given a hearing to-day by a board of special enquiry.

Miss Ward, who belongs to Birmingham, said that she came to this country for a vacation because of broken health, and was going to visit Prof. J. F. Marvin, of Ithaca, N.Y.

FORMER LOCAL MAN DIES IN THE WEST

The many friends of Mr. James H. O'Shea, formerly proprietor of the Commercial House of this city, will regret to learn that this quondam local citizen has passed away at Rocky Mountain House, Alta. The sad news was received by telegraph yesterday morning by his son, Mr. James O'Shea of this city. The late Mr. O'Shea had a large circle of friends in the city and district. His deaths came unexpectedly. Mr. O'Shea was about 54 years of age.

He leaves to mourn his death, his wife, Mrs. O'Shea, at present in Toronto, and five sons, Oscar, Chicago; James and Stanley of this city; Ewart of Toronto, and Frank of Winnipeg; and one daughter, Mona, now Mrs. S. J. Murphy and on her wedding tour in Europe.

The body will be brought to Peterborough for interment; the date of the funeral will be given later.

THOSE EXTRAVAGANT CHARGES RE CODERRE

The following is the Hansard report (of March 17) of the charges of the leader of the Opposition and the Prime Minister regarding a matter that is bothering the Examiner a good deal:

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: My hon. friend the Minister of Justice says that Mr. Bourassa is a blackmailer. He said a moment ago that Mr. Bourassa is a personator. He also said that Mr. Bourassa is a perjurer. True, he is all that; he is a personator, he is a perjurer, he is a blackmailer. But he is something more than that; he is an employe of this Government. This is the whole case. This is the allegation which I see in this motion, and in my judgment it is the whole case. If it were not true, I would certainly have told my hon. friend from St. Hyacinthe not to touch it, but he read the allegation in this motion that on the 14th of February last the said Emile Bourassa was appointed to a position in the services of the Government of Canada.

Right Hon. R. L. Borden, (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, my right hon. friend the leader of the Opposition (Sir Wilfrid Laurier) has alluded to the allegation in the motion of the hon. member for St. Hyacinthe (Mr. Gauthier) to the effect that one of the men whose declarations have been read before this House has been appointed to a position in the public service. The allegation was not alluded to by my hon. friend the Minister of Justice (Mr. Doherty), for the reason that not one single iota of evidence was offered in support of it. Now, my right hon. friend the leader of the Opposition has practically abandoned the rest of his case, and based it all upon this allegation. I want to tell him that Mr. Emile Bourassa has not been appointed to the public service of this country. I want to tell him something more, and to tell this House something more—that so long as I am connected with the Government of Canada he never will be appointed to the public service.

BULGARIANS HAVE PIERCED THE LINES OF TCHATALJA

Are Pushing Forward Victoriously on Constantinople—Last Stand of Ottoman Troops—Servia's Great Honor

London, Mar. 29.—The Bulgarian troops pierced the Tchataija lines in the neighborhood of Lake Derkos, on the Black Sea, to-day and are pushing forward victoriously on Constantinople, according to a Central News despatch from Sofia.

Belgrade, Servia, Mar. 29.—The honor of capturing Shukri Pasha the Turkish commander-in-chief of Adrianople, with his headquarters' staff, belongs to the 20th Servian Regiment of Infantry.

An official statement issued here to-day said that Shukri Pasha, two other Turkish Generals, 22 field officers and 150 junior officers were in Haduriuk fort, to the northwest of the city, when the Servian regiment stormed and captured it. On the following day Shukri Pasha was handed over by the Servians to Gen. Nikola Ivanoff, the Bulgarian commander-in-chief. Seventeen thousand Ottoman troops also surrendered to the Servians and the quantity of war material captured by them in the taking of the city was enormous.

The Bulgarian headquarters staff has been informed that Servian co-operation with the Bulgarian troops is no longer necessary in the opinion of Servia and the withdrawal of the Servian forces from the vicinity of Adrianople will begin to-day.

Honors for Captives.

Sofia, March 29.—Shukri Pasha, the captured Turkish commander-in-chief of Adrianople, with his staff and seven other Turkish generals, arrived here to-day. They were received with fitting honors. They will reside here during their captivity.

THIRD TRIAL FOR DARROW

Will Have to Defend Himself Once More For Alleged Crime.

(Special to The Times.)

Los Angeles, March 31.—Clarence S. Darrow, who was counsel for the McNamaras, is scheduled to go on trial here to-day for a third time for alleged jury bribing.

Darrow was acquitted on one charge and the jury disagreed in his trial on a second indictment. Subpoenas have been issued and Darrow has prepared his defence.

He will be represented by Judge O. H. Powers and possibly Earl Rodgers.

DAYTON'S WATER PLANT IS RESTORED, OUTLOOK BETTER

Ninety Bodies Have Been Recovered and Work Searching Debris Is Progressing

Dayton, March 30.—The city waterworks, which have been out of commission since Tuesday morning, were restored at noon yesterday, relieving what has been one of the most serious phases of the situation here.

Geo. F. Burba, secretary to Governor Cox, has telegraphed the chief executive the following:

"The situation rapidly is improving. Ninety bodies have been recovered, and the work of digging corpses from the mud and debris is progressing."

Secretary of War Garrison and his staff arrived at Dayton at noon, and immediately went into conference with John H. Patterson, chairman of the committee of fifteen.

Soon after Secretary Garrison arrived the relief committee began to call local physicians to consult with him to determine whether to place the city under federal control. It was said the sanitary conditions of the city appeared to warrant the presence of federal troops and Government health experts.

No Disorder.

Over a thousand militiamen under command of Adjutant-General Wood, have the afflicted scenes thoroughly patrolled and little or no disorder is reported.

Digging bodies out of the mud was the chief work of the rescuing parties.

MILLER CASE LOOKS BAD

State Prisoner At Ottawa Must Disclose Facts

UGLY OUTLOOK AHEAD

For Those Concerned In The Expenditure of the $42,915—Company Knew of Payments to Get Business—Who Got This Money?

Montreal, March 29.—That the shareholders of the Diamond Light and Heating Company of Canada, Limited, were fully cognizant of the fact that its then president, R. C. Miller, Canada's state prisoner, now in custody in Ottawa for refusing to answer questions in the House of Commons as to what he did with $42,915, he said he gave the government contracts, was using large sums of money to secure business and that they approved of his action, was the argument put up by C. H. Stephens, K.C., in opening Mr. Miller's appeal from a decision of Mr. Justice Hutchinson ordering him to give an accounting to the company, the plaintiff in the suit, because he had produced no vouchers to account for the expenditures.

Mr. Stephens said the company was established some twelve years ago, but the business was run at a loss up to 1907. In that year it was decided to cease operations unless Mr. Miller could do something to make it pay. Accordingly the shareholders passed a resolution empowering him to expend such sums as he might deem advisable in the way of agent's commissions in order to procure business. The result was that the company's system of lighting was adopted by the Dominion Government and the company in a year showed a substantial profit. A dividend of three per cent. was paid, and so pleased were the directors that they passed the accounts without questions and voted Mr. Miller a bonus of $1,000.

When Mr. Miller was deposed as president, the new board of directors took action against him for an accounting.

Mr. Miller was not present in the court, being still at Ottawa.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Not much change in temperature. Local showers.

LORD WOLSELEY'S BODY ARRIVES IN LONDON

Late English Field Marshal to Be Buried in St. Paul's To-day.

London, March 29. The body of Field Marshal Viscount Wolseley, who died some days ago at Mentone, France, arrived in London yesterday and was escorted to the War Office.

It will be entombed on Monday in St. Paul's Cathedral, near the body of Admiral Lord Nelson, with the highest military honors. The Duke of Connaught is to represent the royal family.

HELP NEEDED IN OHIO RIVER TOWNS

Governor Cox Issues Proclamation as to Sending Funds and Supplies to the Stricken People.

Columbus, Ohio, March 29.—Governor Cox today issued the following proclamation as to the relief work:

"In order to simplify the situation growing out of requests coming from very direction with reference to funds and supplies, we suggest the following arrangements:

"That all supplies in the future be consigned to Colonel Edward T. Miller, in charge of general relief depot, Columbus, Ohio; and that all funds be sent to Col. M. L. Wilson, treasurer of the commission representing the Red Cross, the state and the citizenship. It is desired that there be submitted by wire a statement giving car number and character of supplies that are shipped.

"There is every indication that the Ohio River will reach the highest stage in its history. Calls for food and clothing are coming from unexpected parts of the State. A critical situation has developed in all Ohio River towns. We are still greatly in need of help."

UNITED STATES MAY PROHIBIT SALE OF FRIEDMANN'S REMEDY

Unless His Claims are Substantiated Pure Food and Drugs Act May Be Involved--Tests Now Being Carried On by the Federal Government

New York, March 29.—The Friedmann tuberculosis remedy is being subjected to a rigid scrutiny in the tests under way here. The atmosphere is decidedly critical. Canadians may be advised to keep the following points in mind:

1. That the United States tests that will really count are being most carefully conducted by representatives of the United States Government.

2. That unless these substantiate the claims of Dr. Friedmann, he will not be allowed to sell his remedy in the country (under the Pure Foods and Drugs Act).

3. The Canadian authorities will doubtless be influenced by the United States Government's decision in the matter.

4. The indications are that sufferers from consumption especially should not turn to this "remedy" with great hope until much more is known. The outlook is not bright

BANK CASHIER KILLED BY THIEF

Masked Man Attempted to Rob the State Bank—Murderer Shot Dead by Police.

Barnes, Kansas, March 30. Robert I. Brown, cashier of the Barnes State Bank, was shot and killed yesterday by a man who robbed the institution.

Later a posse of citizens shot the robber to death as he was trying to escaped with a bag of $600 in gold.

Brown has just opened the bank, and was at the counter when he was confronted by a masked man, who pointed two revolvers at him.

Brown ducked, got his revolver, and had emptied it without effect before a bullet through the head killed him. The thief gathered into a bag $600 and ran from the bank. Citizens alarmed by the shots were in pursuit before he had covered a block and within three blocks of the bank he fell before a volley of bullets, still clutching the bag of gold. He has not been identified.

TO LEAD DONKEY ACROSS CONTINENT

(Special to The Times.)

Portland, Me., Mar. 31.—Leading a donkey by a rope across the continent from this city to Portland, Ore., is the tedious task that B. H. Anderson of this city has set for himself beginning to-morrow, in order to pay an election bet.

Last fall Anderson, who was for a number of years a page in the House of Representatives at Washington, was an ardent supporter of Roosevelt. He bet a friend that the candidate from Oyster Bay would be the next President. Both signed an agreement that the loser would pay the wager by walking from Portland, Me. to Portland, Ore., leading a donkey all the way.

Anderson expects to start on his transcontinental trip with his donkey April 1. He says he anticipates it will take him all summer to complete his journey. He is now at Butler, Ind., where he is secretary of the Chamber of Commerce in that city. He is twenty-six and unmarried.

MEDICAL AID NOT CALLED; HF DIED IN FURNACE ROOM

Daly House Proprietor, at Inquest, Says He Told Night Porter to Call Him If Injured Man Took Turn for Worse

Toronto, March 29.—That William Martin Campbell of Gravenhurst, after falling down the stairs to the basement in the Daly House, was placed in the furnace room and allowed to remain there without medical attention from noon on Thursday until 6 o'clock Friday morning, when he succumbed to his injuries, was the admission made by George H. Linton, proprietor of the Daly House, at the opening of the inquest held at the morgue on Saturday afternoon, enquiring into the death.

According to Mr. Linton, Campbell first registered at the Daly House on Monday night, and also spent Tuesday and Wednesday night at the hotel, but he did not take his meals there. On Thursday morning before leaving the hotel he had two drinks at the bar.

He returned at 11.40 a.m., and, entering the barroom, ordered a drink but was refused by the barkeeper, who afterwards said that he did so as the man appeared to be either intoxicated or in a dazed condition.

Found in Pool of Blood.

Five minutes later Campbell was found lying in a pool of blood at the foot of the basement stairs by the house barber and shoeshine boy. They placed him on a chair and bathed his wounds.

After half an hour later one of the guests of the hotel informed Mr. Linton that a man was in a dazed condition in the washroom. The proprietor went to where Mr. Campbell was and had one of the porters take him to the furnace room, where he was laid on the floor and where he was left.

About 5.10 that morning the porter knocked at the proprietor's door to inform him that Campbell was in a serious condition and he could not arouse him.

The hotel proprietor went down to the furnace room, and found Campbell with blood at the mouth, and apparently dying or dead, as he could not find the man's pulse. Becoming alarmed he immediately sent for the police, who on arriving stated that the man was still alive. The policeman phoned headquarters, and a Sergeant came down to the hotel. Linton phoned for a doctor, but the man died a few minutes later.

In adjourning the inquest until Thursday night, Coroner Rowe said that the circumstances in the matter were such as to make a full enquiry into Campbell's death imperative.

NEGROES COULDN'T CLIMB UP CONVENTION HAD TO COME DOWN

Denied Use of Elevators, and as Meeting Was on Seventeenth Floor, Something Had to Be Done

Baltimore, Mar. 29.—When the negro delegates to the Progressive State Convention, which met this afternoon at the Emerson Hotel, sought to enter the elevators, to go to the committee rooms, admission was denied them. The party leaders protested to the management, but received no satisfaction.

The meeting was to have been held on the seventeenth floor, which would have necessitated a prohibitive climb. A concession was made by transferring the convention to the second floor. The negroes who were obliged to walk upstairs were very indignant over their treatment.

The convention adopted a party constitution, which makes provision for putting a full ticket in the field

SAY GOVERNOR FELL OVERBOARD

Nogales, Ariz., Mar. 29.—Governor Felips Rivera of Sinaloa is reported to have been lost at sea while being taken on a military transport along the Pacific coast. He was arrested at his state capital by Huerta military authorities and was being brought to Mexico City for trial.

After the boat left Mazatlan, word was sent back that the governor "had fallen overboard."

Rivera previously had declared against the Huerta national government, his action being sustained by

GERMAN SOCIALISTS OPPOSE ARMY BILL

Imperial Parliament Expected to Demand Radical Modification of New Tax Proposals.

Berlin, March 30. The suggested increase of the German army will be voted practically without opposition except from the Socialists, who still resist as a matter of form, according to the general opinion expressed by the newspapers here to-day. The government's financal expenditure connected with the augmentation of the forces, on which the federal council agreed only with difficulty, will, however, be subjected to the most severe criticism.

The imperial parliament, it is argued by the newspapers, will undoubtedly demand radical modifications of the new tax proposals, respecting some and demanding the substitution of others which will weigh more heavily on the well-to-do classes.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 326 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area — At the Junction, Ottawa South

OWING to the fact that so many new industries are locating around Ruskin Place, an interesting calculation has been made of what an industry employing 1,000 hands means to a community. $90,000 would be spent in housing accommodation.

The population would increase by 5,000. The assessment would be augmented by $600,000. Salaries would amount to $559,800. The construction of buildings of all kinds would be $2,000,000. The annual expenditures for foodstuffs would be $63,000 for meat, $96,000 for potatoes, $5,000 for sugar, $18,250 for milk, $65,700 for butter, $27,600 for eggs. All told the farmers of the district would gain $221,600. The amount spent for clothing would be $167,750. The expenses for taxes added to the cost of building construction will amount to $2,428,350.

The fine new $40,000 plant of the Bishoprick Wallboard Co., is now built at Ruskin Place. A second industry to employ 300 hands at its inception has already purchased the required land while a third guaranteeing to employ 1,000 hands is now negotiating for enough land to commence operations.

JUST THINK what the above means—practically a small city in itself right on the edge of the Capital.

JUST THINK of the number of stores to be built there.

JUST THINK of the number of carpenters, bricklayers, stonemasons and other tradesmen altogether seperate from the number of employees in the different factories that will be needed to build homes for those who work there.

JUST THINK of the thousand and one different jobs of any and every kind that will spring up at Ruskin Place during the next few years and buy your homesite now so as to be one of the main few who got in on the ground floor.

RUSKIN PLACE offers one of the finest and best opportunities for speculation ever presented to the residents of Peterborough.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Berlin is likely to see a solution shortly of the housing problem in the activity of an out-of-town corporation which proposes to erect fifty workingmen's homes the coming summer.

When Sir Charles Tupper, aged ninety-two, reaches England, he should drop in at Oxford and shake hands with that other distinguished Canadian, Sir William Osler, who is said to have propounded a rather interesting theory as to the uselessness or usefulness of men after forty.

GOATDS FOR FARMERS

During the past few months the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has been in receipt of numerous inquiries as to where it might be possible to purchase either Angora or Milch goats. It would appear that in many parts of the Dominion the demand for these useful and profitable animals is rapidly developing and that those who at present have any surplus stock can find a ready sale for them if a channel of communication between supply and demand is established. Accordingly as a means of starting a convenient Directory of Canadian Breeders of Angora Goats and Milch Goats, the Live Stock Commissioner will be pleased to receive from such breeders information regarding their respective flocks covering the following points:—

1. Kind and number of goats kept.
2. Usual number for sale each year.
3. Approximately the prices asked.
4. If possible a brief statement regarding expenses found necessary and the returns which may be expected by one engaging in raising this class of stock.

Communications supplying the above information should be addressed to the Live Stock Commissioner, Ottawa, Ont.

PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY

Last week, at Orangeville, Ont., a case was tried before Chancellor Sir John A. Boyd, which is of some interest to parents throughout the country. A little lad of mine had been kicked by a boy of twelve, and as a result of the kick suffered such injury that an operation became necessary. The father of the injured child then sued the father of the older boy for damages. The defendant claimed that the injury was simply an accident, but the plaintiff declared that the elder boy had vicious propensities, and that his father knew it. The boys, their parents, and the doctors all gave evidence, and the case went to the jury, who awarded the plaintiff $200 damages. According to the decision the father of a child is liable for damages for the wrong committed by that child with-i.e., the parent is responsible not only morally but legally for his child. It may be that he cannot control that child, but the theory is that he ought to control him, and if he fails to do so he is responsible to society for the results which may follow. This may seem a hardship at times, but if the parent is not responsible for his child, who is?

BRITISH PARLIAMENT AND WOMEN SUFFRAGE

It is now almost certain that a Woman Suffrage bill will be introduced in the British House of Commons in April. The prospect in front of the measure is not, however, very promising. The advocates of votes for women have so far failed to unite upon a definite policy, and time that might have been used in educational work has consequently been very largely wasted. The policy of extreme militancy which has been the outstanding feature of the situation since the withdrawal of the Franchise Reform bill is doing considerable harm and is endangering the passage of the private member's bill, which is the only method at present possible by which the desired end may be reached.

Priority will probably be obtained by a measure embodying what is known as the "Dickinson" proposals. These it will be recollected, would enfranchise all women over the age of 25 years who are either themselves inhabitant householders or are the wives of such, to the number of about five millions. If the second reading is carried, and the House will be left entirely free to vote upon it, the party whips being withdrawn for the occasion—the bill will be treated as a Government measure and so enabled to come under the provisions of the Parliamentary Act, if necessary.

The support of many Conservative suffragists is doubtful for two reasons. For some of them the scope of the bill is too wide; they favor the proposals of the Conciliation bill of 1910 rather than the franchise proposed. Many of them, again, will object to support any bill which may afterwards come under the provisions of the Parliament Act, since they wish to avoid even the appearance of approving, or making use of, that Act.

The outcome of the present opportunity is, therefore, doubtful; but much mote could have been made of it had the extreme section been disowned by the saner portion of the adherents of the movement.

NOT A VICTIM OF PAVEMENTS

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—With reference to a news-item which appeared in Friday's "Morning Times," Mr. Thompson is described as "Another Victim" to our "pavements," which is both misleading and incorrect.

Kindly publish this in justice to our "pavements," and oblige.

RARE OPPORTUNITY TO GET OIL STOCK

With the constant and growing demand for crude oil, as fuel for battle ships and other ocean going craft, and the by-products, such as gasoline, naptha, etc., for automobile and other engines, the use of oil and its possibilities in the duture are immense. Now that the Pennsylvania oil fields have been thoroughly exploited, the eyes of capital and demand are turned westward. The State of Wyoming has proven to be wonderfully rich in crude petroleum. The companies operating the Syoming oil fields have been, as a general thing, very successful.

Attention, in this connection is called to an advertisement in this issue of the Larsen Oil Co., of Rawlins and Denver, Col. The new Muddy Creek Oil fields are proving very rich. The Larsen Co. has a splendid property in that district. As will be seen by the advertisement, this company is heartily endorsed by the Board of Trade and leading financial institutions.

Detroit Judge Tired of Hearing Divorce Cases of Windsor Marriages

According to a declaration made by Police Justice Stein of Detroit, much of the divorce business which has clogged the courts of Michigan, and particularly those of Dtroit, is the result of the Windsor "hasty marriage" system, and Judge Stein believes concerted effort should be made to get rid of this class of "trade."

"So far as I am concerned," said Judge Stein. "I am going to throw out all these Windsor marriage cases from my court."

HUSBAND'S RIGHTS

A Man's Liberties Are Sometimes Interrupted by Over Entertainment

One of the most dangerous things about home life just now is the excessive amount of entertaining the average wife does. Of course, entertaining necessitates going, and the popular hostess is also the popular guest. It is a common happening that husband and wife do not have one uninterrupted evening at home for weeks and sometimes even months at a time. Such a state of affairs is bound to bring disaster in time, both to husband and wife, but it particularly cheats the men out of their home rights. Every man who is at the head of a household is entitled to certain privileges, and wives will have to recognize this fact. Every husband ought to stand for this right of a guestless home part of each week, and he should also take a stand against excessive going, whether it involves his presence or not. It is peculiarly exasperating to the average husband to come home tired and discouraged and find guests, or else to find a programme arranged, that makes him hustle into another outfit and go out till 10 or midnight. It is a shade less trying to find the house deserted and to hear his wife's voice over the telephone asking him to call for her later in the evening, or else telling him she will be home later, but the fact remains that he is being cheated out of his rights. A man is entitled to a warm welcome, a hot, substantial meal in his wife's society, and a quiet evening at least three-fourths of his evenings. He doesn't want to take a hand at some game when tired and depressed, and neither does he want to be routed out about 11 to take some woman home whose husband cannot come for her. If the ladies cannot do the greater part of their entertaining and going in the afternoon, then they had better begin on the morning hours, but the husband's right to the evening ought to be recognized more than it is.

But in cheating their husbands the deluded young women are cheating themselves, for one of these days social joys will wane, but the partnership with a good man founded on equality and justice outlives time.

HOME HINTS

When cleaning damp boots, add a few drops of paraffin to the blacking. This gives a good polish and prevents the leather from cracking.

When the tag of a shoe-lace comes off, twist the lace and smear it with black sealing-wax. This answers the purpose as well as the original tag.

To remove shine from a blue serge skirt make some very strong blue water and sponge the serge. Allow to dry slightly, then lay a thin cloth over the material and press with a warm iron.

When gas mantles split at the bottom, lift off and carefully trim away the frayed edges with a pair of scissors, and shorten the mantle support. This will increase the light to its former brilliancy, and can be repeated a second time. As mantle supports only cost three a penny, this will be found a great saving.

Chopping and pastry boards, after being scrubbed in the usual way should be rubbed over with a cut lemon and then rinsed in cold water. This makes them beautifully white.

To clean a copper kettle, wet a flannel with hot water, sprinkle with powdered borax, and rub. Polish with a leather.

The juice of a lemon in a glass of hot water, sipped slowly the first thing every morning, is the safest and best anti-fat medicine.

A teaspoonful of lemon juice in a small cup of black coffee will relieve a bilious headache.

A slight squeeze of lemon juice in a glass of water makes an excellent dentifrice. It removes tartar and sweetens the breath.

After pouring hot water through the bristles, let the brush stand in basin in water and teaspoonful of ammonia for 30 minutes. Rinse and place in sun to dry

Lemon juice and glycerine mixed in equal quantities will whiten and soften the hands, if rubbed in every night after washing them in warm water.

To remove the dust from rubber plants and palms, and to give a gloss to the leaves, wipe each leaf with a cloth dipped in milk. Pour the remaining milk around the pots of the plant to nourish it.

Rub half a pound of icing sugar through a fine sieve, slightly whip the white of an egg, and add enough of it to the sugar to make a stiff paste; flavor to taste with peppermint essence. Roll out on a pastry board sprinkled with icing sugar to the thickness of about a quarter of an inch; cut out with a plain round cutter the size of a penny.

Natives of Hong Kong are fond of enlarged pictures of photographed family groups.

QUICKLY CURES THE WORST BACKACHE

Makes Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, and Rheumatic Pains Vanish

It is no longer necessary for any one to suffer with backaching, kidney trouble, have disagreeable bladder and urinary disorders to contend with, or be tortured with rheumatism stiff joints, and uts heart-wrenching pains, for the new discovery, Croxone, quickly and surely relieves all such troubles.

Croxone is the most wonderful remedy yet devised for ridding the system of uric acif and driving out all the poisonous impurities which cause such troubles. It is entirely different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else ever used for the purpose. It acts on the principle of cleaning out the poisons and removing the cause.

It soaks right in through the walls membranes and linings, like water in a sponge, neutralizes, dissolves, and makes the kidneys sift out and filter away, all the uric acid and poisons from the blood, and leaves the kidneys and urinary organs clean, strong healthy and well.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what you have used, the very principle of Croxone is such, that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves you the first time you use it.

If you suffer with pains in your back, and sides, or have any signs of kidney, bladder troubles, or rheumatism, such as puffy swellings under the eyes, or in the feet and ankles, if you are nervous, tired, and run down or bothered with urinary disorders, Croxone will quickly relieve you of your misery. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if fails in a single case.

OLD SOLDIER RETURNS HOME

Pioneer of Winnipeg, Who Fought in Many Wars of the Empire, Goes Back to Little Scottish Village

Winnipeg lost one of her pioneers in the departure for the "Land o Cakes" of Captain John McKay, who was for many years in the service o the Dominion Government prisons branch. "Jack" McKay was a resident of Manitoba for upward of 3 years and can tell tales of stirring times around Fort Garry. A soldier for almost a whole lifetime, Captai John stands straight nd sturdy and carries his 83 years with a mien o a man of 60 years. In fact, he say people believe him to be fabricating when he tells them his age, so young does he look.

Prior to his departure, Mr. McKa said he was looking forward with great delight to seeing his old home again in the little village of New Galloway, Kirkcudbrightshire, Scotland.

Prior to coming to Canada Captain McKay saw service in the British army, taking part in the Turkish and Crimean campaigns. On his breast h still wears a faded, yet nevertheless highly treasured ribbon, the various colors of which denote the engagement in which he has taken part. In his pocket he carries several medals. Chief among these is a Crimean medal Attached to the Crimean medal are four bars inscribed respectively, Sebastapol, Alma, Inkermann, and Balaclava. In these four battles Captain John saw active fighting, and as his memory is undimmed by the years his eyes sparkle as he recounts anecdotes of the campaign.

When asked if he regretted leaving Canada and if he would come back, Captain McKay said he hardly regretted leaving this country in view of the greater joy in seeing his old home again. He said it was hardly to be expected that he would come back again.

TEST YOUR DIAMONDS

Here Are Several Easy Ways to Find Out if the Gems Are Real

The old way of scratching glass with a diamond to test its genuineness is not at all infallible. Any hard substance will scratch glass—a flint, a piece of hard glass, a bit of carbon—any of these will scratch glass, but only a genuine diamond will cut.

A little drop of water, if it falls on a real diamond facet, will retain a globular form, and may be moved all over the stone, without braking, on the point of a common steel needle. If the stone be glass, or even a good paste imitation, the water will spread all over the surface.

Again, if you get a little borax and mix it into a paste, by placing the diamond in the flame of an alcohol lamp, having first encased it in the borax paste, you may find out if the stone is genuine by dropping it into a basin of cold water when it is hot. If it be glass, you will find it shivered to pieces, if genuine it will be intact.

You can also use the color test. Get a piece of cotton, or other material, which is marked with white and red lines or spots. If an imitation stone be passed over the colors they will appear just as they are; but, if a true diamond be used, then you will not be able to discover any great difference between the colors.

And again: Take a piece of paper and make a small round mark in black. Now look at the mark through the stone. If it be genuine, you will see the mark in its proper shape. If it be an imitation then you will have confused blur all broken and uneven.

Here is the easiest and most simplest: Drop a suspect stone into a glass of clear water. If it be an imitation, its color becomes merged into that of the water—if one can say water has color—but in the case of a genuine one it may be seen quite as clearly at the bottom of the glass as if it rested in the hand.

MANY INDIAN RELICS

Island Near Manitoulin Evidently Scene of Many Conflicts

About five miles from the south shore of the Manitoulin Island lies Lake Mindemoya, or, in the Indian tongue, "Lake of the Old Woman." It is about seven miles long, and varies from one to three miles in width, and, with its pretty, sandy beaches, sheltered bays, and its island, is one of the most beautiful lakes in Ontario. It is in the limestone area, and, consequently, part of the shore is formed by high, precipitous cliffs of the limestone rock, moss-grown, weathered, and cleft by frost and storm.

High up in the face of this rock, a large cave was discovered many years ago. A man was walking along the cliff, when he suddenly saw before him this huge chamber in the rock. Strewn upon the floor were Indian skeletons and weapons, just as they must have fallen when hemmed in by a hostile tribe. One skeleton was of gigantic size. As further proof that this was an Indian stronghold, the whole front of the cave was once walled up with flat stones to a considerable height; this defence has fallen down, but still the form of the wall can be seen in the mass of stones lying on the ground.

About nine miles northeast of the cave lie what are supposed to be the remains of another old Indian fort. A row of stakes, planted in a circular form, is all that remains, and most of these are decayed and just visible above the level of the earth. Tradition says that this was used as a defence during an Indian war. Several places near Lake Mindemoya are known as battle grounds because of the stone arrowheads and other weapons found.

CANADA'S PULPWOOD

Huge Quantities That Would be More Valuable if Manufactured

Fifty-six per cent. of the pulpwood cut in Canada during the year 1911 was exported to the United States. This is the fact shown by statistics collected by the forestry branch of the department of the interior.

The total quantity of pulpwood cut in Canada during 1911 was 1,530,327 cords. The quantity exported amounted to 847,939 cords, while the remaining forty-four per cent. (672,388 cords) was manufactured in Canada.

The value of this pulpwood was $3,340,592, an average of $6.39 per cord. Had the wood been retained in Canada and manufactured here, it is estimated that the value would have been increased to about $15,000,000.

Had Canada manufactured into wood-pulp all the pulp-wood she produced, she could have had enough to supply a hundred and twenty-two mills of the average size of those operating in Canada, instead of the fifty-four she now has. Quebec could have supplied sixty per cent. more mills than she is now doing, and New Brunswick could have doubled the number of her mills.

The death occurred at St. Patrick's Asylum, Ottawa, of Miss Kate McGilvery who was over one hundred years of age. Miss McGilvery who had been an inmate of the Asylum for about ten years, resided in Ottawa for many years. Her parents were Scotch, and although she was born in Nova Scotia she still spoke with a broad Scotch accent. She was greatly loved by all about her, and was in possession of all her faculties until near the end. She could read without glasses and was not at all deaf. As far as is known she left no relatives.

RAN DANGEROUS RAPIDS

Three Young Men Perform Feat Indians Feared to Attempt

The honor of running the rapids of the Upper Fraser River from Tete Jaune Cache on the Grand Trunk Pacific main line to Fort George, for the first time, belongs to three adventurous youths from the United States who made the hazardous journey in safety. They made the trip in a 12 foot collapsible canoe passing through waters that have never been traversed even by Indians with far largr canoes. In some parts of the criuse they are said to have averaged a speed of a mile a minute in rapids that were studded with dangerous rocks. On one of these they stuck but succeeded in sewing up their craft at the foot of the rapids. Altogether the party was nine days on the river. On at least half a dozen occasions these amateur canoemen were warned that probable death awaited them if they did not take to the portages used by other travellers, but in spite of all they stuck to the river until they reached the Fort.

NEW LIGHT ON BUNKER HILL

In connection with the controversy over the old cannon which for years has been an object of interest to tourists at Quebec, it is interesting to note the manner in which McLaughlin, the American historian sums up the story of the battle of Bunker Hill, which occurred June 17, 1775.

"The world knows the result," he writes. Beaten back in wo desperate assaults, the British finally captured the redoubt when the provincials had run out of ammunition. It was a victory dearly bought, and though the Americans were for the moment overcome by mortification, their brave resistance to disciplined troops was of great moral effect."

GUEST OF TROOPS

How Soldier's Sweetheart Saved His Life.

By HAROLD CARTER.

"Impossible!" shouted old Colonel Saunders, chewing at his steel-gray mustache; and for the first time during forty years of active service he actually trembled. The horror of this was more overpowering than the hiss of the Moro bolos when, drunk with bhang, they closed in upon the skirmish line. "Impossible!" he muttered, and sank back into his chair.

Outside the hot sun of the Philippines burned the parched land, sending its scorching rays into the white-washed house in which he sat. Upon the table in front of him his orderly had placed a closely-typed document of five pages. It was the findings of the court martial which had sat on the preceding day. It had passed sentence of death upon a certain William Gilfoy for having joined the Moro forces and fired upon his former comrades. If Colonel Saunders affixed his signature to the document the death sentence would be carried out—not a year hence, nor a month hence, nor a day hence, but now.

There was death in the quiet air, in the hushed expectancy of the camp, in the rows of white-washed cells in the barracks also, and in the barrack yard, where a grim post, like an enormous carpenter's square set upright, creaked as the executioner tested the mechanism of the trap.

"His sweetheart!" muttered the colonel again. "I can't see her—I won't see her, Walters. Tell her —"

"May I come in?" inquired a gentle voice outside, and a girl entered—a typical American girl, such as is to be met in thousands in the little towns and villages of the New England states. She might have been twenty-five; her face had lost the sweet immaturity of youth and had been replaced by that gentle and half maternal look that is to be seen sometimes on the faces of good women.

"I am Miss King," she said, smiling happily at Colonel Saunders. "I suppose William has told you that—that we are to be married here, now that his term has ended." A slight blush suffused her face. "But they told me in the barracks that Mr. Gilfoy had gone to Manila to meet me there," she said. "It seems a dreadful mistake, doesn't it?"

Inwardly the colonel blessed the forethought of his men. But he might have known that there was not one man under his command who would have told her—he might as well have killed her.

"But I am so glad that he has served his country with honor, and has come safely through these terrible dangers," Miss King continued. "He was—well, a little wild. But he has redeemed himself, as I knew he would. Congressman Lathrop—" she hesitated. Then, seeing the colonel's look, and mistaking it, she continued:

"He told my father that William would be safe under your care, Colonel Saunders. That is what everyone says about you at home. They call you"—she hesitated—"well, the 'Father of the Regiment.'"

In the brief moment that elapsed before he answered her a thousand thoughts rushed through the colonel's brain. A minute ago he had actually dipped his pen into the ink preparatory to signing the death warrant. Now the act seemed impossible. He thought of Gilfoy—he had been wild, but a good and brave soldier, conspicuous in many engagements until the devil of loneliness that was eating out his heart summoned the drink devil to his aid and the two together fuddled the boy's brains until he turned traitor and disgraced the regiment and his country. And Gilfoy, crazy from the villainous native potations, had been like a man in a nightmare; he had remembered nothing from the day he deserted until he was captured, firing his rifle wildly into the air, alone in the deserted hut.

He might have saved him by a few kindly words. Instead he had committed him to the punishment cells for his first offenses, had bullied him, disciplined him, let him go to perdition—he, the "Father of the Regiment."

"Excuse me, Miss King," he said abruptly. "Pray be seated. I will be back in a few minutes." And he strode away under the blazing sun in the direction of the barracks.

Inside the yard the executioner was still fumbling with the trap, over which a dummy hung suspended, a hideous bound thing of a man's weight, dangling grotesquely from the cord. The colonel turned his eyes away.

Inside his cell William Gilfoy was seated beside his cot, staring vacantly through the bars at a wisp of blue. When the colonel entered he started as a man awakening out of a dream. The colonel sat down beside him upon the plank bed.

"Gilfoy," he said quietly, "your sweetheart is here."

Gilfoy looked hard at him.

"She hasn't been told?" he said impassively.

"Not yet, Gilfoy."

The boy smiled bravely. "I think it would be best to have it done as soon as possible," he said. "But, sir, must she know?"

"She shall never know," answered the colonel. Then he bent forward and took the boy's hand in his.

"Gilfoy," he said, "you have taken no life. It was not you who betrayed your country—it was your devil, your own personal private devil, the one who lies in wait for each man to trap him when he revolts against the dominance of his better nature. A cavalry troop leaves for Santos this evening. You will accompany it and there take the train for Manila."

Gilfoy half rose, and suddenly sat down again and burst into tears.

"I ought to die," he sobbed. "She will never—"

"She will never know anything," the colonel answered, completing the sentence. He called to the jailer.

"Private Gilfoy is pardoned," he said. "Bring him his uniform and set him free."

"Yes, Miss King, you will have to go back to Manila," said Colonel Saunders five minutes later. "If we had known you were coming—well, we might have made different arrangements. There will be a cavalry troop leaving for Santos, the terminal, tomorrow afternoon. Till then you must be the guest of the regiment."

He passed his hand over his eyes, and, suddenly seizing his pen, he scrawled "Verdict disapproved" across the paper. He looked up. "Tell Congressman Lathrop that I shall try to live up to my reputation hereafter-ward," he continued.

Fears the "Ic"

A man who spends much of his time figuring on the whys and wherefores of the world and its people has come to the conclusion that sailors will steer clear of vessels that have names ending in "ic" for the reason that the "Arctic" was lost in 1854; the "Pacific" in 1856; the "Atlantic" in 1873; the "Naronic" in 1893, the "Republic" in 1909, and the "Titanic" in 1912; all of these wrecks being notable disasters for loss of life and property or both.

Points of Light

Persons who intend redecorating their homes will be interested to know that experiments carried on by German scientists as to the reflection and absorption of light by various colors shows that dark blue reflects but 6½ per cent. of light falling on it; dark green, 10 per cent.; pale red, a little more than 16 per cent.; dark yellow, 20 per cent.; pale blue, 30 per cent.; pale orange, 40 per cent., pale green 46½ per cent.; pale orange, 55 per cent., and pale white 70 per cent.

PUBLIC approval of the light beer is most emphatic.

A Prominent Physician, speaking before the Ontario Medical Council, said:

"Lager and Mild Ale are forms of liquid beefsteak, which impart power and strength to the system."

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Phillip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the head of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X.—Johnson is allowed to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

CHAPTER XI.—Clyde seeks assistance from a Chinese fellow college student who recommends him to Yup Sing, most prominent Chinaman in New York. The latter promises to seek information of Cameron among his countrymen.

CHAPTER XII.—Among Cameron's letters is found one from one Addison, who speaks of seeing Cameron in Pekin. Cameron had frequently declared to Clyde that he had never been in China.

CHAPTER XIII.—Clyde calls on Dr. Addison. He learns that Addison and Cameron were at one time intimate friends, but had a falling out over Cameron's denial of having been seen in Pekin by Addison.

a word with him. To my amazement he not only denied having been in Peking, but in the Chinese empire at all. When we met in London, the following spring, and I recalled the matter, asking why he had refused to admit what I knew to be the truth, he became icily indignant; and that was the beginning of the end. If I had conceded the possibility of mistake on my part, all might have been well, I suppose; but there was no such possibility. I had known Cameron for twenty-odd years, and I could not have made an error. I had seen him distinctly, clearly, at midday in the open. It was he beyond all peradventure, and from that time to this I have been unable to conceive why he lied to me, and why he chose to end our friendship rather than admit what was indubitable fact."

His explanation finished, he reached for a pen, and, as he dipped it in the ink, he added:

"I trust you will pardon me, Mr. Clyde. I have detained you."

"You have interested me," I assured him. "And that more than I can tell you." Which was quite true; yet I was even more perplexed than interested. To the maze of circumstances there was now added another baffling feature.

Dr. Addison handed me the prescription he had written.

"After meals, and at bedtime," he directed, with a return to his professional manner. "If you do not find yourself much better at the end of a week, come in again."

On the sidewalk I tore the little square of paper into bits which the wind carried in a tiny flurry across Madison avenue.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Dark of Doyers Street.

At one o'clock that day, Evelyn Grayson joined me at luncheon at Sherry's. She had been in no mood to wait any longer than was absolutely necessary for tidings of my visit to Dr. Addison; and, moreover, she had news of her own which she was anxious to convey to me.

I have often wondered why it is that the I-told-you-so passion is inherent in all women. There are those who manage to control it with admirable success under average circumstances, but soooner or later, even the most courageous battlers against this maternal heritage succumb, and indulge in a sort of disguised orgy of reproach.

Evelyn might have told me, for instance, that Captain MacLeod, after careful investigation, had been unable to discover either hair or hide of Peter Johnson in Gloucester or elsewhere, and stopped there. That is what a man would have done. But, altogether admirable though she was, the eternal feminine was strong within her. Therefore it was incumbent upon her to add:

"It doesn't surprise me, Philip. When you told me how you picked that man up, I was confident that he was floating out there in your path just for that very purpose."

I had no inclination to dispute the point with her. That was the most painful part of it. I knew that she was right—that in putting Peter Johnson ashore, instead of in irons, I had committed an error that might prove irremediable. But why couldn't she see that I realized it, and was smarting under my own condemnation, and so have spared me this added torture of hers? Why? Because she was her mother's daughter. That is the only answer.

As for my interview with "Pythias" Addison, we discussed it in all its phases, without reaching anything like a definite conclusion. Taking everything into consideration the evidence certainly seemed convincing that Cameron, in spite of his denials, had been in China in 1908. And yet we could not reconcile this with that almost fanatical love of truth which we knew to be his.

"Couldn't Dr. Addison have been mistaken?" Evelyn asked.

"It is possible, of course," I answered. "Yet Cameron's face and figure are not of a common type. Besides, I don't believe in doubles. I have heard of so-called wonderful likenesses, but I have never seen any that would deceive a friend of twenty years' standing."

A little later she inquired whether the detective engaged to shadow Philetus Murphy had furnished a report.

"Yes," I told her, "it came in my morning's mail. Murphy is still at Cos Cob. He didn't leave his bungalow all day yesterday, and he had no callers."

"I'm crazy to know what you learn tonight from Yup Sing," she went on, eagerly. "Oh, how I do hope it will give us some hint! It seems terrible to think of Uncle Robert in the hands of those unconscionable Chinamen. And, Philip, don't you think you had better take some one with you? I suppose Mr. Yup is to be trusted, but at the same time, you must remember you are going into the enemy's camp, and you should be careful."

But I laughed at the notion of taking a body-guard.

"I'm to meet him at nine o'clock," I told her, "in a public restaurant. Besides, there'll be a crowd of those 'Seeing New York' people down there about that time, and Chinatown will be on its best behavior. So never fear, little girl. Do you want me to telephone you when I get uptown? You know I'm going to stop tonight at my rooms in the Loyalton."

"Of course I want you to telephone me," she returned, emphatically. "It shouldn't take you very long to hear what Mr. Yup has to tell, should it? I shall be expecting you to call me up between ten and half-past, or by eleven at the latest; so don't dare to go for supper first."

"As if I could think of supper," I said, looking at her in a way I had, "when I might be hearing your voice!"

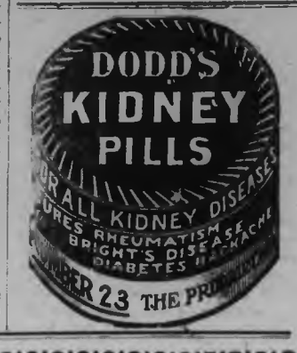
Could I have foreseen what the night was to bring forth I certainly should have discouraged her waiting for my message. But the power of prevision is given to few of us, and of those few I am not one.

Assuredly I had no misgivings as, after dining at the University club that evening, I stepped into an electric hansom and gave the driver the address of the Doyers street restaurant. Whatever it may have been in the past, I believed the Chinatown of the present to be, outwardly at least, a reasonably law-abiding section of the borough of Manhattan. And was not I that night the guest of one of its most honored citizens? What, therefore, had I to fear?

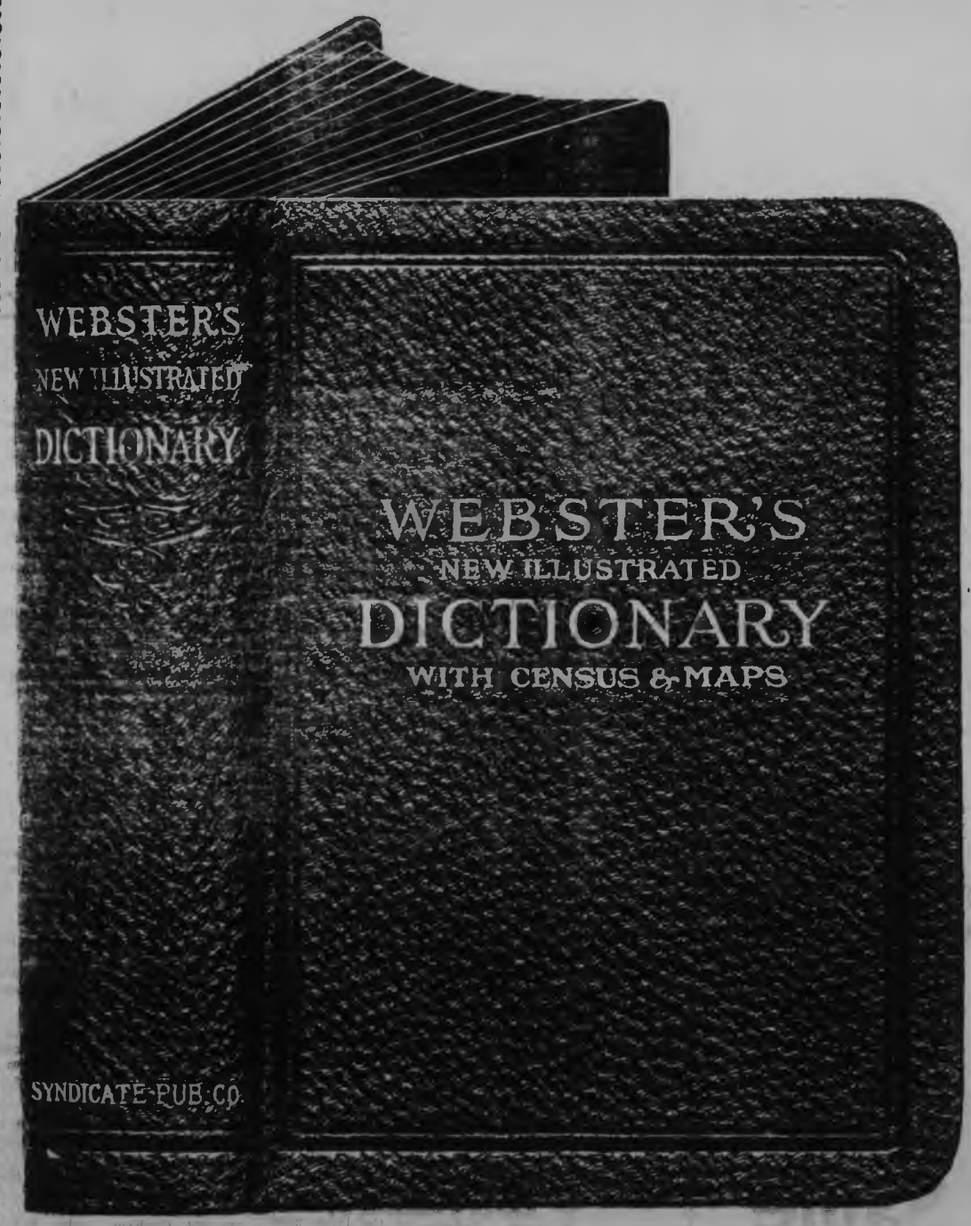
On the contrary, as we turned from the Bowery into that little semicircular thoroughfare which is perhaps the most characteristic of Chinatown's three principal streets, I was pleasantly interested. This was quite a different place from that which I had visited the afternoon before. Then, a sort of brooding quiet reigned over what was so ordinary as to be scarcely distinctive; for that part of Mott street on which the Yup Sing establishment is located, I have since learned, is merely one of the gates of the real Chinatown, of which Doyers street is the heart and center—and which awakens only after nightfall.

Now the place was alive and alight. Narrow roadway and still narrower sidewalks were thronged with a combination of denizens and sightseers. Shop fronts and upper windows glowed with varying degrees of brightness. From the Chinese theater on the left came a bedlam of inharmonious sounds: the brazen crash of cymbals, the squeaking of raucous stringed instruments, the resounding clangor of a gong. Voices high-pitched and voices guttural, mingled with hoarse and strident laughter, echoed from wall to wall of the street's encroaching squalid buildings.

Before the least unpretentious of all these structures, my hansom stopped, and as I stepped to the curb I got a glimpse of its banner and lantern strung balcony, giving to the street a touch of color that helped to lift it into an atmosphere which, if not Oriental, was at least vividly un-American.



Finding now that I had anticipated my appointment by something like ten minutes I chose to watch further the kaleidoscopic scene without, rather than pass the time waiting at a table within; and to this end took up a position of vantage on the restaurant's low step.



Whether I am more or less keenly observant than the average man I do not know. Probably any one as fascinated by the general scene as was I, would have noted as closely its individual elements. I am not sure. But the truth is that in a very few moments I had acquired a mental photograph of the opposite side of the street, in so far as it came within my direct vision. In other words every detail of the background of the moving picture before me was indelibly printed upon my mind's retina. There was the playhouse, with its plain, rectangular doorway, unadorned, save by a quartette of rude signs; two above, slanting outward, and one on either side, all announcing "Chinese Theater," and one giving the current attraction in Chinese characters, with the added notice, "Seats reserved for Americans." To the left of this was a quick lunch restaurant, with white painted bulk window, beneath which a pair of cellar doors spread invitingly, one of them resting against a conventional American milk can. On the theater's right was a laundry, dim and evil-looking, two pipe-smoking celestials decorating its low step. And beyond this was the wide opening to a basement, above which, in white Roman lettering on a black ground, I read the legend: "Hip Sing Tong."

Again and again my gaze persisted in returning to this sign and the dimly lighted cavern beneath it. The place held for me the inexpressible, unfathomable charm of the mysterious, beside which the heathenish racket of the theater across the way, the sinister aspect of the dismal laundry and its pair of pipe-smoking guardians, even the constantly changing procession of varied types in roadway and on sidewalks, exerted but meager allure.

From time to time dark, silent figures glided vaguely into view only to disappear within this maw of mystery. Once, while I watched, I had seen a figure issue forth to be lost again instantly in the distant gloom of the curving street. Now, reverting once more to this magnet, after a moment's truancy, my eyes were rewarded by sight of another slowly emerging form, silhouetted nebulously against the dusk.

Are You Droopy, Tired, Worn Out

HERE IS GOOD ADVICE TO ALL WHO FEEL AS IF THEIR VIGOR AND LIFE ALL OOZED AWAY.

This Condition Can be Quickly Cured by a Good Cleansing Medicine.

Your experience is probably somewhat similar to that described by Mr. J. T. Fleming in the following letter from his home in Lebanon: "I think I must have the most sluggish sort of a liver. In the morning my mouth was bitter, and that foul, soft feeling that tells you, "No breakfast needed here this morning.' A cup of coffee would sort of brace me up, but in two hours I was disposed to quit work, all energy having oozed out of me. Supper was my only good meal, but I guess I didn't digest very well, for I dreamt to beat the band. A friend of mine put me wise to Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I think they must have taken hold of my liver, perhaps my stomach, too, because at the very start they made things go right. Look at me now—not sleepy in the daytime, but hustling for the mighty dollar and getting fun out of life every minute. That's what Dr. Hamilton's Pills have done for me—they rebuilt and rejuvenated my entire system."

To keep free from headaches, to feel young and bright, to enjoy your meals, to sleep sound and look your best, nothing can help like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, five for $1.00 at all druggists and storekeepers or postpaid from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

New Treatment Now Advocated for Bronchitis

Is Having Wonderful Success, and is Making Most Remarkable Cures

For bronchitis a different form of treatment is now advocated. It consists of a scientifically devised vapor that penetrates to the uttermost recesses of the lungs and bronchial tubes. Every spot that is sore, every surface that is irritated is at once bathed with soothing balsams and healing essences that make chronic bronchitis an impossibility.

This treatment now so universally employed in bronchitis, throat troubles, colds, etc., is called CATARRHOZONE. It acts just as air of the pine woods acts, as a healing antiseptic remedy for all diseases of the breathing organs.

Just think of it—a remedy that can be carried with the very air you breathe to the seat of bronchial or catarrhal inflammation. A remedy powerful enough to kill germ life and yet so healing that disease flees before it. Catarrhozone is truly a wonderful remedy. In many lands it has lands it has won its way, and is affording grand results to sufferers from colds, catarrh, throat weakness, asthma and bronchitis. There is no sufferer from a grippy cold or any winter ill, that won't find a cure in Catarrhozone, which is employed by physicians, ministers, lawyers and public men throughout many foreign lands. Large size lasts two months and costs $1.00 and is guaranteed; small size 50c., sample size, 25c., all storekeepers and druggists, or The Ctarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Wyoming Oil Investments

Companies operating in various Wyoming Oil Fields have been, as a general thing, very successful.

Millions of dollars have been invested and returns are now so satisfactory that the general public rightfully regards Wyoming Oil Stocks as safe and exceedingly profitable.

THE MUDDY CREEK OIL FIELD

Among the nineteen Oil Fields in Wyoming, the new Muddy Creek Field ranks among the highest from a geological standpoint. Its location is in the geological and geographical centre of the Colorado-Wyoming oil formation.

THE LARSEN OIL COMPANY is a Wyoming Corporation, having its principle office at Rawlins. This Company was first in the Muddy Creek field, and has the best locations. The Company is endorsed in the highest terms by the local Board of Trade, banks and business interests. Large local investments prove that the Company is highly regarded where best known.

Investment in Stock of the LARSEN OIL COMPANY appears to be an opportunity to repeat the great profits made by the rise in value of stocks of the "Mid-West" and other Wyoming Oil Companies

In the older fields stocks are held at prices prohibitive to small investors. The initial price of LARSEN OIL STOCK is very low, much lower than would be justified by the Company's large holdings, equipment and development. Installment payments will be accepted.

The leading bankers and business men of Rawlins have the management of the Company and the reader may rest assured of honorable, able and energetic conduct of affairs.

Full particulars, including State Geologist's Report, Maps, etc., on request, and a thorough investigation is solicited.

J. P. MORGAN DIES IN ROME AFTER A LONG HEALTH TRIP

Man Who Controlled Billions in Railroad Stocks and Banks Passed Away at Noon After Three Months' Fight With Disease

New York, March 31. Henry P. Davison, a member of the house of Morgan, made the announcement of J. Pierpont Morgan's death. He said merely that he had received a cable that the financier had passed away shortly after noon. Mr. Davison had planned to go abroad some time this week, but it is thought probable that this trip will be postponed.

Coincident with Mr. Morgan's death it became known that he had sustained a serious attack before his departure for Europe but had rallied so rapidly that it was not considered a forerunner to fatal illness and was known only to his most intimate friends.

For many years Mr. Morgan spent a considerable portion of his time abroad, but on this trip for the first time he severed all connection with business affairs.

The Story From Rome.

Rome March 31.—J. Pierpont Morgan, the financier, died at five minutes past twelve o'clock noon to-day.

When his death was seen to be approaching rapidly Prof. Bastianelli and Dr. George A. Dixon forced Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, son-in-law and daughter, and Miss Helen Hamilton Morgan, who had been in constant attendance, to leave the room.

Mr. Morgan towards the end showed that he was suffering internally only by a movement of his right hand. Otherwise he displayed no sign of vitality except by continuous heavy breathing.

Tonics Had No Effect.

Frequent bulletins were issued during the morning, showing that his conhition was gradually becoming worse and by eleven o'clock the physicians had given up all hope.

Mr. Morgan was unable to assimilate the artificial nourishment administered during the morning and his physical weakness was extreme. Heart tonics were injected but these had no effect and for several hours before death he was in a state of coma, unable to respond to any questions or to recognize any of those at his bedside.

GERMAN ARMAMENTS ARE NOT PURELY DEFENSIVE

Times Says Whole Object is to be Able to Strike First Blow to Kill

London, March 31.—A Paris journal describes Germany's new airship expenditure as a sudden slap in the face for France. What is now certain is that the German Government means to spend 300 to 325 millions on extension of armaments between now and the end of 1915.

Incidentally the expensiture means 63,000 new recruits yearly to the vast host Germany commands. The Times comments as follows: The whole object plainly is to enable Germany to strike at a moment selected by herself more heavily and more promptly than ever.

We refuse to recognize these measures as either provocative or comminatory.

Need of Constant Vigilance.

They do, however, impose upon all Germany's neighbors, and emphatically upon ourselves, the need of constant vigilance. These neighbors are all bound by the commonest dictates of prudence to consider their defences in view of the great change in the balance of power, which this new development of German armaments will shortly bring.

They are not the less bound to take at once whatever steps are needful to make their defences efficient in the wholly new circumstances with which these are now confronted.

Effective in October.

The Temps and other Paris journals see much significance in the fact that Germany's armament increase will be effective on October first this year, instead of March 31, 1916. They ask what is the meaning of this feverish haste. Nobody, official or not, believes these German measures are purely and simply defensive. Almost every Frenchman moves under the shadow of foreboding.

MR. J. H. BURNHAM OFFERS ASSISTANCE

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., although against admitting the thin end of the wedge to split Canada apart from the Empire by being against reciprocity with our neighbors to the south, has displayed in a broad minded manner that a Canadian may well help said neighbor in distress. He according to Hansard, introduced the following motion in the House:

"Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the Prime Minister if it would be suitable to express sympathy with our neighbors to the south in the disaster that has recently overtaken them. I refer to the matter, because the President of the United States has characterized the catastrophe as a national calamity. It seems to me that we should express some kindliness towards them at this time."

Of course, Sir Wilfrid, like a child despoiled of its bit of Treasury candy, had to ring in the old reciprocity issue that wrecked his party.

THE WEATHER.

DAYTON NEEDS MONEY

John H. Patterson Sends Urgent Appeal For Funds.

Dayton, O., Mar. 31.—John H. Patterson, Chairman of the Citizens' Relief Committee, issued the following statement to-day regarding conditions here:

"Our committee has now at its disposal all the food and clothing necessary to meet the loss of the sufferers of Dayton. Money, however is urgently required for putting our city in condition to prevent the outbreak of serious disease, and to rehabiltate the thousands, many of whom have lost their homes entirely and all of whom have lost their household and personal effects.

"The committee wishes to send out an urgent appeal to the citizens of the United States for the necessary funds. All contributions should be sent direct to W. F. Bippus, the relief committee. Mr. Bippus who has been appointed treasurer of will send receipts for all monies received."

FORMER LOCAL MASTER DEAD AT KINGSTON

Dean Ellis of Queen's University has Passed Away.

A Kingston despatch says, that after a short illness with pneumonia, Dean William S. Ellis of Queen's University Faculty of Education died at his residence on Bagot street. Deceased was born in Perth County 57 years ago. He was graduated at Victoria College as Master of Art ig 1879 and was later Master in Woodstock, Cobourg and Peterborough Collegiate Institutes. In 1890 he was appointed Principal of Cobourg Collegiate, and in 1893 came to Kingston as Principal of the Institute there, where he remained until the spring of 5910, when he was appointed successor to Dean Lavell at Queen's, a position he ably filled, for he was one of the leading educationists of the Province.

The funeral will take place this afternoon from St. James' church, Kingston

FRIEDMANN DIDN'T CURE

Miss Marie Dubois in Tears at Sudden Relapse.

Montreal, March 31.—Miss Marie Dubois, of East Lagauchetiere street, is again confined to her bed, unable to walk a step, as was the case before Dr. Friedmann's visit. She believed she had been cured, but now she is worse than ever.

Last Thursday evening she retired to rest happy in the feeling that she was almost cured of her terrible sickness. In the morning, Friday morning, she was unable to raise from her bed. During the night her knees had swollen as badly as before, if not a little worse.

The girl was almost in tears at her sudden relapse from a state of great joy to one of hopeless dejection again.

SUFFRAGISTS MAKE SCENE IN INQUIRY

Denounced Lloyd George as Traitor to the Women—Interrupters Ejected.

London, March 31.—Suffragists created a scene to-day at the resumption of the proceedings of the inquiry into the wireless contracts of the British Government, when Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, took the stand to unhergo further examination.

The Chancellor used the word "principle," and a male suffragette immediately arose and shouted an angry protest. He exclaimed, "I object to that man using the word 'principle.' He is a traitor. He has betrayed the women."

The interrupter was promptly ejected, but another soon interposed.

Mr. Lloyd George remarked that he was not a speculator, and had never bought to sell again, when a suffragette cried out. "You sold the women all right."

Evidently there were many sympathizers in the audience, for shouts of "hear, hear," resounded through the room.

Both the interrupter and her sympathizers were thrown out.

WHAT ROMAN CHURCH DOES FOR MARRIAGE

The following extraordinary state of affairs came out in the recent trial at Montreal where the husband applied for the annulment of his marriage. In all likelihood the Privy Council will straighten this matter out.

Montreal, March 31.—Judge Tellier delivered the judgment of the court of review granting the application of Arnold Wainwright, K.C., counsel for the appellant, to appeal direct to the privy council of the house of lords upholding the annulement of the Dspatie-Tremblay marriage on the ground that the principals were fourth cousins. His Lordship insisted that Mrs. Tremblay or her lawyer must deposit with the court within fifteen days $2,000 as security for costs. By allowing the appeal the court of review tacitly ignores the argument of Tremblay's counsel that it should not be permitted, because Mrs. Tremblay was not providing the money for it.

The parties to the Despatir Tremblay suit were married some years ago The marriage was first of all annuled by the Bishop of St. Hyacinthe on account of their being fourth cousins, a relationship considered in the Roman Catholic church as a bar to marriage unless a special dispensation is secured. The Ecclesiastical Decree was upheld in the civil courts by Judge Bruneau at Sorel last year. His judgment was endorsed by the court of review to which the appeal was taken, Judge Davidson dissenting.

In the course of evidence produced on behalf of the wife it was shown that the litigants traced their ancestry back to common forefathers who lived over a century ago, and one of the main arguments against the annulment apart from the main contention that a civil court could not give calidity to an ecclesiastical nullification of a marriage, was that Tremblay could have had the marriage legalized by the payment of a small fee to the church authorities.

THEY PREYED UPON PEOPLE WHOM THEY WENT TO RESCUE

Refused to Rescue Men, Women, and Children Until Well Paid--Looter Shot as He Cut Finger Off a Body of a Woman to Secure a Ring

Dayton, March 31.—Dozens of Dayton men took advantage of their city's disaster to make money.

They refused to rescue people from houses unless they were paid for their trouble. They looted stores and dead bodies.

This was the startling information brought from the flooded district on Saturday by Frank B. Barnett, publicity agent, 408 Park Building. Barnett was the first refugee from the flooded district to reach Cleveland. He got in early Saturday after 24 hours' traveling on different railroads by devious routes.

One negro looter was shot Barnett says, as he was cutting off the finger of a dead man to secure a ring.

Barnett saw the flood at its worst Wednesday. Here is his story:

"Tuesday the Arcade Hotel at Springfield was surrounded by water I saw a dozen houses washed away. Colonel C. X Zimmerman of Cleveland was at the hotel and received orders to take charge of rescue operations at Dayton.

He Saved 234 Lives.

Saving the lives of 234 people single-handed is the accomplishment in which Cohn Brady, 167 North Princeton avenue, is the heroic figure.

When the flood started on the west side on Tuesday morning Brady secured a leaky boat, which floated about, and then labored all day and part of the night in taking the families from the houses in the district between the old Scioto River channel and Central avenue, the part of the city worst affected, carrying them to safety at the Sun Manufacturing plant.

While this large crowd of refugees waited for relief, which finally came Thursday night, although they were not taken off until Friday afternoon, Morris O'Keefe organized them for the distribution of food. The sanitary conditions were awful, according to the survivors, and the last day each person was given a cup of cocoa in 24 hours. These people tell how Brady calmly went about his rescue work, while terrified men and women all about were shouting and going mad with frenzy. He refused to carry off possessions of the victims, insisting that he was bent only on saving life

GERMANY STAGGERS UNDER HER GREAT WAR BURDEN

Sixty Million Dollars to be Added to the War Chest of the Nation---Foreigners to Pay

Berlin, March 31.—The official announcement of the details of the forthcoming increase in the army and the war tax that will be imposed in connection with that increase has been received by the press and public with mixed resignation and criticism. There is little enthusiasm anywhere. There is a feeling that the increase must be made, but there is a chagrin over the necessity for it. There is a fear that the tax will drive the movable capital out of Germany to avoid the taxation, as well as hading a stagnating effect on business generally.

Foreigners to Be Taxed.

It develops that the proposed law provides that foreigners must pay the war taff and in connection with this and the other provisions of the law the Tageblatt demands that, as the Jews are among the heaviest of people making sacrifices for the Fatherland, in justice the Reichstag should remove the present obstacles in the path of Jews who would become army officers.

The Socialist newspaper, Vonwaerts, terms the war tax and the increase in the army as an orgy of militarism, which Socialists will oppose with all their power.

Mr. Pugsley, the Political Infant, seems to be so upset that one is forced to the conclusion that he is not being supplied now with Certified Milk.

MRS. HELEN METCALFE GETS BACK HER TWO CHILDREN

Mrs. Metcalfe Wins Her Action Against St. Vincent de Paul Society---Can Care For Them

Toronto, March 31. "The mother and step-father have both turned over a new leaf and the evidence before me entirely satisfies me that under the circumstances as they now exist, the children can safely and properly be delivered into their custody and control."

The foregoing is an extract from the interesting decision given by Mr. Justice Middleton at Osgoode Hall yesterday morning by which the habeas corpus proceedings instituted by Mrs. Helen Metcalfe, of this city, are brought to a termination and the alleged right of the St. Vincent de Paul Children's Aid Society, a Roman Catholic institution, to the custody of Mrs. Metcalfe's two children is set aside, the society being directed to relinquish all claim. The case was tried before His Lordship in Camera.

Parents of Diverse Faith.

The circumstances of the action as narrated by the judge are in effect as follows: The parents of the children were of diverse faiths, the father, Edward Maher, Mrs. Metcalfe's first husband, now dead, being a Catholic, and the mother an Anglican. The children who are named Ilene May and Frances Maud, aged 11 and 10, respectively, were baptized in the Catholic church, but without, according to their own statement, the knowledge of their mother. In 1907 the death of Mr. Maher occurred and in December of the same year Mrs. Metcalfe married her present husband.

Shortly before Maher's death he committed the children to the care of the society, as he was at that time without means and unable, through illness, to earn a living for himself. The mother, however, refused to give them up, although she, for a short time, placed them in a home on Gerrard street.

Good Home for Them Now.

The entire claim of the society rests upon the husband's execution of a will appointing it testamentary guardian.

MORGAN BECAME DELIRIOUS COLLAPSED EASTER SUNDAY

Mental Faculties Failed--Rise of Temperature Probably Due to Lesions of the Brain, Doctor's Statement Says--Wall Street Halts

Rome, March 31. A statement giving the full story of the late J. Pierpont Morgan's illness has been prepared by Prof. Guiseppe Bastianelli, Dr. M. Allen Starr and Dr. Geo. A. Dixon and cabled to his son in New York.

The statement recapitulates the symptoms of Mr. Morgan's malady since it first developed in Egypt. It qualifies his illness as nervous prostration, but says that his intelligence remained normal until Easter Sunday. Then a gradual general collapse supervened, affecting the digestion, and the mental faculties, until delirium ensued. The rise of temperature noted, it was stated, probably due to lesions of the brain.

Wall Street Halts Five Minutes.

New York, March 31.—Business was suspended for five minutes on the Stock Exchange while the members adopted a resolution on Mr. Morgan's death. The resolution was read from the rostrum. It was the first time in its history that the exchanged stopped work to pay honor in this manner. The resolution said in part:

"Resolved, that the death of J. Pierpoint Morgan has removed from America's large creative activities its most conspicuously useful figure. To the development of the resources of our country he has contributed more than any man of our day. His immense constructive genius was devoted not merely to American finance and industry, but to the wide field of philanthropy and humanity. The whole world has lost a wise counselor and helpful friend."

PSYSICIST OF POLAR TRIP SENDS AN INTERESTING NOTE

Hardships and Cold Turned the Hair of Young Toronto Scientist---Coming Home in May

Toronto, March 31. That two-thirds of the survivers of the Scott Polar Expedition have either turned grey or have become bald is an interesting fact revealed in the second letter of Mr. C. S. Wright, the psysicist of the expedition, to his father Mr. Alfred Wright, 60 Crescent road. Mr. Wright writes that the hardships have left their imprint in the shape of a few grey hairs.

By some curious fate, the letter which Mr. Wright sr. received first, was the second letter to be written to him, the latter bearing the date of February 15th, while the one which he received on Saturday evening was written on March 14. It is written on the official note paper of the expedition, bearing the crest of the Terra Nova, outlines his plans for the coming year, and states that on his return he will be accompanied by the geolobist of the party, Mr. F. Debenham, of Australia. They will land in Vancouver in May and spend some time in the Rockies and in Winnipeg before arriving in Toronto.

MR. AND MRS. BROOKS ENTERTAIN GUESTS

An interesting function was held last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brooks, 199 Dalhousie street, when they were host and hostess to a large number of friends who gathered to do honor to a newly wedded couple. The newly weds were Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Cullen, of Toronto. They were married in St. Francis Churrh, Toronto, yesterday morning, by Rev. Father McCann. The bride was married in her travelling suit, a tailormade suit of grey, whipcord. A pleasant evening was spent in cards and music with a wedding cake and refreshments.

The happy couple will spend a week as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks. The groom is a brother of Mrs. Brooks. On their return from their honeymoon the happy couple will reside in Toronto

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 306 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

Twenty-five Dollars Does It

This Helps You Buy a Beautiful High, Dry, Level Lot in the Fast Selling Subdivision

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area

At the Junction, Ottawa South

It is selling rapidly to good people of the class who will build homes and improve the property. There are a number of fine houses in course of erection, and many others to follow immediately. The lots are grassy lots without rock. They are level and easy to build upon, and there is abundance of clear, cold, pure water. The view takes in the whole City of Ottawa. Streets are 66 feet wide, and are being well laid out with trees and boulevards, and fine gravelled sidewalks just like every Metropolitan City.

Early connection with the City by no less than three electric railways is expected. The Morrisburg and Ottawa Railway have decided to start building on May 1st, 1913. The C. N. Railway have announced their early start upon their gas electric service, which will run right through RUSKIN PLACE. The Kingston and Rideau Lakes Electric Railway have surveyed right through the property and expect to commence work in the near immediate future.

When any one of these lines commence operations look out for an immense increase in price of RUSKIN PLACE Lots.

Lots at Ruskin Place Now Sell for $275, $300 and $375

Viscount on Death Duties

Part of the Normanhurst estate of Viscount Hythe, son of the Earl of Brassey, near Bexhill, is to be sold for small holdings, the tenants being given the option of buying their holdings by payments spread over twenty-five years.

In making the announcement Viscount Hythe said that during the past twenty-five years he had only received one per cent. from the Normanhurst estate. Owing to the burden of taxation and death duties it was impossible for anyone to live in his father's home, and if he outlived his father Normanhurst would have to be shut up.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Dominion Government Department of Public Works, contemplates erecting a customs warehouse, costing $250,000. in Regina, Sask.

Vancouver, which derives all its revenue from a tax on land values, is obliged to increaset he tax rate this year. The single tax is progressive in more than one sense.

The world is not so small after all. An ethpedition has just set forth to devote three years to the exploration of a vast unknown region in the valley of the upper Amazon.

If the King's Government is to be carred on, the majority must rule, and that is exactly what Mr. Bordon and his supporters in the House of Commons intend doing

"What most distinguishes the modern youth?" asks our local contemporary, the Review. Well, that's easy. It's his carefully cultivated belief that he has forgotten more than his father and mother ever knew

One reason for the extraordinary spread of floode in Indiana and in the lower parts of Ohio is the shallowness of the creek and river beds, due to the low gradients and the consequent sluggish currents.

THE BETTER WAY.

We commend to the English suffragettes the methods of certain women in one of the Western States, who place flowers on the desks of the legislators every morning, with a message calling attention to the measures which they especially desire to see brought about. Reckoning with human nature as it is, it is a much more persuasive method than window smashing and dynamite. As a certain writer has said, loving one's enemies is not merely a counsel of perfection, it is actually good tactics.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

The state of Washington is now added to the small list of the states which have no death penalty for murder or any other crime. In many states where the death penalty is in force there has been an agitation in recent years for its abolishment, but Washington has finally taken the step that the others have been talking about. Of the few other states that do not punish murder by death—occasionally, at least—Michigan, Rhode Island and Wisconsin have been without a death penalty for more than half a century. Maine abolished capital punishment in 1876, then restored it in the early eighties, and abolished it again in 1887. New York and Iowa have both abolished it and restored it again. In many states other crimes than murder are punishable by death, no fewer than ten crimes being so punishable in Georgia, for example. Still that is a small list in comparison with the 200 offences that were punishable by death in England a few centuries ago.

In Canada the death penalty prevails in every province.

U. S. OFFICE SEEKERS

A Washington correspondent, who has investigated the subject, reports that thus far 131,530 applications for office have been filed at Washington since the Wilson administration came in three weeks ago. This is not guess work, but an accurate tabulation of the applications at the ten departments. This means that one man in every forty-seven who voted the Democratic ticket last November is looking for his reward in the terms of a federal office. A good many of the others will yet be heard from.

Such being the deluge when it is so well understood that most of the offices are now protected by civil service regulations, and when the new administration makes it plain that it considers that it has a higher mission than the distribution of plums, what would have happened if there wer eno protection and if the new President had let it be known that he would devote himself to passing over the spoils to the victors? Verily, the Democratic faithful are hungry after their long fasting in the wilderness of successive defeats.

Think of that army of 131,530 daily growing in size, too—made up of patriots willing to give up $2000 jobs for the sake of $1000 jobs in the service of their country! Such is the fever of office seeking, though there are undoubtedly many $1000 men in the number who are industrially trailing $5000 jobs. Such is politics and the spoils system.

The tragedy of it all lies in the fact that 120,000 or more are going to be disappointed, for there are only about 10,000 jobs tt be handed out in partisan fashion. The new department of labor, for example, has about a dozen position to fill, but there are already over 5000 applications. And the appropriation for the maintenance of this department has not yet been made by Congress.

Office seeking is one of the great national sports of the American electorate; but in a case like this it is far more sport for the disinterested spectator than for the scrambling participants, or for the party leaders who try to parcel out 10,000 offices among 131,530 or more men who put in claims for them.

Your Bad Taste in the Morning is Due to Catarrh

Destroy This Poisonous Disease Before Your Health is Seriously Injured.

Perhaps you haven't thought of calling those unpleasant symptoms that affected your nose and throat by any particular name—but it's Catarrh just the same.

When the attack is severe, your eyes are watery and look weak. Your breath is offensive, due to inflammation in the nose and throat.

At last science has discovered a real remedy, a new scientific marvel which acts like no other Catarrh remedy on earth. "Catarrhozone" operates on a new plan; it is a direct remedy, goes instantly to the source of the trouble. Its rich, fragrant essences and healing balsams are breathed in vapor form through a special inhaler and give instant relief.

Catarrhozone doesn't stop at the relief stage—it goes further—keeps on going till a cure is affected. Bad cases are cured, as you can judge from the following letter: "Every morning for six months last winter I awoke with a bad taste, an awful breath and stuffed up feeling in my nostrils," writes Rob E. Rutland, of Regina. "It was simply an awful case of chronic Catarrh. Relief first came from Catarrhozone. I used that inhaler twenty times a day and took it to bed with me at night. I am cured, and by the use of Catarrhozone stay well. Now I am free from irritable throat trouble, coughs, colds, headache, or catarrh."

No medicine on earth is so certain to cure every form of Catarrh or throat trouble as "Catarrhozone." Get the large $1.00 size, lasts two months and is guaranteed; medium size, 50c.; sample size 25c. all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

THE THREE FISHERS.

(Published by Request.)

Three fishers went sailing away to the West,
Away to the West as the sun went down;
Each thought of the woman who loved him the best,
And the children stood watching them out of the town;
For men must work, and women must weep,
And there's little to learn, and many to keep,
Though the harbour bar be moaning.

Three wives sat up in the lighthouse tower,
And they trimmed the lamps as the sun went down;
They looked at the squall, and they looked at the shower,
And the night-rack came rolling up dragged and brown.
But men must work, and woman must weep,
Though storms be sudden, and waters deep,
And the harbour bar be moaning.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$27,000—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public, Preston, Limited, had 50,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

A VERY SAD CASE.

Port Hope Guide: Robert Hill appeared in court at Cobourg, before His Honor Judge Roger, on a charge of carnally knowing a girl under fourteen years of age—one Ellen Taylor. The plaintiff's story was very different—implicating two prominent citizens of this town. His Honor acquitted the prisoner, attaching no blame to him whatever. It was a very sad sight to witness the young girl in the witness box. A mere child in short dresses and an infant in arms.

A FINGER CLUE LEADS TO LAIR

Remarkable Story of Atrocious Crime of Two Well-Bred Russian Youths

SLEW WOMAN IN HOME

But in Haste to Escape Missed Valuables and Cash She Possessed.

St. Petersburg, March 31.—From the lips of two young men belonging to the upper clas in St. Petersburg the Crown Prosecutor, M. Alexandroff, has written in the form of an indictment for murder a narrative that might stand with the works of Dostoieffsky. The accused are Alexander Dolmatoff, aged 26, and his cousin, Baron Heismar, aged 21. The former is the son of the chief of the deciphering section of the Russian Foreign Office.

Baron Heismar's family own a modest estate at Pskoff. The positions of these drawing-room "Karamazoffs" (as Dostoieffsky calls his heroes) required that they should earn something to supplement their small parental allowances. Dolmatoff till a few months ago was a junior clerk in the Foreign Office, and Heismar was a clerk in the State Bank. From school days both had indulged their extravagant habits by great ingenuity in contracting debts which they never paid.

THE MEETING WITH THE VICTIM.

Last October Dalmatoff went off to Paris with a cafe chantant artiste. By the New Year he had debts in Paris of over $20,000. He succeeded in raising a substantial sum from Ambassador M. Isavolsky, on the ground of his father's position at the Foreign Office. Dolmatoff returned alone to St. Petersburg early in January, but not to his parents' house. He immediately became an habitue of costly pleasure resorts, and met at a skating-rink Mme. Marie Thieme a handsome married woman, aged 36.

Dolmatoff introduced Heismer to the lady, and both visited her flat. But Madame evidently became averse to them. Both called on her in the daytime of January 25. Heismer had in his pocket a metal knuckle duster, and Dolmatoff a hatchet concealed in his coat. It was known that Mme. Thieme had diamond earrings worth $15,000, and it was supposed that she also had a good deal of money in her apartment. As the two men appeared to be terminating their visit Dolmatoff, in Russian fashion, took her hand to kiss. As Mme. Thieme leant forward to allow this, Baron Heismar, who was standing aside, struck her violently on the ear with the knuckle duster. She fell senseless, whereupon Dolmatoff attacked her with his axe, afterwards pulling a ring from her finger.

MISSED HER WEALTH.

The couple, fearing discovery, only made a hasty search, and found neither the earrings nor money. They returned to their hotel, burned their clothing, and continued for some days to frequent their usual haunts. Then Heismar began to show signs of nervous breakdown. Dolmatoff took him to Pskoff, where they lived quietly for a fortnight on the Heismar estate. Meanwhile the police, following a finger clue on the corpse whence the ring was torn, traced the ring to a jeweller's shop, where it had been sold for $70.

THE ROSE MAID

"The Rose Maid," Verba and Luescher's latest great musical success, which will be presented at the Grand Opera House, on Saturday, April 5, matinee and night, boasts of a cast of manikin actors in addition to its splendid company of musical comedy favorites. The "Kute Kiddies," who bring on their toy perambulators during the laughable "Family Song" and who won the hearts of thousands of New Yorkers during the run of "The Rose Maid" on Broadway, also introduce their dollies in the dancing number to the great delight of the audience. Each "Kiddie" has named her dolly or Teddy bear after her favorite actress, thereby adding such names to the cast as Maude Adams, Christie MacDonald, Ethel Barrymore, Mizzi Hajos, Elsie Janis, and Gene Luneska. The "Kute Kiddies" number is one of the special hits of the opera, making this success a delightful entertainment for the children as well as for the grown-ups.

WAR VETERAN LIES IN ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

London, March 31.—A full state funeral was accorded to the late Field Marshal Viscount Wolseley today, when his body was interred in the crypt in St. Paul's Cathedral alongside those of Nelson and Wellington.

A dense pall of yellow fog enveloped the city throughout the morning, even the powerful electric lights on the streets with difficulty penetrated the darkness sufficiently to enable the funeral procession safely to traverse the long route from the War Office to the great Cathedral.

The Duke of Connaught represented King George and a dozen of the most distinguished field-marshals, admirals and generals acted as pall-bearers.

TWO GAMES PLAYED

Love and the National Pastime Contest, but the Former Triumphs.

By CRITT TRUEMAN.

"Play ball!" the umpire's voice rang out, and two games were on, one between the Yellow Feet and the Black Flags, and the other between Maisie Laughlin and Bessie Houston. In the first game a pennant was in question; in the latter the happiness of two, if not three lives.

Ralph Thurston, the star twirler of the Black Flags, was in the box for the Yellow Feet had the first half, and two pairs of eyes were fastened on his flushed face. There were other eyes, of course, but those belonging to the girls already mentioned alone attracted him. He knew it was not right that he should even know they were there, for a good player is blind, deaf and dumb to everything outside the diamond, but then Thurston was after all a man, and a rather young one at that, and his heart was wavering between the two All summer long Bessie had come out to the home grounds of the Black Flags to root for them, and her blue eyes followed every play with experienced devotion. A month before Maisie had become acquainted with her, and of course with the Black Flags, and then the game was on between the girls. Maisie was dashing, stylish and was backed by a wealthy father. Bessie was a dear little thing, who earned her own living in a department store. Before Maisie had become a "fan" Thurston had made up his mind that Bessie and he would sign up for a life game, but since then, he did not know. The last inning had yet to be played.

Realizing that he must put all thoughts of these two out of his mind, Thurston put several quick, hot ones over the plate, following with a low grounder, and had his man out without a strike. The next two were easy, and the Yellow Feet were retired in one, two, three order. The Black Flags, however, failed to connect with any of Compton's balls, and he was congratulated by his team as he, too, registered the same score. This followed for three innings; not a strike was called on either side, although there were several balls, and then Thurston went into the box for the first of the fourth inning. As he ran down field he caught sight of Maisie's waving handkerchief, and immediately the old problem confronted him. It unsteadied his arm so that when the catcher signaled for an outcurve he sent over a straight one. The man at bat found this soft, and he sent it soaring down past center, easily reaching second before the ball was captured.

Put Several Quick Hot Ones Over.

The grand stand went into the ecstasies usual on such occasions, but two girls turned white and bit their lips, feeling as though some personal affront had been offered them. Usually Thurston would have been steadied by such a mishap, but today he was not in usual form, and all because of these two girls Therefore to the dismay of the Black Flags, he let Compton connect with an incurve which he bunted, and the man on second made third amid thunderous applause from the Yellow Feet contingent and hisses from those espousing the Black Flags. The next man got his base on balls, and the Yellow Feet scored, although Thurston managed to hold them down to that. Maisie flashed Ralph a glance of scorn as he passed on his way to the bench, so that he failed to see how Bessie looked, and huddled down in his coat, refusing to reply to any remarks hurled at him by his indignant fellow players In the next half the Black Flags scored, and would have made a home run, if Thurston had not allowed himself to be caught between second and third. Once more his blunder cost the Black Flags dearly.

After this followed a series of blunders by him that made the captain and manager rave. If the other two pitchers on whom they could depend had not been laid up, Thurston would have been taken from the box. As it was they had to content themselves with addressing unkind remarks to him, and threatening him with dire results if he did not buck up and show some ginger.

All the while the real cause of this disturbance lay in his pocket. It consisted of two notes, one signed Maisie, the other Bessie. Each girl invited him to spend the evening in her company. Maisie had added in her note, written on monogram paper, that it might be the last before she left town, and that she hoped he would not disappoint her. Maisie's was on a sheet of pad paper, but contained a pitiful little plea.

"Honest, Ralph," it read, "I'd not care much what happened if I couldn't come to see you play, but I get tired rooting when I can't tell you afterwards how proud I am of our star pitcher. Please come."

On one side was Maisie with the possibilities of influential assistance, combined with the girl's brilliant attractiveness; on the other, sweet, faithful, devoted Bessie, fitted by training and inclination to help a man in playing not only baseball, but any game of life, willing to sit and root for him if afterwards he would come to her for comfort and congratulations. No wonder that his arm went back on him, and that his eyes misjudged. Thurston was playing a bigger game than he realized.

"He's gone stale," groaned the grand stand, while the bleachers tooted horns and rang huge cowbells to show their disapproval.

"Pull him out!" some yelled as Thurston continued his blunders; but as there was no one to take his place, the captain contented himself with coaching with all his might, while the manager tried to stimulate interest by betting heavily against the Yellow Feet, covering his money by judiciously placed bets on the other side, made by those in his employ.

Finally the first half of the ninth was reached. The score stood 4 to 1, in favor of the visitors. Instead of the usual cheering and applause which had greeted Thurston as he ran to the box, there came a dead silence more expressive than any demonstration As he had left the bench, he had caught a sight of the pale faces of the two girls, and he wished that a hole would open up before his feet, in which he might hide from them and the mocking crowd. He gritted his teeth, clenched his fists until the fingers bit into the palms of his hands, then began pitching with all his old-time vigor. As in the first inning, he put the men out in one, two, three order, and the grand stand went wild with joy. The Yellow Feet were not worried, however, and indifferently trotted out into the field. A sneer disfigured Compton's face as he swung his arm, but it changed to something else when Gryce, the captain of the Black Flags, struck out a home run This rattled the man in the box, for he let the next man get to second on a line drive that easily passed left field, and the third took his base on balls. Thurston then came to bat. His two-bagger brought in another run and put a man on second. The next man bunted, and three bases were filled. The score was now 4 to 3, with all bases filled. The manager, Gordon, was the next man at bat, but he fanned out, as did the next Then came Burchell, who always managed a two-bagger. His ball rose gracefully, soared out and over the head of right field, and the men began eating up the ground to get home. Just as the man from third began to slide, the ball fell into the glove of the right fielder, and the pennant belonged to the Yellow Feet.

The work of all the Black Flags had been good. They had assisted again and again in keeping down the score of the Yellow Feet when Thurston had gone to pieces, and naturally blamed their defeat on him. The man said nothing. Sullenly he changed to his street clothes, then wrote his resignation. The manager took it, saying tartly:

"All right, if you feel that way."

"I guess all of you feel that my room is better than my company," Thurston said sourly, as he slouched out of the club house, hands deep in his pockets, head bent down Just as he emerged an automobile dashed by. In it were several of the cheering Yellow Feet and Maisie In the second of passing she tossed her head, looking at him with unbared contempt.

As he turned to make his way to the street cars, a soft voice said at his elbow:

"Don't run over me, Ralph," and starting, he saw Bessie smiling up at him, although her eyes were red with tears of disappointment.

"They expect too much of you, working you until your arm goes stale; it's a shame," she said comfortingly.

"Bess," Ralph said, catching her hand and gripping it hard, "I'm a piker; I went up in the air on this game, honest."

"Everyone does that sometimes," she said softly.

"I say, Bess," he asked sheepishly, "I wonder if you'd be afraid of me in another kind of game?" and Bessie understood. She answered, as they walked slowly towards the street cars:

"Not yet, Ralph; I'll root for you always."

Nature's Barometers

There are two kinds of clouds—wind clouds and rain clouds, the former in summer being as black as night. Clouds banked together in the west mean coming rain. The walls of houses are usually damp before rain. Cows and sheep instinctively lie down when it is going to rain, in order to keep a dry spot for themselves. Swallows are good weather prophets. If, when flying low, they suddenly congregate and fly very high, it is a sure sign of a coming storm When geese clamor and peacocks scream, rain is pretty sure to be near. Flowers are highly sensitive to rain. The pimpernel has been called the "poor man's weather glass," its prophecies being so true:

"Closed is the pink-eyed pimpernel:
'Twill surely rain; I see, with sor row,
Our jaunt must be put off till to-morrow."

The crocus forecasts rain by shutting up its leaves in a most clever mind way; so also do the dandelion wood-sorrel, and anemone. The heads of wild oats curl up in dry weather, and contract in damp. Fir-cones are good weather indicators, closing for wet weather and open for fine. They retain this power even after they are gathered, so long as they have any seeds in them to protect. In villages round the coast seaweed is the homely weather glass, becoming moist and clammy when rain is near. They have a curious method of forecasting the weather in some parts of Germany and Switzerland. A small green frog is kept in a bottle half full of water, with a flight of wooden steps leading down from the top of the bottle into the water. If the frog stays down below they say the weather will be fine, but if it comes up and sits down on the steps it will be dull, and rain and cold may be expected.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a door, where it had been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of game laws and speaks of finding the bowl of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X.—Johnson is allowed to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature, who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

CHAPTER XI.—Clyde seeks assistance from a Chinese fellow college student, who recommends him to Yup Sing, most prominent Chinaman in New York. The latter promises to seek information of Cameron among his countrymen.

CHAPTER XII.—Among Cameron's letters is found one from one Addison, who speaks of seeing Cameron in Pekin. Cameron had frequently declared to Clyde that he had never been in China.

CHAPTER XIII.—Clyde calls on Dr. Addison. He learns that Addison and Cameron were at one time intimate friends, but had a falling out over Cameron's denial of having been seen in Pekin by Addison.

At the head of the steps it paused, uncertainly, and then, instead of gliding swiftly away in the direction of Pell street as did the other, it turned in my direction, passing almost at once into the comparatively glowing radius of the street lamp opposite.

I saw then that it was a man, thin to emaciation, round-shouldered, and crooked limbed. Whether some one jostled him, or a voice from the roadway startled him, I don't know. But for some reason he turned his head suddenly, and the light from the lamp fell full upon a face, stubble-bearded, deep-lined, and repellent, the face not of a Chinaman but of a white man; a face into which I had looked but twice, and then but for a brief moment; yet a face as indelibly fixed in my memory as were the grim fronts of the buildings now behind it—the face of Peter Johnson, the pretended castaway.

I think I must have had it in mind to pick him up bodily and carry him away with me that I might by inquisitorial torture wring from him a confession. Otherwise I should have adopted a less eager and more subtle method of bringing the miscreant to book than that which I rashly attempted. Before I considered the situation I was across the street and at his heels. My finger tips, indeed, were at his shoulder. In the fraction of a second I should have had him gripped and have been hustling him through the crowd as my prisoner. But at the instant of seeming success, he eluded me. In some strange way he caught alarm and, shrinking beneath my hand, darted sinuously off, between this pedestrian and that, with the flashing speed of a lizard.

But, though he escaped my clutch, my eyes were more nimble. With them I followed him until I saw him drop between the cellar doors which gaped beneath the white bulk window of the quick lunch room. And where my eyes went, I went after. Another brief moment and, without thought or heed, I was plunging in pursuit down that short, steep flight of steps—plunging from a lighted, peopled, noisy public street into the coiled gloom and grim silence of a low underground basement.

And, as misfortune would have it, I must needs catch my heel on the edge of one of the treads, and go sprawling on my hands and knees; while a poignant pain shooting cruelly through my ankle told me that a sprain was added to my mishap.

For a minute I lay as I had fallen, prone and motionless; and in that space I realized the foolhardiness of my whole course of action. My very intrepidity had contributed to disaster. Instead of accomplishing a capture I had cast myself, disabled, into the mesh of the enemy.

The inky darkness and profound silence of the place augmented, of course, my apprehension. In vain I strained my eyes to distinguish an object, my ears to detect a sound, yet I knew that the uncanny creature I had followed must be close to me; lurking, possibly, with raised or pointed weapon to mete out my fate once he made sure of my position.

The minute—it could hardly have been more, though, as I think of it, it seemed infinitely prolonged—ended in a sound above and behind me. Very softly, carefully, some one was closing the cellar doors. Stealthily muffled though it was, the faint, creaking of the hinges shattered the spell which held me, and in spite of my tortured ankle, I managed to gain my feet. But by now the silence reigned once again and in the engulfing blackness I lost all sense of direction.

The suspense of the moment was unendurable. To stand there waiting, not knowing when or from what quarter I should be set upon, was nervous torment so hideous that in sheer desperation I plucked my match box from my pocket, drew forth a match and struck it to a blaze. As it flared forth, routing the shadows in disorderly, if but temporary, retreat, I made quick searching survey of my dungeon. To my amazement I was apparently quite alone.

Relieved, in a measure at least, I employed another match and still another, hobbling painfully about the grimy, low-celled basement, in diligent inspection. My first thought was that Johnson was in hiding, and having located me by my own lighted matches, waited now only an opportunity to throw himself upon me from behind. But I very soon discovered that he had fled. Evidently he had retraced his steps up the rude ladder to the street, closing the doors after him to check my further pursuit.

The place into which I had followed him was evidently a Chinese candy manufactory and cake bakery. To the right of the entrance were rows of shelves containing jars of what I recognized as sweetmeats peculiar to the celestial. In a large bowl on a rough table or counter was the granulated flour with which these confections are invariably powdered; and here, too, were boxes of round, jumble-like cakes. I saw now that the space upon which I had fallen was so restricted that I wondered how it was possible for my quarry to have reached the steps and reascended without touching me or at least acquainting me with his movement. And I marveled, too, that twisting my ankle as I did, I had not plunged at a slant and struck my head upon one or another of the crowding tables and boxes with which the cramped basement was furnished.

My third match disclosed a narrow door in the broad partition at the rear, and fancying that perhaps the elusive Peter Johnson had escaped by that means while I was getting to my feet, I lost no time in seeking to investigate what was beyond. I was somewhat surprised to find the door unfastened. Once open, it revealed a smaller and more crowded room, warm and fetid, into which were packed no less than half a dozen barrels of raw and cooked peanuts, arranged about a low stove on which a peanut-filled cauldron was slowly steaming.

Curiously interesting as all this would have been under ordinary circumstances, I experienced only a surprised relief, for with my injured ankle I was in no fettle to cope with even the weakest adversary. Indeed, now that this easement was afforded me, my sprain suddenly asserted itself with renewed exacerbation, sharp twinges of pain shooting to my knee and demanding instant relief.

In front of the low stove I had noticed a stool, and for this I groped with the eagerness of the drowning man after a straw. To my joy I laid hands upon it, and drawing it nearer sank down with a sigh of gratification comparable only to that with which a Marathon victor drops to earth after a hotly-contested race.

Gradually, now that my weight was removed, the pain lessened, and a sense of comfort ensued. Contentment enfolded me, which, if I thought of it at all, I attributed, I suppose, to the reaction from the agony which I had just been suffering. I remember thinking that I would rest a few minutes and then take my departure as I had entered, for I realized that cellar doors are fastened only from within, and that there could, therefore, be no impediment to my going when I chose.

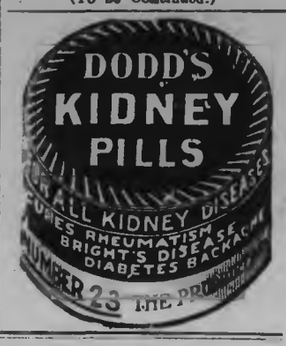
I distinctly recall that I was conscious of a certain strange incongruity of situation, but could hardly comprehend in just what the incongruity consisted. I knew only that I felt pleasantly warm and drowsy; and my sprained ankle had ceased altogether to pain or annoy.

And then, I was sailing in an open boat in midocean, and Peter Johnson, in oilskins, sat at the helm, with a saturnine leer on his face, and tugged at brief intervals, always longer and stronger, upon what seemed to be the sheet, which had become wrapped around my throat and chest and which, by degrees, was crushing my windpipe and lungs, so that my breath came only in sharp, shuddering, aching gasps.

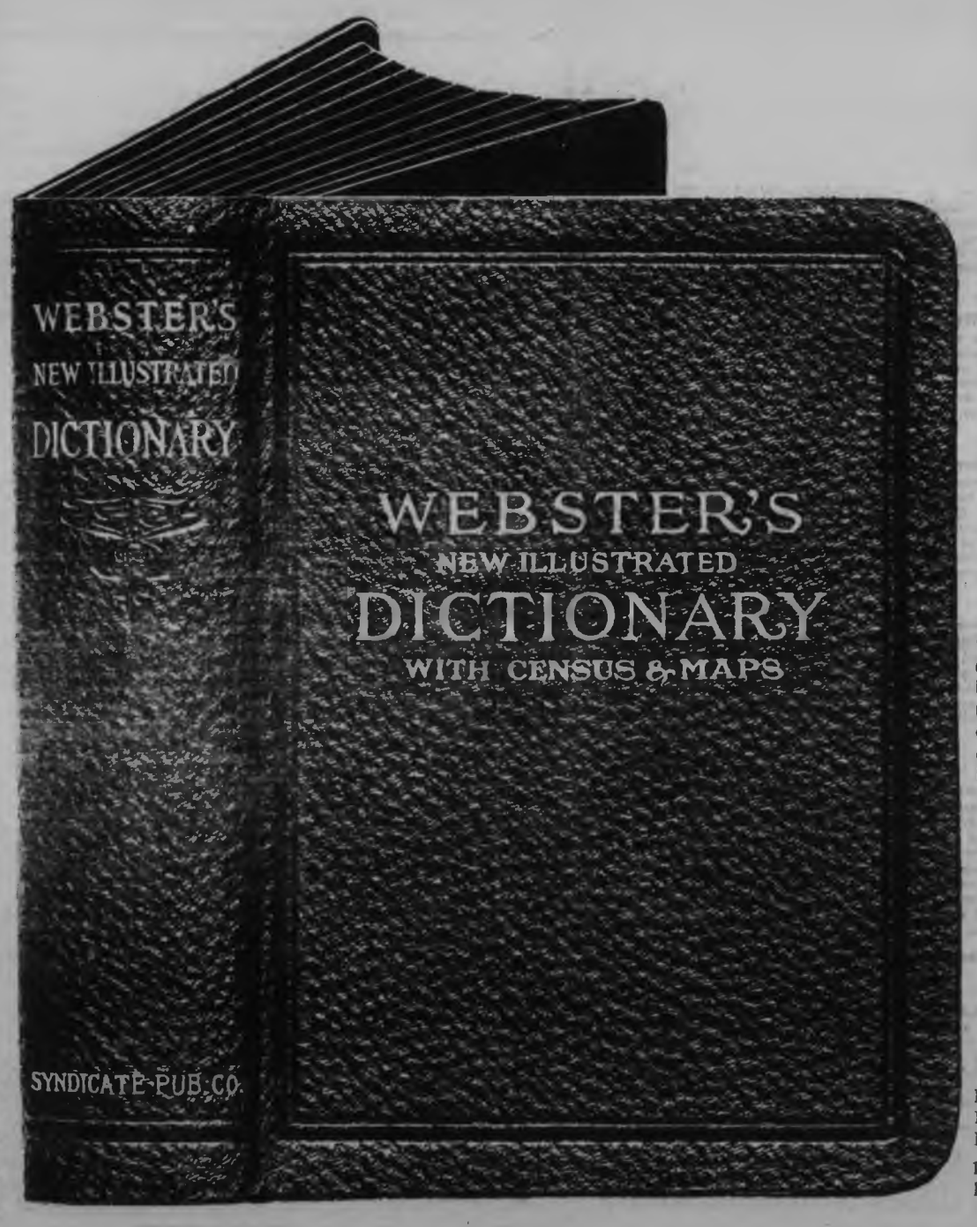
CHAPTER XV.

Amyl Pearls.

Who will deny that a sturdy physique is a valuable asset? Had it not been for a deep chest, a powerful pair of lungs, a heart without a flaw, and an underlying vitality such as is possessed by but a small minority in these degenerate times, I must certainly have succumbed. For, as I learned later, I had inhaled enough carbon monoxide gas to have killed the average man of my age, twice over. The stove on which the cauldron of peanuts steamed was a charcoal furnace, and the tiny space within that back room was impregnated with the heavy poisoned fumes to a distance of four feet and more above the floor.



Sitting on a low stool, bent forward over my sprained ankle, which for relief I had raised and rested across my other knee, I had come in contact with the deadly gas, breathing it without suspicion, until drowsiness intervened and stupor, insensibility, and eventually coma followed.



It is customary, I understand, to employ rigorous treatment in such cases to effect resuscitation. If I am to believe what I have been told of my condition when discovered, I was very far on the way to dissolution. I was, in fact, moribund, and in the eyes of those who carried me from the cellar to an upper room I was already dead. It is [illegible] that no steps were taken to revive me. Even had I been regarded as still living I doubt that I should have received any other treatment.

Providence, however, favored me. I was thrown into a bunk under one of the few open windows of Chinatown, and a door left ajar, by accident, probably, drew across me a current of comparatively pure oxygen. Thus invited, nature reasserted itself, and respiration, which had been temporarily suspended, gradually resumed its office.

With dawning consciousness came acute discomfort. My head and back ached nigh unbearably, and my ankle, swollen to twice its normal size, shot pains to my thigh. My tongue seemed too large for my mouth, and my throat was raw. Later, memory set in train of questions and surmises. A half light admitted through the open window gave unsatisfactory answer as to time and place. It might be dawn, midday or evening. I might still be in the same building into the basement of which I had plunged after the so-called Peter Johnson, or I might be miles away. Yet of one fact I was assured. It was no longer night. Day had come again and eight hours at least must have passed since I stood killing time on the sidewalk in front of the restaurant in which I was to have met Yup Sing.

NO LONGER ANY NEED TO BE PALE, WEAK OR ANAEMIC.

By Following the Advice of Miss McEwen You Can Quickly Become Strong Again.

The pallid girl always lacks appetite. What little she eats is badly digested.

At night she is restless, she dozes, but doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be supplied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton has invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up young women as his vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

Full of spirit, ruddy and strong is the girl that assists her system by the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The followigg recent letter from from Miss Etta McEwen, of Haliburton, speaks for itself:

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly, and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

"Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness were hanging over my head.

"Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them."

A Local Grocery Change.

The corner grocery, formerly conducted by Mr. R. F. Kennedy, at the corner of Lake and Aylmer streets, was yesterday taken over by Messrs. W. H. Hubel & Son. The new proprietors are both well known, having both resided in the south end of the city for a number of years.

When horses started to pull the vehicle into the plumb, the pole snapped in half, one piece striking Mr. Burgess in the head and killing him.

Another Child Bitten.

Another proof that there are too many dogs in the city is the fact that a four year old son of Mr. J. Brown of 154 Edinburgh street, has been severely bitten in the face by a dog which had no provocation for the attack. Every tagless dog should be destroyed and if the police will not enforce the city ordinance, there should be other police.

No. 344 Aylmer street, just across from the fire hall, is dirorated with a sign reading "Measles Here. No person shall leave or enter these premises, etc." Tough luck for a private boarding house! That official has troubles enough of his own saving the town from fire without having his face speckled with measles.

OVER HALF OF ALL SICKNESS CAUSED BY CLOGGED UP WEAKENED KIDNEYS

Hundreds Are Suffering With Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It. Backache, Bladder Disorder and Rheumatism Are The Result.

It is a well recognized fact amoug physicians today, that the greater part of all sickness can be avoided by keeping the kidneys working properly.

This is even more important than for the bowels to move regularly, because the kidneys and bladder are the filterers and sewers of the body. If you suffer with pains in the back or sides, bladder or urinary disorders, lumbago, rheumatism, dizziness, puffy swellings under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, nervousness, tired and worn-out feelings, or any of the many other symptoms of kidney trouble, don't neglect yourself another day and run the risk of, serious complications. Secure an original package of Croxone, which costs but a trifle, take three doses a day, for a few days, and you will be surprised how entirely different you will feel. Croxone gives the very worst cases new life because it removes the cause of such troubles. It soaks right in and cleans out the kidneys and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and uric acid that lodges in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the bladder and quickly effects a cure.

It is the most wonderful remedy ever made for the purpose. You will find it entirely different from anything you have ever used. There is nothing else on earth to compare with it. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, the very principle of Croxone is such that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

You can secure an original package of Croxone from any first-class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

A Contemptible Liar.

Wm. Geo. Pelkey was charged before His Honor with making a false affidavit in procuring a marriage license and was sent to Cobourg for trial. Coming before Judge Roger, formerly of Peterborough, on Thursday he elected to be tried on April 14th. He obtained a certificate, persuaded the girl that that was all the law required, and they lived together for some time till he began abusing her and got into the hands of the law. It is alleged that he has a wife and family in Ontario county.

BRITAIN MUST BUILD THREE IF CANADA REFUSES TO GIVE

Unless Further Steps Are Taken by Overseas Dominions Margin Over Germany in Three Years Will Not be Sufficient---Mother Land Needs The Dreadnoughts

London, April 1.—Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill's statement in the Commons last night means that should the Canadian Parliament not confirm Premier Borden's offer, or should seriously delay it, the Imperial Parliament must fill the gap in order to meet the grave impending menace which latest development in the German policy make obvious to every one.

Foster Fraser, Parliamentary writer of The Standard, gives the following account of the position as mirrored in the Commons last night:

"Mr. Churchill compared the navies of Germany and England to show that in 1915, we will have a surplus over the sixteen to ten standard of never less than two ships.

"At another time a surplus of eight; that includes five ships—"

"Which you said would not be included," interrupted Mr. Arthur Lee sharply from the Opposition front bench.

Mr. Churchill replied it would be possible to exclude New Zealand, Australia and Malay, without falling below the 60 per cent. superiority in 1915-16, in that year maintaining in comparison with Germany the standard of three to two.

In home waters there would be Dreadnoughts available for the whole world service of the British Empire.

That was where the value of the proposed three Canadian ships would come in, making nine or ten ships available for the Empire.

If there were departures in the Mediterranean or Pacific, the situation would have to be reviewed.

Burden Would be Placed on Others.

The three Canadian ships, however, were absolutely required for the whole world defence of the British Empire. Apart from England they play a real part in Imperial defence, but if not forthcoming steps would have to be taken to fill the gap and the strain of the burden would have to be placed on others.

Fully appreciating what is going on in Canada and eager to get Canada's aid in Empire defence he turned and rebuked those Liberals who said that Canadian ships would be unwise, redundant and unnecessary.

Canadian Ships Absolutely Necessary.

They were absolutely necessary from the beginning of 1915. He maintained that the effect, however, would exceed that of three ships alone.

"We could build three ships if necessary, but the fact that Canada, a new nation, had come forward to justify the enduring life of the British Empire would produce an immense impression throughout the world more valuable than many Dreadnoughts."

When Churchill threw himself back there was color on his cheeks which had been pallid when he arose.

THE WOMEN CALM AS THEY PLAN MOST VIOLENT DEEDS

Militant Suffrage as Form of Mob Outrages is Entirely Wrong Idea--Women Conduct Campaign on Systematic Lines

London, April 1.—Militant suffrage in England has been pictured as a form of mob violence. The destruction of property creates an impression that suffragists are rioters venting their disappointment on a Government which refuses to let them vote. In reality, militant suffrage is a systematically conducted campaign in which hysteria and passion are barred. True, the suffragists are throwing bombs, burning railway stations, refuses to pay taxes and incurring prison sentences. But it is not in outbursts of anger. It is a coolly planned well systematized, carefully considered business carried out with gravity, precision and even dignity.

To understand how women can throw dynamite or parade with sandwich board signs and still not be ruthless one must see that the suffragist isn't simply smashing all the doll's dishes because the Government will not let her play, too. She has adopted the mother attitude of administering a spanking with the statement, "It doesn't hurt you half as much as it hurts me." Suffragists who are not militant, like mothers who do not believe in corporal punishment, continue to work along different channels. And more remarkable still, the militant and non-militant, differing sharply in practice, will not publicly criticize the methods of the other group. It isn't an impetuous thing. It is a proposition launched by women who have been asking and working for the franchise for 60 years.

Expert Bloodshed.

The attempt to hand a petition to the King as he drove through the streets, burning of two railway stations, attempt to fire the Pavillion, and realizing that the authorities cannot enforce jail sentences against hunger strikers has created disorderly excitement.

Mr. Cameron who was flung from his seat to the ground, had his arm badly injured and lost several days' work.

STRIKE DECISION TO-DAY

Big Strike of Railway Firemen Impending—35,000 Men Concerned

New York, April 2.—The time given the arbitration committee now taking testimony in the case between the firemen of fifty-four Eastern railroads and their employers expires to-day. Members of the commission have been carefully considering all the testimony heard and the decision is awaited with interest. There will be no appeal from the decision resulting from this investigation. If the railroads and their 35,000 firemen do not agree, then there will be a strike.

THREE YOUNG MEN RESCUED FROM DEATH

On Monday afternoon three young men were out trolling on the Little Lake, just east of the Ashburnham dock. A heavy squall upset their frail craft and the trio were plunged into the icy water.

Mr. Thomas Williams of the Trent Canal service, who was working near the outlet of the canal, saw the accident. He at once called on Messrs. Andy and Joe Young, who were working on the steamer Beaver. They jumped into a punt, and Mr. Williams into a canoe and hastened to the scene. With some difficulty they rescued the three men who were almost perished with the cold. Had it not been for Mr. Williams' quick eye-sight, the three young men would certainly have been drowned.

The Price of Bread

The Times is given to understand that the local bakers have been trying to raise the price of bread to 6 cents a loaf. They have, however, been met with a determined and consistent opposition by one baker, who thinks 5 cents is enough. It looks as if the local bakers are making considerable dough as it is.

PETERBOROUGH'S 1ST LANDMARK

Only Reliable Basis of Survey of City is 25ft. Iron Rod Corner of George Street

Very few people of this City ever stop to consider whence comes the original landmark from which measurements of our local streets and property are taken. It is further interesting to learn that the only remaining fixed landmark is an iron rod, some 25 feet long, driven into the ground at the North West corner of Charlotte and George Streets to within a foot of the surface. This rod was driven down between 1879-81, when the former City Hotel building was erected. The rod, which was the turning point in a law suit some years ago over 6 inches of property on George Street, was placed under supervision of the late T. B. Clementi, D.L.S.

The original landmark for surveying The City was at the corner of Charlotte and Water Streets, when the first survey was made 100 years ago by Mr. Scott. At that time, of course, the site of the present city was a forest of primeval trees.

REV. MR. RIDDIFORD IS THE RECIPIENT OF MORE HONORS

Last night the local Orangemen and Protestant Federation representatives met to bid god speed to Rev. Mr. Riddiford, who is leaving the city to engage in a larger field of operations. A eulogistic address was presented to the reverend guest, accompanied by a purse of gold. The address read, in part as follows:

The members of both the Orange Order and the Protestant Federation feel that they owe you a great debt of gratitude for the good work you have done and the many sacrifices you have made in the interests of these societies. You have never failed to respond when called to address a meeting or on short notice to take the place of a speaker who had disappointed us. Your loss will be greatly felt by the members of both societies, for we always knew in you we had a brother who was both able and willing to give advice and assistance. You have always been admired for your outspoken and candid manner and never afraid to express your opinion, an example it would be well for many other Protestant Ministers to follow. You have been a brother in the true sense of the word, loved and admired by all who came in contact with you and since it is impossible to retain you, we can only wish you the greatest success in your new home. Possibly in the future you might again be called to Peterborough, and should you ever return either temporarily or permanent you will be sure of a hearty welcome.

We now present you with this purse of gold.

We trust this present will be received in the same kindly feeling in which it is given, and that you may be long spared to work for the advancement of the two societies you have always taken such interest in.

Mr. E. F. Reid, District Master, very ably filled the chair and called on Mr. J. B. McWilliams for an address. This veteran Orangeman spoke briefly in patriotic words.

Messrs. Kennedy, Cohnston, Batten Kempt, Edgar, Morrow, Carpenter and McGill also gave short addresses.

Praise For C. P. R.

Mr. Wm. Irwin has returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast. He notes that British Columbia has suffered with severe and unusual cold this winter. Water pipes were frozen for the first time on record. Mr. Irwin paid a high compliment to the C.P.R. over which he travelled. From Vancouver to Peterborough he travelled without an hour's delay, the train by which he arrived, arriving, after many connections, absolutely on schedule time.

FELL FIVE STOREYS AND STILL LIVES

Crashed Through Heavy Glass Canopy Beside Eaton's Store and was Badly Injured.

Toronto, Apr. 1.—Hurtling thru space from a height of 125 feet, and crashing through a canopy with glass an inch thick, and crumpling up the leaden framework into a shapeless mass, James Rowland, a window cleaner at Eaton's, had a miraculous escape from being instantly killed, while at work on the fifth floor yesterday morning.

Held by a Double Belt.

Rowland, who is about 40 years of age and weighs about 160 pounds, was cleaning one of the windows of the dining room, facing James street side of the City Hall. He was secured to the window frame by a double belt, the under belt fastened around his body being riveted to the outer belt, which was secured to two staples on the window frame by copper rivets.

Rowland had finished the upper part of the window and had lowered himself to the sill to clean the lower half.

Staple Slipped Out.

Suddenly he swung clear of the window. The staple hung a minute and slipped from the wooden frame, and in a moment Rowland was dangling in the air, striving mightily to gain a hold on the window ledge.

ST. LAWRENCE FLOOD REACHES ITS LIMIT

Montreal Harbor Disorganized and Many Places Still in Swirl of Current.

Montreal, April 1.—At noon to-day it was believed along the water front that the highest point in the river flood had been reached, and that by night the swollen water of the St. Lawrence, which yesterday flooded the streets of a half dozen towns along its banks, and forced people of the lower levels to flee in terror from their homes, would begin to recede.

The ice jam at Victoria Bridge, which caused the flood, is beginning to break up. So far the people who were forced to leave their homes by the rising water have not been able to return yet and for the most part are living with friends who promptly placed accommodation at their disposal.

Work along the harbor front was absolutely disorganized this morning. The docks were deep under water, covered with masses of floating timber and boxes. Near one of the sheds, a freight train was stalled deep in the floods and the cars were lightered by crews of men who travelled in boats to go to and from the cars.

Communication with the suburban points by street car and by wire was still in a precarious state this morning.

Malta, April 1.—The British armored cruiser Defence has been ordered to be ready to sail today to participate in the demonstration to be made by the Austro-Hungarian and British War ships on the Montenegrin and Albanian coasts in order to coerce Montenegro into a cessation of the bombardment of Scutari.

All territory situated to the west of this line shall be ceded by Turkey to Albania, the delimitation of which shall be fixed by the powers.

2—The question of the Aegean Islands shall be settled by the powers, the Allied States with the exception

3—Turkey shall abandon all claim to Crete.

R. H. PARSONS, OF OTTAWA, FAVORED AS CITY ENGINEER

Committee of Whole Council Will Recommend His Appointment at a Salary of $2,500 a Year--Mr Hay to be Retained With an Increase of $100 a Year

The City Fathers met in Committee of the Whole last night.

Mr. Blodget was present and agreed to let the city have sufficient land necessary to divert the Downie street creek through his property, according to plans heretofore published.

Appointment of City Engineer.

Mr. R. H. Parsons will be recommended as City Engineer at a salary of $2500.

Mr. T. A. S. Hay will be retained at a salary of $1500 a year.

Mr. Parsons is 38 years of age, and graduated when 22 years old, since which time he has been actively engaged in engineering work. He has worked for the city of Ottawa 00 years altogether for which city he served as assistant city engineer the past six years, on miscellaneous engineering duties, including sewers, sidewalks, bridges, etc. He also expresses his confidence to satisfactorily draw plans for the new outfall sewer and system for sanitary treatment of sewage. He comes most highly recommended as capable of assuming the duties of chief engineer for Peterborough City. Mr. Parsons interviewed the Council last night and his answers to enquiries and summary experience very favorably impressed Council.

Ald. Butler moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that this committee recommend that Mr R. H. Parsons be appointed City Engineer at a salary of $2500 a year—Carried.

Ald. Johnston and McIntyre opposed this motion on the ground that Mr. Hay with a young assistant engineer could meet all requirements of the city.

Ald. Butler moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus.—That this committee recommend that Mr. T. A. S. Hay be retained by the city at $1500 a year (an increase of $100) the increase to date from January 1st, 1913.

These motions will be recommended to council in regular session on Monday night and will probably be ratified, as it is seldom that a recommendation from the committee of the Whole Council is rejected.

There were present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, and Aldermen Johnston, McIntyre, Anderson, Gillespie, G. Walter Green, Duffus and Fuller.

LATE J. P. MORGAN WAS WORTH UNTOLD MILLIONS

New York, April 1.—Estimates of the fortune left by J. Pierpont Morgan, as made in the financial district to-day, range from $75,000,000 to $300,000,000, this sum including his art collections. It is understood that the financier's will is of comparatively recent date, but no intimation has been made as to when it will be given to the public. Mr. Morgan's personal counsel declines to discuss the matter.

Mr. Morgan's realty holdings were comparatively small, and by far the greater part of the estate, it is understood, will be found to be made up of gilt-edged securities. Judging by his former quiet philanthropy, those who speculated to-day as to the possible bequests thought that the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Episcopal Church and perhaps Yale and Harvard Universitty would come in for handsome benefactions.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Decreasing, northwest to west winds; fine.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth $1. too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 25c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 396 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

Twenty-five Dollars Does It

This Helps You Buy a Beautiful High, Dry, Level Lot in the Fast Selling Subdivision

RUSKIN PLACE

Right in the Heart of Ottawa's Manufacturing Area

At the Junction, Ottawa South

It is selling rapidly to good people of the class who will build homes and improve the property. There are a number of fine houses in course of erection, and many others to follow immediately. The lots are grassy lots without rock. They are level and easy to build upon, and there is abundance of clear, cold, pure water. The view takes in the whole City of Ottawa. Streets are 66 feet wide, and are being well laid out with trees and boulevards, and fine gravelled sidewalks just like every Metropolitan City.

Early connection with the City by no less than three electric railways is expected. The Morrisburg and Ottawa Railway have decided to start building on May 1st, 1913. The C. N. Railway have announced their early start upon their gas electric service, which will run right through RUSKIN PLACE. The Kingston and Rideau Lakes Electric Railway have surveyed right through the property and expect to commence work in the near immediate future.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Men of Canada: Keep both hands on the Union Jack!

"If you are going to help the British Admiralty, put your force where the British Admiralty wants it. They are the judges; they are the men whose views should guide us."—Hon. Geo. E. Foster, December 18, 1912.

Will the Borden naval proposals make you poor? Will the mere fact of aiding the motherland in the way she wishes such aid to be given increase your self-respect? These are questions every true Canadian can answer, easily and promptly.

The Niobe and the Rainbow represent the Laurier idea of "immediate and effective" naval aid. Three of the most powerful ships of war which science can build and money supply is the Borden plan. Men of Canada, which do you want?

Fair minded and thinking Liberals are beginning to lose all patience with the Liberal party. They are calling upon Mr. Borden to stop the disgraceful fiasco in the House of Commons and declare all decent Canadians will back him up.

Victoria Daily Times of March 22: Baseball is being played here to-day. On Monday night there will be a hockey match at the Arena. Baseball is a summer pastime. Hockey is the king of winter sports. What a wonderful thing it is that we can have both in the same place at the same time.

AN IMPERIAL POLICY

We are in receipt of a booklet from Mr. James Roberts, of 3, Temple Gardens, London, Eng., which is entitled, "An Imperial Policy." Mr. Roberts, M.A., L.L.B., is author of the pamphlet. The writer has made a critical and comprehensive study of political problems of the present time, particularly as they affect the British Empire; and her Colonies. The idea of his monograph was suggested by events created by the South African war. He pays special attention to the fact that this was Britain's first war in which troops from the Colonies stood shoulder to shoulder with the British regulars. A brief sketch is given of the wonderful development of the Colonies. The whole work is a plea for loyal and stronger union between Great Britain and her over-seas Dominions.

HINDUS IN CANADA

(Manchester, N.H., Union.)

"It is well known that Canada, which holds out all kinds of inducements to prospective immigrants, is exceedingly fussy as to the immigrants she accepts. The situation as regards the Hindus in British Columbia just now is becoming interesting. The Canadian immigration laws, as everybody is aware, restrict the entry of Hindus into the Dominion. Unable to obtain satisfaction from the Canadian authorities, the Hindus of Vancouver have sent a delegation to England to take the matter up with the Imperial authorities. The exclusiveness of the Canadian immigration laws may yet result in embarrassment to the British government, even though this appeal over the heads of the Canadian authorities may come to naught."

LIBERALS IN PETTY POLITICS.

"The issue is very simple. The Government having the responsibility of public affairs imposed upon them by the will of the Canadian people deem it necessary to afford immediate and effective aid to the naval forces of the Empire. They propose to render such aid under conditions which will enable a Canadian naval service to be established in the future, if the Canadian people so desire and determine. The opposition declares that the policy of the Government shall not prevail, and that the will of the minority in Parliament must control; that the effective and immediate aid for which they first voted shall not be given, and that Canada must embark upon the establishment of a naval force and of a naval organization which, if carried out within the next ten or fifteen years, will entail an expenditure of $150,000,000. They proclaim a deadlock, and clamor for such continued license of debate, as will enable them to prevent Parliament from transacting the most urgent public business, or providing for the most pressing public necessities. The country will tolerate no such arrogant or unfounded claim."

The above is the plain business-like statement of the Government in reply to the weak and limp manifesto issued by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in which the discredited Liberal leader, whose consummate vanity is responsible mainly for the blockade of public business, whimpers and complains of "gag" rule and "brute force." The Government is perfectly right in saying the country will not tolerate rule by the minority. These gentlemen, who, having lost the confidence of the people are seeking to impose their will on the accredited representatives of the people, they are merely playing the game of politics. They have declared that the solemn advice of the British Admiralty as to what would be the most immediate and effective form in which aid could be given, is poppycock: they have hysterically branded Winston Churchill, the First Sea Lord, as an impertinent meddler in Canadian affairs, because, forsooth, he politely answered a polite question put by the responsible Government of Canada. Could anything be more absurd than the contortions of these political acrobats? They are playing with fire. They have shown that the people of Canada are once more face to face with the problem of British connection or separation.

SONGS IN THE NIGHT

(Published by Request)

"There is never a day so dreary.
But God can make it bright;,
And unto the soul that trusts Him,
He giveth songs in the night.
There is never a path so hidden,
But God will lead the way,
If we seek for the Spirit's guidance,
And patiently wait and pray.

"There is never a cross so heavy,
But the nail scared hands are there
Outstretched in tender compassion,
The burden to help us bear.
There is never a heart so broken,
But the loving Lord can heal;
For the heart that was pierced on Calv'ry
Doth still for His loved ones feel.

"There is never a life so drakened,
So hopeless and unblessed
But may be filled with the love of God
And enter His promised rest.
There is never a sin or sorrow,
There is never a care or loss
But that we may bring to Jesus.
And leave at the foot of the Cross."

SEE IF YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

If cross, feverish, bilious, give delicious "Syrup of Figs" to cleanse it's little bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated it is a sure sign that your little one's insides, the stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are clogged up with putrifying waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When your child is listless, drooping, pale, doesn't sleep soundly or eat heartily or is cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drug ging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only Stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed. A little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna" prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine, old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

A PRETTY SPECTACLE.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir,—If the power were placed in the hands of an Opposition to force a general election whenever it chose to do so, Canada would be relegated to the Mexico class. On September 21, 1911, the people of this Dominion placed in the hands of Mr. Borden and his colleagues, the reins of Government. Now Laurier the defeated and rejected of the people wants to climb to the box seat, and drive the State chariot. A pretty spectacle, indeed!

Old Liberal

AN IMPERIAL POLICY.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir,—To the best of my recollection, you allowed me space in your columns to appeal to your readers in May, 1906, by a letter in which occurs the following: "The time has now arrived for "the Colonies to petition the King for "a measure of right and justice — a "direct voice in the Councils of the "Crown—a respectable share in directing Imperial policy. Conferences of "Premiers will not suffice; for they "cannot constitutionally represent the "views of their electors on matters "with which their Parliaments are not "competent to deal. An Imperial council, consulted but not responsible, "would only accentuate the anomaly "of the existing situation." The letter outlined a scheme by which the desired result could be achieved. The subject has been more fully dealt with in "An Imperial Policy," published Nov. 1910, by The Musson Book Company, Wilton Avenue, Toronto.

Events have moved rapidly since 1906, and the present discussion in your Dominion Parliament has fully justified my former letter.

There are many who think that a self-governing Dominion can remain a part of the Empire and remain neutral in the event of war. That belief is a vain delusion, for by the practice of all civilised communities and therefore the rulet of International Law all subjects of a sovereign who is at war, are each and all in a state of war, with every subject of a sovereign enemy, or if the enemy be a Republic, with every citizen thereof. No matter how willing our King and the Imperial Government may be that a Dominion be neutral the decision will not lie with them or you, but with the Power with which we would be at war. In spite of all arrangements between the Constitutional States of the Empire, a war between the United Kingdom and a European Power would expose to attack every part of the Empire and its commerce. A State or Dominion so threatened with attack must defend itself by joining the war, or secede from the Empire. There is no middle way. Neutrality is an impossibility; it leads only to separation.

The other course is to draw closer to the Motherland and demand your full share in the Imperial Councils, accepting your share of responsibility. If this be done by the overseas Dominions we should be strong enough, aided by the friendship and benevolent neutrality of the great Republic on our South, to maintain peace and uphold the political liberty we have hitherto enjoyed.

For centuries the existence of the Motherland has been maintained by the equipoise of forces on the Continent, or a struggle for sea power (essential to her existence) now with one State and then with another. In spite of the growth of armaments on the Continent of Europe independent security can still be maintained if we can substitute for foreign alliances, the united support of the daughter States of the Empire—united in purpose—in policy—in control—each having her full share in Imperial Government, and her statesmen as advisers of the King.

Yours, etc.,
Jas. Roberts.

DEPOT FOR LILLOOET

Site Selected by Citizens and P. G. E. Engineer.

Lillooet, March 1.—The people of Lillooet are much elated as a result of an arrangement with the Pacific Great Eastern Railway respecting the location of a station for this town. A committee of the citizens, accompanied by Chief Engineer Calaghan of the railway, went over the survey on Thursday and selected an ideal spot for a depot a few minutes' distance from the centre of the town. This arrangement has created a feeling of confidence and enthusiasm, and the erection of new buildings is progressing vigorously. There can now be no doubt as to the future of Lillooet and throughout the community there is a feeling of the utmost satisfaction.

Because cod costs less than halibut is no argument that it is cheaper or more economical to buy. For instance, five pounds of cod contains more than two-thirds of its weight in waste in the shape of head (which is large in proportion to the body), skin, tail, and bone, while two pounds of halibut is solid fish, with practically no waste at all. It costs more a pound than cod, it is true, but in the end it is quite as cheap, if not cheaper.

A REAL BONANZA

Idaho-Bride Shares The One Best Buy To-day

If any of the readers of this notice are wanting to make a substantial mining investment, we believe they will have but very few chances to make one such as is now being offered by our Company.

With our own mill adapted to handling our ores, there will undoubtedly be a wide margin for profit, such as is seldom brought to the notice of the investor. Evidently

We Have Millions

in store for us in these mines. WE ARE DEVELOPING VAST ORE RESERVES. BONANZA ORE 1,000 FEET ABOVE US, AND PICTURE ORE AT A DEPTH OF ABOUT 2,000 FEET BELOW THE SURFACE. THAT IS PROVING THE GROUND SOME, IS IT NOT? WHERE CAN YOU BEAT IT? EVERYBODY TALKING ABOUT OUR RECENT BIG STRIKES!

Now, Mr. Investor, WE WANT QUICK ACTION, and if you want goods that can be delivered to you, buy them now.

There is Nothing Shoddy About This Investment

We have the courage of our own convictions, and when we tell you that IDAHO-BRIDE SHARES is one of the best buys on the market to-day, we mean it. We are not offering to sell out treasury stock just for the sake of selling it. We have very good reasons for doing so. We can use your capital to very good advantage RIGHT NOW at both mine and mill; otherwise, this notice would never appear. It's quick results we are wanting, and if youwant to share in our good fortune, you're welcome, and your co-operation will be appreciated.

WE SHALL NOT SOLICIT THE PUBLIC MUCH LONGER. THIS IS ABOUT THE LAST OFFER YOU WILL EVER GET FROM US. THIS STOCK IS CHEAP AT $5.00 PER SHARE; but we are offering it for much less. You can't go out on the market and buy it, as our stockholders are holding tight. There's where they are showing good, common sense. They are expecting big dividends and we don't think they will be disappointed. Our mines are too good for that. If you want in with us

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public, Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

INDIAN TRIBES BEING STUDIED

Anthropologists Collecting Valuable Data on the Aborginies of Canada

Much interesting information and many valuable specimens and songs illustrating different phases in the life of the North American Indians has been obtained through field work carried on under the direction of the ethnological branch of the Canadian Geological Survey.

Mr. C. M. Barbeau, permanent assistant in anthropology, is continuing his work among the Wyandotte Indians in Oklahoma, which he started more than a year ago. These Indians are of Canadian origin. Among other things he has obtained several hundred Wyandotte songs by means of gramophone records, facts regarding religion and mythology, information about language and records of old Indian traditions.

Dr. P. Radin of Columbia university an auxiliary member of the field staff has carried on research work among the Ojibway or Chippewa Indians, visiting Sarnia, Orillia, North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie and Manitoulin Island. He has amassed a large stock of manuscript information on Ojibway mythology and customs and Indian texts.

At the Six Nations' reserve on the Grand River, near Brantford, Dr. A. A. Goldenweiser, collected considerable valuable material concerning the Iroquois, while Mr. F. W. Waugh, of Toronto has been engaged in research into the industries and material life generally of the same tribe. His work was principally in connection with the foods, medicines, diets, and industries of the race. From one man he has secured no fewer than 70 different medicines in use among the Indians.

There is now at the Victoria Memorial Museum, at Ottawa, a very full and representative collection of Iroquois specimens. When the branch was started in 1910 there was only one, while there are now about 700. Particular attention has been paid to the eastern tribes, which had been neglected. Dr. F. G. Speck, visited the Montagnais, on Lake St. John and the Lower St. Lawrence, and secured a large collection, including three birch bark canoes. All the specimens have been carefully labelled and catalogued. Mr. F. H. S. Knowles, of Oxford university, Eng., specialist in physical anthropology, has been engaged studying the physical anthropology of the Iroquois, measuring the men, women and children, and securing specimens of hair, etc.

WIRES IN WILDERNESS

Telegraphic Communication to the Yukon Necessary But Expensive

The telegraph—one of the little known and seldom heard of services of the Government, but it has been a vital factor in the building up of the northern portions of British Columbia and the Yukon territory nevertheless. The Government line which keeps Northern British Columbia in touch with the other centres of Canada covers a territory which the ordinary commercial companies would never dream of operating in not only because the business originating there is so small, but on account of the difficulties of installation and maintenance, during which practically all the elements must be battled with year in and year out. Fire in the summer months, wind in the equinoctial seasons of spring and fall, and snow throughout the long winter.

For the last fiscal year the Ashcroft-Dawson City services contributed a revenue of just $119,065.98. The main line between these two points covers a distance of 2,500 miles and there are over 600 miles of branch line. The service gives employment to about 400 linmen and operators but a larger number could be kept fully occupied if the need for economy did not enter into the question.

Bank of Saskatchewan Bills

The bills of the new Bank of Saskatchewan are of three denominations—five, tens and twenties.

The five-dollar bill on one side shows the Saskatchewan coat of arms and on the other side a picture of the harvest train passing through the prairie, and a number of steam ploughs at work.

The ten-dollar bill on one side shows the Saskatchewan and railway yards and on the other side track gangs busily employed at the steam shovels. The twenty-dollar bills also show a railway gang at work.

Canadian Freight Cars

The Canadian Pacific has placed contracts for 1,000 freight cars with the American Car and Foundry Company and for a similar number with the Barney & Smith Company. This is part of the road's recent order of 12,500 cars, the greater portion of which went to Canadian concerns.

LONELY BACHELORS

Letters Asking for Wives From Homesteaders in the West

The most pressing problem of the west, according to J. Burke, Manitoba's immigration officer, is the need of domestic servants and wives. Mr. Burke estimates that even 5,000 would scarcely meet the demand of the three provinces.

Some of the letters received from western bachelors in search of companions and helpmates are interesting and frank. In the west, the male sex is predominate out of all proportion, and the idea of matrimony, fostered in the heart of some solitary bachelor, cooking his flapjacks and salt bacon on his homestead, soon mounts to something approaching mania.

One local monthly printed a letter, from one of these unmated ones, in which the matrimonial bureau of that monthly was asked to send him anything, regardless of nationality and every other attribute, as long as "it" was feminine. Not all are in such straits; but there is a letter, earnest and detailed, on file in the provincial immigration bureau in which the qualifications desired in a wife are set forth painstakingly, and a plea made that such a one be sent with as little delay as possible. This is not the only letter of the kind, but it is typical of those received.

OPERATORS NOT NEEDED

Automatic Telegraphy Device Does Away With Use of Morse Code

Telegraph operators will soon only be serviceable as fiction heroes, and their places in the railway and telegraph systems will be usurped by young and untrained girls, if a newly introduced device which is at present under trial in Canada proves successful.

The new system known as the Morkrum Automatic Telegraph, and the sending and receiving apparatus resembles nothing more closely than a typewriter. The sending operator presses the keys at one end of the line and the message is automatically transcribed at the other end.

The C.P.R. Telegraph Co. is experimenting with the new system between its Montreal and Toronto offices.

"I Sleep Soundly, Feel Like New"

ALL WHO LACK VIGOR, THOSE WHO ARE DISPIRITED AND WORN OUT SHOULD READ THIS CAREFULLY

Proof That Health and Renewed Vitality Quickly Return When Right Remedy is Used.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night, and in the morning felt so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicines and mixtures, D r. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged-up system. My spirits rose. I felt much better. The sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color and ambition to work returned, and have remained. I am like a new man, and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys and liver, and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. All druggists and storekeepers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, 5 boxes for $1.00, or postpaid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

The Servant Problem

Women seem to be very generally convinced that the answer to the servant problem lies, ultimately, in substituting domestic science for domestic work, and installing a higher grade woman in the kitchen.

BOTH WERE MISJUDGED

How Husband and Wife Were Separated by Baseless Disagreement.

By GEROGE ELMER COBB.

"This is detective work, pure and simple, Ashley, but I am not even an amateur. Just plain John Birt, once a town marshal, now a second rate lawyer. I am your friend, though, and your wife's friend. And the friend of poor little lost Harry. Let me show you, out of gratitude for the start you gave me in life years ago, what real genuine friendship is."

There was nothing heroic in the speech. There was no false note of bombast. Richard Ashley, sick, disheartened, all at sea, had come up against the dead blank wall of "No clew" in a case where mystery and misery were pretty well commingled, and no visible thoroughfare back to happiness and peace.

Ashley had befriended Birt fifteen years previous, and the loyal fellow had never forgotten it. Ashley had married Lucia Ward. A child was born to them, and when Harry was five years of age, a baseless disagreement had come about. They had separated, Ashley taking the child in his keeping. The abyss broadened. They did not meet again.

Ashley went west with Harry and acquired a small fortune in Idaho lands. His wife he seldom heard from. She was heiress to a large estate, he learned. Too proud to meet her half way in a reconciliation, she seemed to have completely shut him and the child out of her memory. She led a hard, lonely life at the secluded country home of a stepbrother. All that kept Ashley in touch with his old life were occasional letters from the loyal Birt. The latter knew that the estranged wife was a sore subject to his friend, and rarely alluded to her. At length, however, a letter came that brought Ashley east post haste with his son.

"I have learned," Birt wrote "that you have misjudged your wife, just as she has misjudged you. She pines for you and the child. I find, too, that Dunbar, her stepbrother, spread all the lies that separated you. He will do all he can to keep you apart, for by doing so he hopes finally to control the estate to which she is heiress."

Ashley had come to Rockton at once. A slow fever had set in. Before Birt could carry out his plans to bring the separated wife and husband together, the boy Harry mysteriously disappeared.

Harry slept in the room adjoining that of his father at the hotel. In the morning he was found missing. He had apparently been carried down the fire escape of an inner court. The only clew was the discovery that a covered wagon had left the town, headed south, at midnight. All that showed the visit to the room was the disturbed bed, a taint of chloroform in the air, and a lot of gilt spangles covering the rug.

"I am going to find your boy for you," declared Birt.

"I can never go to Lucia unless he is with me," said Ashley.

Four hours later Birt was resting under a tree near the beach of a little lake about ten miles from Rockton. He had followed the clew of the midnight wagon and had lost the trail. As he now sat thinking over the affair, he confessed to himself that the "intuition" that most detectives talked about was slow in coming to him.

"Only one thing am I certain of," he told himself. "Dunbar is behind this kidnaping."

The speaker just then noticed a little red toy balloon sailing out over the lake. A second followed, a third, and then as many more in succession. Then boyish cries attracted his attention. A group of lads came into view, chasing another of the red spheres. One venturesome urchin ran into the water, grabbed it, exploded it, and waded to the shore holding the wreck of his trophy.

Birt watched the crowd gather curiously around the object. Then another balloon was espied, and they put off for it.

Birt arose and strolled aimlessly down the beach. As he passed the flattened out balloon he noticed that a string ran from it to which a card was attached. He picked it up.

"Why, hello!" he exclaimed.

Water had obliterated some pencilled words on the blank side of the card. The front bore his own name.

"One of my business cards," he soliloquized in a wondering way. "That's queer."

"Shoot—shoot!" he heard a boyish voice call just then, and came upon a second group of lads chasing another of the toy balloons.

One of the boys had a bow and arrow. He aimed aloft. The shaft sped from the bow, pierced the balloon, and the deflated globe came to the ground. There was a scramble over it.

"Here, I'll pay you for that," he said, extending a coin to the boy who had rescued the object. Then eagerly he inspected the card. It was another of his own. It had, however, got trampled in the mud. He made out these words: "In a lion's cage—send word Ashley—hotel—Rockton."

For fully five minutes the amateur sleuth stood studying the card. Then suddenly he exclaimed triumphantly: "I've got it!"

He remembered that he had given Harry some of the cards to draw on. The words "lion's cage" in connection with the spangles found in the room at the hotel suggested a circus!

"And say!" ejaculated the second-rate man, "I recall now that Dunbar owns a half interest in a traveling show. Why, find a circus, and I find Harry!"

Four hours later Birt stood by the side of one of a dozen tents at the outskirts of a county seat town. He looked around him and swiftly bolted under the canvas.

Birt had just heard a circus peddler complain of losing his balloons. He also learned that there was a cage wagon inside the tent.

Fifteen minutes after that Birt was leading from the place the recovered boy. He had found him locked in the cage wagon and had opened a way to freedom.

Harry told of two men kidnaping him. He had overheard them say that a man named Dunbar had ordered them to lose him in some distant part of the country.

A circus peddler had tied his string of toy balloons to the wagon. A bright idea came to Harry. He reached out, drew the balloons towards the bars, attached what cards he had to them, and let them go up. There was an opening at the top of the tent, and they sailed away.

It was after restoring Harry to his father and hiring a man to guard against a new abduction, that the lawyer took a train direct for the home of the mother and wife.

He had sure evidence that Dunbar was a wicked villain, and of this he convinced the amazed stepsister.

Mrs. Ashley met her husband and son for the first time in ten years. There were explanations, forgiveness, awakened love, and the modest lawyer blushed when the reunited pair tried to tell him how much they owed him.

"Oh, I just did my duty," declared Birt, "like the second rate man I am."

"You insist upon that, do you?" cried the Happy Ashley. "All right, but one thing, sure—you are a first class friend."

HOLY LAND BACKWARD UNDER TURKISH RULE

A British newspaper writer once wished to get some postcards at Jerusalem, and applied to the "post effendi." "Please give me ten postcards," he asked.

The Turkish official looked for a moment in surprise, and then replied: "But, honored sir, why should you carry on your correspondence with cards? You can write at greater length in a letter; and, besides, every one can read what you say on a postcard."

"I have very little to say, and they suit me better. Kindly give me ten."

"But, dear, worthy sir, you are not of those poor people who have to use postcards, rather write a fine long letter."

As the correspondent still insisted on having them, the post effendi murmured, "Honored sir, I would willingly give you them, but I cannot."

"But why cannot you sell postcards?"

"Because I have none. I have had none since the week before last. If you really must have some, you will be obliged to go to Joppa for them."

This being a journey of some seventy miles, the visitor naturally had no wish to go and fetch them.

On another occasion, the same visitor, being in Damascus, went to the post-office to ask for his letters, and the postmaster remonstrated. "But, respected sir, you got some letters only last week, and now you are already asking for more!"

ROWS ROYAL

Storms in Very Exalted Circles That Have Taken Place

The old saying "As happy as a king," has gone out of favor. A twentieth-century King has to keep a tight hand not only on his wife and children, but also upon the whole of his wide circle of Royal relatives.

They may not marry, make a will, even write a book, without the consent, and if they break the House Laws, it is the unlucky king's duty to make things unpleasant all round.

No one can suppose for a minute that Alfonso of Spain enjoyed pitching into his aunt for publishing her very harmless little book without first letting him see the proofs. But he had to do it.

The Kaiser is, as a rule, very happy in his home life, but there has more than once been friction between him and his eldest son, the Crown Prince.

The first occasion was when the young prince went steeplechasing, a pastime his father detests, and rode his own horse in the race. The next was when he rode up the steps in Sans Souci Park at the head of his Guardsmen, whom he afterwards took to a circus. On both these occasions he was punished by confinement in his own quarters for three-eight hours.

One of the worst rows in the German Royal circle was caused by the conduct of Prince Joachim Albrecht of Prussia, the Kaiser's first cousin. He is a very smart man, and, besides being a major in the Guards, has considerable reputation as a composer of light operatic music.

One night he appeared at a masked ball in evening dress, accompanied by a well-known variety actress, and wearing the silver star of the great Order of the Black Eagle.

The Kaiser was furious, and ordered the young man four days' arrest. But there was worse to come. The prince announced that he was going to marry the soubrette in question, who was ten years his senior. The Kaiser at once sentenced him to active service with the colonial army in South-West Africa.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is spulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the bowl of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X. Johnson is allowed to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

CHAPTER XI.—Clyde seeks assistance from a Chinese fellow college student, who recommends him to Yup Sing, most prominent Chinaman in New York. The latter promises to seek information of Cameron among his countrymen.

CHAPTER XII.—Among Cameron's letters is found one from one Addison, who speaks of seeing Cameron in Pekin. Cameron had frequently declared to Clyde that he had never been in China.

CHAPTER XIII.—Clyde calls on Dr. Addison. He learns that Addison and Cameron were at one time intimate friends, but had a falling out over Cameron's denial of having been seen in Pekin by Addison.

And, as my mind cleared, there rushed in upon me a recollection of Evelyn's apprehension and of my promise to reassure her not later than eleven o'clock. Suffering as I was, physically, I know my mental distress at thought of how she must have waited with growing solicitude hour after hour for that expected ringing of the telephone bell; how, indeed, she must, even now, be distraught, not by uncertainty, but by the conviction that some ill—some serious ill—had befallen me, was more poignant.

In my eagerness to relieve at once this unrest which I knew to be hers I would have risen, but my strength was not equal to the test. My muscles refused to obey my will and I lay supine, inert, powerless. I would have learned the time, but to seek my watch, which I fondly fancied was still in my pocket, seemed such an enormous exertion that I reluctantly gave over the idea. To breathe, to draw air into my lungs and expel it, was prodigious labor, wearying me, it appeared, to exhaustion; though with every inhalation lucidity of thought and, I suppose, physical force as well, were being imperceptibly augmented.

After a time I found myself listening intently for sounds that might prove informatory, while with head slightly turned I made scrupulous inventory of the room in which I was cribbed. It was a cramped, confined place, unplastered, and furnished with four rough board bunks, one of which I occupied. The other three were empty; but in the scant passageway between my resting place and that opposite was a stool, and upon the stool the pipe and other paraphernalia peculiar to opium smoking.

Then, very slowly, there came to me a realization of the vulpine cunning of these orientals into whose hands I had fallen. I was to be found here, dead, not from inhalation of foul air in an ill-ventilated cellar, which might excite suspicion and provoke inquiry, but from over-indulgence in opium, to which I had probably been addicted for years, unknown even to my closest friends. For the "hop fiend" there is small sympathy, no matter what his position, and my family would hesitate, therefore, to prosecute, preferring to avoid unpleasant publicity.

Yes; it was very clear they had thought me dead, and so had left me here unwatched and unattended with the evidence of my mode of passing theatrically displayed beside me. It only remained now for some employe or visitor to discover me and give the alarm.

I had about reached this conclusion, after a long and desperately trying effort at logical reasoning, when my straining ears detected the sound of footsteps in the passage. The door of the den was slightly ajar and I lay well in sight of any passer-by who should glance through the narrow opening.

Whether to feign death, or boldly make known my recovered consciousness, was for just a moment a question. But before my sluggish brain could decide, choice was snatched from me. The footsteps paused, and simultaneously, it seemed, the door swung farther inward, disclosing, not the pig-tailed, greasy-bloused Mongolian I had expected, but a white woman, tall and shapely, with hair of iron gray and the very kindliest eyes that ever I looked into.

I made as if to speak, but my swollen tongue refused to perform its office, and something that may best be described as a gurgle was the result. With that she came to my side, and for a little regarded me silently. I felt that seeing the pipe and the little peanut-oil lamp, she must draw the natural inference, and, though there was no reproach in her look, I wished, if possible, to correct that false impression. I therefore made effort to gesture denial, employing a glance to indicate the objects and a very feeble side movement of the head to express repudiation.

It is possible that she understood, but I question that she believed. I have no recollection that she spoke a single word to me, and yet, when she was gone, I felt that she would surely return to my rescue. And I was not misled. I suppose this partial relief to my anxiety resulted in a slackening of mental effort on my part, for I must confess that what followed is very vague in my memory. I know only that she was accompanied by two men, one white and one yellow, who carried me down a narrow flight of stairs, out onto the street and into a waiting cab. I cannot recall that I spoke, but I learned afterward that I had mumbled the word "Loyalton," and thither she accompanied me.

There a physician came, one whom I had never seen before; and I was dosed with aromatic spirits of ammonia and made to breathe oxygen through a funnel, by a white-clad nurse, who also, at intervals, painted my ankle with iodine, and, whenever I attempted to speak, domineered me in a gentle and perfectly ladylike manner to silence.

With regard to sending word to Evelyn Grayson, however, I was insistent; and though she had refused absolutely to gratify my curiosity in other respects, she set my mind at rest on this point by informing me that Miss Grayson had called up the Loyalton by telephone several times and had been informed of my condition five minutes after my arrival at my chambers.

There were times during the week which followed when I was nigh unto death; and when, finally, after ten days I was pronounced convalescent, it was with the added well-worn phrase that my recovery was "nothing short of a miracle."

It was on the eleventh day that I was first permitted to see and talk with Evelyn. My mother had called daily, sitting in silence beside my bed, but no other visitor in all that, to me, seemingly endless period, had been admitted to my room.

My curiosity was by now very keen to learn what had developed in the interval regarding the Cameron mystery. Had he, by chance, been heard from? What had the detective agency reported concerning Philetus Murphy? And what, I wished to know most of all, had Yup Sing discovered?

I was in a dressing gown, pillowed and footstooled in a great leather chair awaiting my visitors—for Mrs. Lancaster came with Evelyn—when their names were announced. I suppose I looked ill—though, save for a grievous weakness, I was feeling fit enough—for Evelyn's smile as she entered merged instantly into an expression of mingled anxiety and sympathy. I know that with her coming I awoke to the truth that my desire for information was a far less moving factor than my craving for sight of her and for the music of her voice, and my only regret was that the understanding between us had not reached the stage of acknowledged betrothal; which, I make haste to add, was certainly no fault of mine. Weak as I was my arms ached to fold her in a reassuring embrace; yet must I content myself with a mere fervent hand-clasp and an oral declaration that I was by no means so feeble as I appeared.

Nevertheless I was delighted to see that she gave small evidence of the strain she had been under. Save for a slight additional pallor she was still the same wholesome-looking, thoroughly-poised girl of a fortnight ago. And my admiration for her took on an added measure because of this renewed evidence of her sterling courage.

"And you promised me to be discreet!" she reproached, her smile returning, her hand still in mine.

"I did not foresee such provocation to indiscretion," I pleaded, with an attempted gayety of tone that must have seemed incongruous. "To have been discreet under the circumstances would have involved a repetition of the one mistake for which you blamed me. You don't know, of course, why I jumped down a ladder into a pitch-black cellar, do you?"

"I know you were in pursuit of some one—a pickpocket, they say, who had taken your watch."

"Do they say that?" I asked, interested.

"That is what Miss Clement learned."

"Miss Clement?" I queried. "Who is Miss Clement?"

"Oh, I forgot that you don't know. Miss Clement is the missionary who found you in the—is it 'hop joint' they call it?"

"The lady with the kind eyes?"

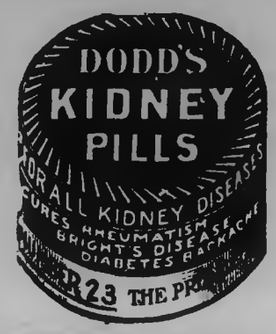
At my designation her face brightened responsively.

"You remember her, then!" she cried, delightedly. "Hasn't she kind eyes? And she doesn't belie them, either. She's just the dearest, most self-sacrificing creature I ever knew."

For the moment we had both forgotten Mrs. Lancaster, and when I would have apologized I found that my nurse had carried her off into the next room and was interestedly showing her some framed photographs of the Siena cathedral.

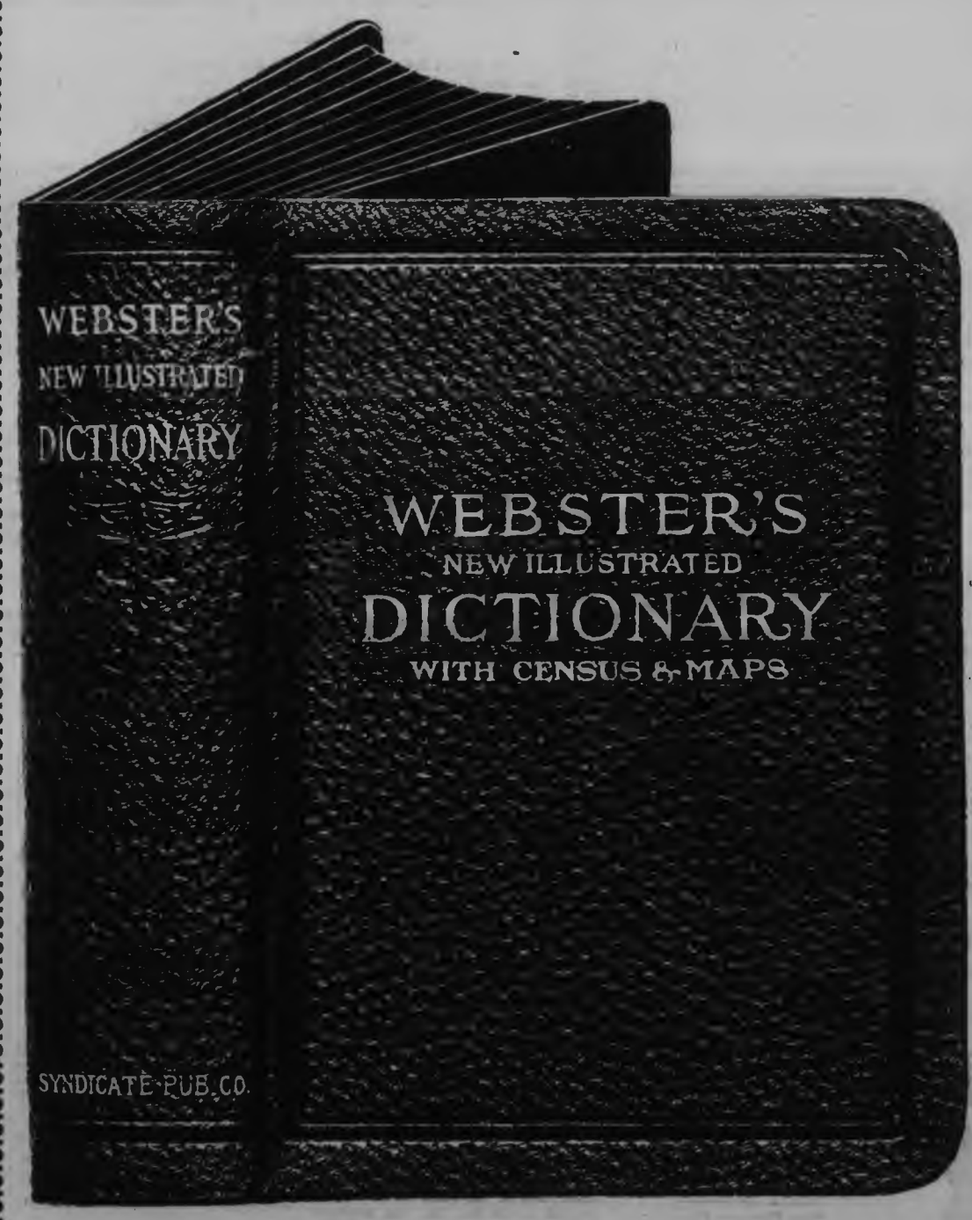
"And Miss Clement learned that I pursued a pickpocket?" I went on, when Evelyn had drawn a chair near me and sat down. "A very clever explanation to account for the disappearance of my watch, but not the true one. As a matter of fact, the person I followed was a miscreant of a deeper dye. When I last saw him, previous to this encounter, he was known as Peter Johnson."

Wide-eyed, the girl stared at me for an instant.



"Peter Johnson!" she repeated, slowly. "So, I was right. He was in the plot. He had something to do with Uncle Robert's disappearance. He was the one who broke the amyl pearls on board the yacht."

It was my turn now to start. Of what was this young woman talking? "Amyl pearls!" Was I mad, or was she?



She saw my perplexity, and hastened to enlighten me.

"Oh, dear, Philip!" she exclaimed. "I forgot again. There is so much to tell you. Really, I hardly know where to begin. Miss Clement has been of such aid to us! She is what they call an 'independent missionary.' That is, she has no affiliation with any of the church societies or reform associations. For fifteen years she has been working in Chinatown among the white women, and she knows the place and the people as if she were indeed one of them. I had her out at Cragholt for a day and I've seen her four or five times here in town, and I have told her everything, and she has explained, or at least given quite reasonable surmises, concerning many of the incidents that seemed to us inexplicable. Did you ever hear of amyl pearls?"

If Breathing is Difficult, If Nostrils are Plugged, You Have Catarrh

At Last a Remedy that already has Permanently Cured Thousands.

Perhaps you haven't heard of the new remedy—it's so pleasant to use—fills the nose, throat and lungs with a healing balsamic vapor like the air of the pine woods. It's really a wonderful remedy—utilizes that marvelous antiseptic only found in the Blue Gum tree of Australia.

The name of this grand specific is Catarrhozone, and you can't find its equal on earth for coughs, colds, catarrh or throat trouble. You see it's not longer necessary to drug the stomach—that spoils digestions—just simply inhale the balsamic essences of Catarrhozone, which are so rich in healing that they drive out every trace of Catarrh in no time.

"I look upon Catarrhozone as the most valuable medical discovery of recent years," writes R. V. Potter, of Prince Albert: "As a long sufferer from nasal and throat catarrh I was obliged to take considerable medicine and, although it helped me, my digestion was always disturbed and the catarrh didn't go away. With Catarrhozone it was different. It cleaned my nose and throat of all phlegm and discharged a stuffy feeling in my nose and frontal headaches. To-day I am entirely free from Catarrh, and I use my Catarrhozone Inhaler a little every day to keep in check the disease from returning."

With Catarrhozone it's positively ends. Permanent curative action begins. Lasting relief from Catarrh results. The large size costs $1.00, lasts two months and is guaranteed. Small size 50c.; sample size 25c. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

MONTPENSIER IS MADE KING

Arrived in Brindisi Yesterday --He is a Bourbon

Paris, April 1. The Duc de Montpensier, to-day was proclaimed King of Albania by the Provisional Government of that country, according to a special despatch from Brindisi to the Paris Excelsior.

The Duc de Montpensier arrived in Brindisi on the Albanian coast, by yacht to-day, accompanied by his suite, and was greeted by Kemail Bey, Provisional president of the country. He announced his intention of accepting the autonomous rulership of Albania, were it formally offered to him, and the Provisional Government immediately proclaimed him King.

Powers Will Be Consulted.

Plans are being formulated to formally ask the great powers to recognize the Duc de Montpensier as Albania's King. This request will be made to the powers through their ambassadors either at Paris or London.

Albania, at the beginning of the war of the Balkan Alliance against Turkey, was a vilayet of Turkey-in-Europe, with an area of 4,170 square miles, and a population of 291,100. VOL. XL NO. 78. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1913 PRICE, TWO CENTS.

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT TURNS DOWN SUFFRAGETTE BILLS

Bills From Two Liberal Members, Mr. Studholme and Mr. Macdiarmid--Subject is Dead at Present in Ontario

Toronto, April 2.—The Ontario Government took a firm and consistent position in regard to woman's suffrage yesterday. Its attitude was abundantly evidenced in the silence of the Government members, their refusal to participate in the debate upon the bills of Mr. W. McDonald, Centre Bruce, and Mr. J. C. Elliott, West Middlesex; the withdrawal by Mr. F. G. Macdonald, West Elgin, of his moderate measure providing for a limited extension of the suffrage, and Mr. Macdiarmid's frank admission that there was not sufficient popular demand at the present time to warrant any such advanced legislation as that proposed and in two brief statements by the Premier. Prior to the afternoon sitting of the House, a Conservative caucus was held at which the Government decided to ask the withdrawal of Mr. Macdiarmid's bill. Such action was taken in recognition of the fact that the suffrage is not demanded by the great bulk of Canadian women and that there is no strong and general public sentiment calling for so radical a departure from established principles, involving as it would considerations of so far-reaching importance.

MAN WHO "TOLD THE TRUTH" REBUFFS HON. MR. PUGSLEY

Former Cabinet Minister Had Brought up South Ontario Election Trial---Mr. Smith Thought He Had "Atoned For His Shortcomings"

Ottawa, April 2.—Mr. Wm. Pugsley to-night received perhaps the most unexpected and most complete rebuffs which he has sustained since he came to Ottawa. A private and very moderate member whom he had been worrying, suddenly turned upon him and with one touch of frankness put Mr. Pugsley in his proper place.

The House was in committee of supply and Mr. Pugsley brought up the dismissal of Lyman C. Smith of Oshawa.

A Dryden Bye-Election.

This affair recalls some bygone episodes in South Ontario. In one of Mr. John Dryden's Provincial bye-elections during the decline and fall of the late Ross Government there was a good deal of money spending on both sides; the Liberals were aided by some of the election workers who were so prominent at the time, and some of the Conservatives raised money and used it. A protest ensued and Mr. William Smith, who had been M.P. from 1887 to 1891 and from 1892 to 1896 and had been defeated in that year and in 1900, admitted that he had spent some of this money. He was asked if he had spent it, and he said he had. He was disqualified and remained out of public life until 1911, when he was nominated and won by 370, the largest in the history of the constituency.

Officials Political Partisanship.

Shortly before the election of 1911 Lyman C. Smith for many years head master of the Oshawa High School, was appointed collector of customs. The appointment was temporary as for some reason Mr. Patterson never had it confirmed by order-in-council. After the election of 1911 Mr. Smith, being now M.P. asked for and procured the dismissal of Lyman Smith. The former collector was charged with several acts of political partisanship, which he denied, but he admitted that he had in a conversation on the street, said that he would not vote for a man who had been disqualified for corruption.

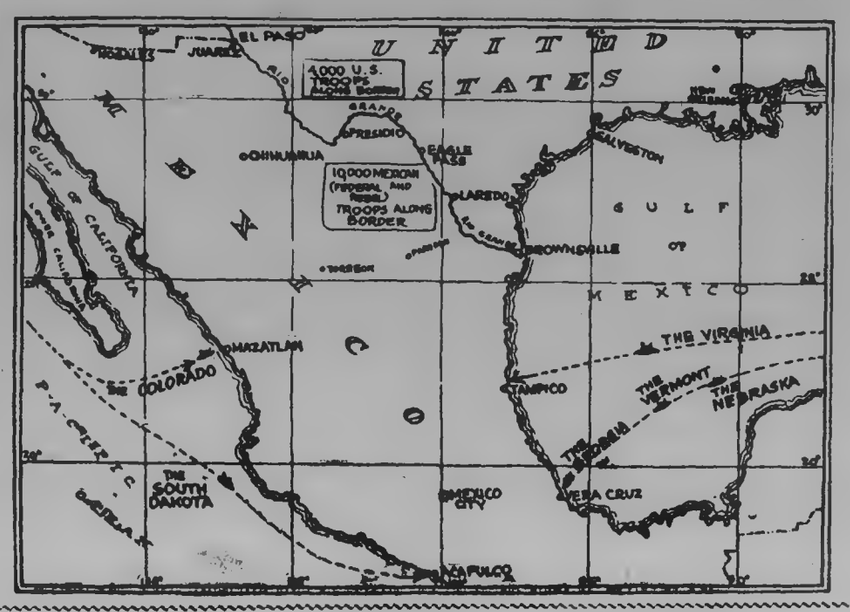
PETERBOROUGH OF OLD IS HEREIN RECALLED

Some New Light on Conditions that Used to Exist in Our Thriving City.

Yesterday The Times found Mr. Tom Rutherford, the well known local contractor, in a reminiscent mood.



Now, all of our readers know the former Commercial Hotel property, owned by Mrs. Birdsall, at the corner of Brock and George streets. All are aware that the second story, on George Street, is adorned with a projecting iron balcony. How many of the younger generation are aware, that the door leading to this balcony once opened on the street level. The hill that once existed there has been levelled away and a substructure was built below the former building. How many of our readers know that Peterborough in its past days has had three distilleries that used to manufacture good (?) whisky at 25 cents a gallon for two year old stuff. Still such is the case. One distillery stood on the site of the Canadian Canoe Company's plant. The distillery sought larger premises and built, as a distillery, what is known as the defunct Lundy tannery on Murray street. A third distillery, the stone foundation of which still remain at the bridge near the George street Government dock, sometimes referred to as the former Boswell Brewery. How many of our readers know that the first cradles, for agricultural purposes, not babies, were built in this part of Canada, and constructed on the site of the Commercial House? Still such is the case.

He hope that none of our readers will envy the good old times, when pine logs, now worth $40 a foot board measure, were burned up to dispose of them, and at such clearing "bees," whisky was served to all present, both men and women in an open wash tub with a handy dipper frequently in demand.

DARING AVIATOR KILLED IN FRANCE

Versailles, France, April 2. Yves Faure, a military aviator, was killed to-day by the overturning of his biplane at a height of 300 feet. He was crushed to death beneath the motor, when it struck the earth.

HOW THE UNITED STATES IS AIDING AMERICANS IN MEXICO.

EVERY VEHICLE MUST HAVE LIGHTS

No Reciprocity in Motors Licenses Between Ontario and the United States.

Toronto, April 2.—The compulsory licensing of all drivers of motor vehicles, the requirement that vehicles of all kinds must carry lights after dusk and before dawn, so as to be seen before and behind, and Provincial reciprocity between Ontario and Quebec in licenses for motor vehicles were the features of the several bills passed by the Municipal Committee of the Ontario Legislature yesterday morning.

A bill providing for reciprocity in motor licenses between Ontario and the United States was rejected.

The license of a driver of motor vehicles will be endorsed with a record of any convictions for speeding that may be made against him while any magistrate or justice of the peace who considers a chauffeur unfit to drive a car may order the man's license to be cancelled.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Are Advocated by Witnesses Before Committee on Subject.

Mr. F. A. Acland deputy minister of labor, said before the old age pension committee to-day that there was no way out of the old age pension scheme for the destitute deserving poor. He also favored the Government taking up and developing the present annuities system so as to make it both more attractive and profitable to the wage earners and people of moderate incomes. This might have to be by contributions from the Government.

Mr. J. C. Watters, president of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, gave very strong evidence in favor of an old age pension scheme. He maintained that it was absolutely necessary for aid to be given to wage earners who are not sure of steady employment and who in addition have large families to support, so as to prevent them from drifting down into helpless poverty. Mr Watters said he was also in favor of the government taking care of both widows with small children and deserted mothers. It has been found in other countries that it is cheaper to aid the mothers than to maintain the children.

COLLIER'S WEEKLY TO QUIT CANADA

Cease Publication Next Month—Cost of Manufacture Too Great.

Ottawa, April 2. Collier's Weekly will cease publication in Canada, according to a responsibly authenticated report current here to-day.

Neither too confined a field nor competition is the cause, it is said but certain complications which increased the cost of the manufacture of the magazine so greatly that the publishers were forced to withdraw.

The magazine will publish its final number the last week of this month.

AN URTRUE STORY IS CONTRADICTED

The Review of yesterday says:—"We are solemnly assured by C. H. Clementi that there must have been a time when some mining stocks paid dividends, else how did the custom of buying them ever get started?"

Whether this item was written as a joke, or a subtly concealed compliment, I do not know. Still as I heard several remarks, last night regarding this matter from some of the many readers of the Review, I beg to state that the above is absolutely without foundation.

C. H. CLEMENTI.

Mr. Burnham's Practical Aid

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., for West Peterborough, has taken an active and consistent part in trying to change the present outrageous marriage "Laws" (?) of the Roman Catholic Church. An Ottawa despatch received yesterday, says: "To enable Mrs. Napoleon Tremblay of Montreal to prosecute her appeal to the Privy Council in the celebrated Tremblay marriage case for which two thousand dollars is required, Mr. J. H. Burnham, member of Parliament for Peterborough, today forwarded Arnold Wainwright, Mrs. Tremblay's counsel, a cheque for five hundred dollars. It is necessary for Mrs. Tremblay to deposit $2,000 within the next few days.

AVOID INSANITY? THEN GET MARRIED

Bachelors Are More Likely to Become Lunatics—Women Act as Antidote.

Boston, April 2. Bachelors are more likely to become insane than married men, in the opinion of Dr. George T. Tuttle, of Waverley, an insanity expert, who spoke at the Massachusetts Mental Hydiene conference.

"There is a tendency for men to degenerate in manners and in conversation when they live alone," said Dr. Tuttle. "There are many advantages in the presence of women in men's homes and in the case of insane patients the employment of women nurses is for betterment."

PRIMROSE AND DOCKSTADER

George Primrose and Lew Dockstader, the veteran minstrel stars, who are reunited this season after pursuing their separate ways for nearly ten years, will come to the Grand Opera House Tuesday, April 8th, for one night only.

With Messrs. Primrose and Dockstader will be fifty artists, who will be seen in the noonday street parade, as well as in the performance. The Primrose and Dockstader show this season is said to be the best they ever had, and their success may be told in the fact that they have been breaking all theatrical records for big business in every city they have visited. The show is one of many features and included in the list of artists are the names of many well known theatregoers everywhere.

What is generally conceded to be the best musical act on the American stage is the offering of the Musical Brown Brothers, a sextette of instrumentalists who will be seen here soon with the Primrose and Dockstader Minstrels. The Brown Brothers specialize on the saxaphone although playing various other instruments. Tom Brown, the director, is a comedian of unusual ability. One of their most popular members is what Mr. Frown egll "Chicken Music," during the rendition of which he gives a ludicrous imitation of a barnyard rooster.

MOVING PICTURE MEN ARE THREATENING THE POLITICIANS

Their Screens Give Them a Very Effective Electioneering Weapon---Strongly Object To Increased Fees

Toronto, April 3.—The patrons of the movies throughout the Province are to be asked to sign a petition to the Government against the imposing of any increase in license fees on moving picture shows.

The form of petition was approved of at a meeting of the executive, of the Moving Picture Association this afternoon, and copies will be distributed to the members of the association to be placed at the doors of the shows for signatures.

"The report that this association is going into politics is correct," said Secretary Mandell of the association. "The Government and the City Council evidently have selected the moving picture shows as the goats when it comes to increasing the revenue of the Province and the city, and we shall have to take measures to protect ourselves."

Would Close Them Up.

"The proposal of the Mayor, that the license fee be increased to $500 and that moving picture shows be compelled to allow a fifteen foot driveway round the outside of their houses is ridiculous. There are several moving picture shows in Toronto that can hardly pay their way under the present conditions, and an increase in the license fee would compel them to close their doors."

Asked what form this political action would take, Mr. Mandell said that the candidates for City Council have been in the habit of using the screens of the shows for soliciting votes. Next election time the moving picture men will use these screens to advocate the election of candidates pledged to see that the movies receipe fair play. "If Mayor Hooken wants to increase our license fee, we shall have to support a candidate for the Mayoralty who sees the matter in a different light," said the secretary, "and our screens give us a very effective electioneering weapon."

5000 BARRELS OF WHISKEY SWEPT AWAY BY FLOOD

This "Awful Waste" Ensued After Huge Warehouse in Louisville, Ky., Was Undermined and Collapsed

Louisville, Ky., April 2.—A large warehouse of the Rugby Distillery Company in the western end of the city, weakened by flood waters, collapsed late on Tuesday night, releasing to the river about 5,000 barrels of whiskey, valued at a quarter of a million dollars.

The threatened collapse of weakened buildings was the only source of anxiety to-day as the crest of the flood passed Louisville with a stage of slightly more than 45 feet.

Lower river points to-day continued to experience rising water. Paducah, with water standing more than two feet deep in the lower sections of the city, faced the menace of a useless lighting plant. Henderson & Owensboro, safe from flood damage themselves, were taxed with the care of hourly increasing refugees.

At Wickliffe, where are gathered more than three thousand refugees from Hickman, Cairo and Columbus, the shelter situation was becoming acute.

Less Flood at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, O., April 2.—After remaining stationary nearly 24 hours, the Ohio River began falling here today. The indications are that it will continue to fall slowly and that the end of the flood is in sight.

SUNDAY BASEBALL WINS OUT AND NEBRASKA VOTE SHOWS

Saloon Licenses Prove Big Issue in Municipal Elections Throughout State--Some Surprises on Both Sides

Omaha, Neb., April 2. Municipal elections were held to-day in all Nebraska cities and towns aside from Omaha and Lincoln. Except in a few instances political lines were not drawn, the chief issue being the question of saloon licenses.

Not many notable changes were made, but in a few cases there were surprises. At Auburn, regarded as "wet," the "drys" had a substantial majority and Major Church Howe, for many year in the diplomatic service in Great Britain and Canada, was elected Mayor.

The victory of the temperance advocates at Auburn was off-set by saloon advocates at Fremd, heretofore no license, winning by a pronounced vote.

Sunday baseball was made an issue and every instance where the question was put to a vote Sunday ball won.

GAYNOR WAGES WAR ON ALL NEW YORK MIDNIGHT DINERS

New York, April 2. Acting under the Mayor's orders, a squad of police entered the Garden restaurant, on Upper Broadway, just before one o'clock this morning and attempted to close the emporium and drive the patrons out at the appointed hour. The blue-coats struck a snag. With hoots and yells the hundreds of men and women, packed into the place, refused to leave their tables until they had finished the food and drink set befor them.

"You have no right to put me out until I have eaten what I have paid for," shouted one man.

SIMPLE FUNERAL RITES FOR DEAD MONEY KING

Rome, April 2.—A funeral service of an extremely simple but none the less impressive character was held over the body of the late J. P. Morgan to-day. The mourners present were very few in number. They stood amid a profusion of beautiful flowers in the shape of wreaths and crosses sent as tributes by friends in many countries.

Beside Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, the son-in-law and daughter of the deceased, stood Miss Helen M. Hamilton, his granddaughter; Thos. J. O'Brien, U.S. Ambassador, and Mrs. O'Brien; Professor Giuseppe Bastianelli, Dr. Allen M. Starr and Dr. Geo. A. Dixon, the three physicians who had attended him during his illness.

Fortunate is the owner of a clear Title to a farm, but, next to this, if one cannot afford the farm the best thing is to own a few lots within or adjoining a live progressive City has a great future assured. There is no place in the world that fills these requirements like the City of Winnipeg.

Lots can be purchased close to this City for as low as $7.00 per ft., but here are some in Brooks Park actually adjoining the building district and now served by a good car service and within 24 miles from the City Hall at prices ranging from $12.00 to $17.00 per ft. The cheapest ones being less than three blocks from the car line. Lots the same distance from the Portage Avenue car line and 6 miles from the City Hall selling for over $30.00 per ft. NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 25c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, as we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 396 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Things are not always what their names would indicate. For instance, a vacuum cleaner is never used to clean vacuums

A Frenchman earned over $50,000 last year as an airship chauffeur. Yet some people say that a man can't live on air.

Is it any wonder that "race suicide" is so often spoken of when Lakefield News of last issue congratulates a young couple on the death of a daughter?

Replying to a correspondent, we are not aware of the name of the poet who wrote about winter lingering in the lap of spring. Milton wrote about winter doing the same thing in the lap of May. Anyhow, both Milton and the other man were right to remark about it. Winter had no right there.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier claims the Borden Government has no mandate from the people to spend thirty-five millions for the purpose of increasing the effective naval forces of the Empire. Perhaps he is under the impression the people gave him a mandate for his "tinpot" navy in 1910, consisting of the Rainbow and the Niobe. The latter vessel has spent most of her time in dry dock, recuperating from the effects of attending political picnics in Yarmouth County, while the poor old Rainbow cannot put out to sea for fear of going to the bottom should a gale blow up.

THE REAL ISSUE.

Men of Canada, let us remind ourselves that the one thing before the House at Ottawa and before the country is voting Thirty-Five Millions of Dollars for three capital ships (or Dreadnoughts) for the immediate increase of the naval strength of our Empire—Seek ye first the invincibility of the British Fleet, is the text unto which the Finance Minister confesses this duty and this action.

The Opposition spends its time challenging the Government as to whether it favors a Canadian navy. To this challenge the Opposition has not and cannot in the nature of things get any immediate reply. To answer this would be for the Government to be stampeded into some declaration of a permanent policy and Borden has pledged himself both before he was returned to power and since that his permanent policy can only be elaborated after months of most patient investigation of the subject—after our immediate duty of the emergency grant is done and that this policy will only be declared when the Government is ready to go to the country.

Having waited forty-two years for the Niobe and the Rainbow, can't we wait two or three years for a permanent policy during all of which time we will be building our three great ships in the greatest shipbuilding yards in the world where they can be so speedily built as to give immediately, effective aid to the Empire.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

There is one feature of the proposed government measure for the further regulation of marriage in this Province, which the Hamilton Herald regards with favor—a feature which this paper has more than once suggested. It is the withdrawal of the authority to issue marriage licenses from the large number of privileged persons who now possess it and its concentration in the hands of the Clerk of the municipality.

This would be better than the imposition of heavy penalties on those who issue licenses to parties who are physically or mentally unfit for marriage. In not many cases would the penalties be imposed. One reason is that it would be easy to evade responsibility and difficult to prove culpability; another, that the authority to issue licenses is distributed among supporters of the party in power, and in the event of conviction political influence would in most cases be employed to protect them from severe punishment.

If the authority were concentrated in the hands of one official the responsibility for enforcing the law strictly could not be evaded. The law would be enforced.

To deprive the license-issuers of their present privilege and perquisites would be no great hardship to any of them. There is very little money to be made by issuing marriage licenses and if heavy penalties were to be imposed for neglect, the few dollars to be made annually would probably be considered by most of the licensees as insufficient to balance the risk incurred.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Times does nor hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

DREADNOUGHTS.

(Editor Morning Times.)

Sir,—What Canada needs to-day more than Dreadnoughts is a few more fearless preachers, built after the same type as Evangelist Rev. L. W. Munshall, who delivered an address before the New York Methodist Ministers, in defence of the inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, as against the views which had been advanced by the so-called higher critics. The New York World reports his address as follows:

"Nearly every objection raised against the integrity of the Bible by the higher critics," he said, "could be found in Voltaire's Works and Raine's Age of Reason. The enemy," he continued, "used to be outside the breastworks. He is now inside"

Speaking of young men who come under the teaching of the destructive critics, he said, "I know of one of these young men who within four years of his ordination left the Methodist Church, became a pastor of a Congregational Church, then a pastor of a Unitarian church, and then a blantant infidel, all in the same town." Another case, he continues, "A wealthy member of our Church—a delegate to the last general conference—told me that he sent his eldest son to a Methodist Educational institution. Before he left home, he was considered by all who knew him to be a model Christian young man. While at school he came under the influence of a certain professori who is a higher critic. He came home an infidel and had not been inside a church since."

This very same destructive work is going on to day in this Christian Canada of ours.

FROM ALL OVER THE GREAT WEST

COME REPORTS FROM WOMEN OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Telling of Renewed Health and Fresh Vigor Through Using the Great Canadian Remedy.

Overland, Sask., April 2.—(Special)—From all over this great west are coming statements from women who have found renewed health and fresh vigor through using Dodd's Kidney Pills and in this growing community evidence is not lacking that the great Canadian remedy is daily gaining friends among those on whom the burdens of life fall most heavily. Mrs. M. O. Forsberg, a well known resident, says:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills did me a great deal of good. I tried two other kinds of medicines before using them but it was Dodd's Kidney Pills that benefited me."

Women's health depends on the kidneys. If the kidneys are not right the result is weakness and weariness and a burden of pain almost too great to bear. But when Dodd's Kidney Pills make the kidneys right the result is that all poison is strained out of the blood, the seeds of disease are removed and the purified blood carries health and vigor to all parts of the body.

Almost any bright, healthy woman can tell you why Doddjs Kidney Pills are known as woman's best 1841—St. Claire tunnel completed.

CANADIAN BEARS STILL PLENTIFUL

Fur Bearing Animals of the North Which Entice the Trapper and Produce Riches

The Canadian bear continues to flourish in the far north. As many as 1,000 skins are taken into Edmonton in an average season. Ninety per cent. of the ursus victims are black and a good one brings in the sum of $25 to the lucky hunter. But bear skins vary greatly in quality.

Next to the bear comes the fox, and he also varies in value according to his color. Size, color, everything must be taken into account. There are red foxes, commonest of all; cross foxes, those with fur varying from a red to a silver hue; silver foxes; and black foxes, which are very scarce. The silver fox is, of course, the great prize, but here again the hunter is often cruelly disappointed when he comes to dispose of his supposed treasure. The price of the silver fox skin ranges from $25 to $1,500 according to size, color and quality.

Silver Fox a Freak

Strange to tell, the silver fox, rarest and most valuable of fur-bearing animals, is a freak of nature. He is found in the litter of the red fox. His father may be worth only $11 while he, raised in the same burrow fed with the same food, subjected to the same family discipline, is worth perhaps as much as two thousand dollars.

Although the mink retreats from the haunts of man, this beautiful little animal is very plentiful in the north land. As many as 5,000 mink skins are received in the fur houses of Edmonton every year. Martins, badgers and skunks are also caught in fairly large numbers.

Lots of Big Deer

The moose and the caribou abound in the far north also, but they are not killed for their skins. The Indians use their skins for a number of purposes; for instance, they make very fine moccasins from moose hide.

The fur-trading companies of the north have many vexations. The caprices of the fashion-makers of Paris and London bother them not a little. When a fur goes out of fashion the demand will of course fall off; the price of the raw fur of the particular animal will fluctuate, perhaps decrease considerably. Naturally the company will not wish to pay the Indian or half-breed hunter as much for the pelfrey, but owing to the distance of the rading posts from Edmonton, it takes two months at least to get the news to the factors, and, by that time, probably large quantities have been bought at a large advance on market value. Then there is competition in the fur business in the wilds.

Indians Very Wily

Big companies and little traders are out for business. The Indian hunter is wary enough to take full advantage of this rivalry. He knows he has valuable goods for sale, and, with great diplomacy, he sets one buyer off against the other. He invariably demands supplies, flour, tobacco, tea, arms and ammunition before he will go out to hunt. If a fur company grub-stakes him, they have to do it pretty much as a gamble, for the Indian, as like as not, will come home with his furs and sell them to the rival company.

THE GAS OVEN

The oven must be carefully cleaned out before the joint, or vegetables are put in, for the smallest scrap of burned fat on either shelf or door will completely spoil the taste of anything which is being cooked.

A tin containing cold water should be placed on the shelf beneath the one upon which the meat is being cooked. This keeps the air moist and prevents the dripping from burning.

The oven should be made very hot for the first ten or fifteen minutes, and then reduced.

Frequent bastings should be given and the meat turned so that both sides should be properly browned.

A teaspoonful of baking soda and a tablespoonful of sugar should be dissolved in half a teacupful of vinegar and poured over the meat before it is placed in the oven. This makes the meat tender and gives a delicious flavor to the gravy.

LILLOOET, B.C.

Newport News March 7th

Not since Placer Mining days in the sixties has the town of LILLOOET enjoyed such a revival as it is experiencing at present.

The early advent of railway facilities has given the place a new lease of life and scores of people hunting business locations or seeking land and other investments are pouring in.

The population of the town has more than doubled within the last two months. It is expected that Lillooet will have a population of 10,000 people within the next three years. It is in the centre of a fine agricultural and fruit-growing country and a large tributary mining country.

Your Opportunity!

There is just as much money to be made in LILLOOET, B. C., to-day as was produced by the famous Placer Mines in the sixties. This time the money will be made in real estate. It does not mean long hours and hard work to the fortunate ones. You do not even have to take a chance. It is an absolutely sure thing that a little money invested now will bring big profits in the near future. Property is rising in value rapidly, and it will soon be too late for the small investor. We still have a few choice residential lots left, also about twenty of the finest business locations right in the heart of the town. These are all sure money makers and will treble in value inside of the next two years. It costs you nothing to investigate. Write us to-day for descriptive literature.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 20 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 65-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—6-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$27,800—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins tunnelled—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 200,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public, Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Shot for Wild Animal

Thinking some wild animal was trying to get into his cabin a laborer on the G.T.P. near Edmonton, fired through the wooden door from his bed and the bullet struck Carl Struckenburg, his "bunkie," who was just returning from a fishing trip. The wound was not a serious one.

LAST BUFFALO RELICS

Immense Collection of Horns Gathered From the Prairies

An interesting shipment of buffalo horns, probably the last one of any size that will leave the West, has arrived in Ottawa. There are 10,000 horns of the noble bison and they are valued at about $5,000. They were taken to Ottawa by Mr. Samuel Breader who purchased them from an Indian curio dealer at Winnipeg.

This shipment does away with the last of a store of about 30,000 of the headgear of the former proud masters of the prairie. The horns were picked up on the prairies by the settlers and Indians. If the brave warriors could have thrown a glance into the future when they, after killing the buffaloes, rode away with only the skin, the tongue and heart, leaving the rest of the carcass to the tender mercies of the elements, and then seen that they a few years later would be walking around digging the half buried horns up from the ground to sell them to the palefaces, they no doubt would have shown more care in disposing of them.

The man who bought the buffalo horns from the Indians and the settlers was the late W. F. White, first a blacksmith, and later curio dealer

"The horn trade with the dusky braves was not without trouble and inconvenience. The original lords of the western plains were not exactly famous for their honesty. They would come in large numbers to Mr. White's store and, one at a time, bargain with him for the sale of their pickings, or rather those of their wives The horns were usually wrapped up in bundles looking very much alike and when Mr. White had bought one he usually would throw it out in the back yard and then turn to the next customer. The one who had disposed of his bag then took a stroll around to the said backyard, and if nobody was watching, he simply helped himself to the very same bundle and sold it to Mr. White over again.

On a successful day, the Indian thus made good profits and the dispensers of fire water, who in the good old days were not subject to such strict rules as now, did a rushing business as long as the Indians money lasted.

CHANGE WAS IMPERATIVE

Trunks Had to be Made Smaller or Baggage Cars Made Larger

Discussing the order of the Dominion Railway Commission placing discriminatory charges on all trunks in excess of a certain size, Mr. J. E. Quick, General Baggage Agent Grand Trunk Railway, said in an interview "The problem of the increased size of baggage receptacles has been made acute for the railway companies by the fact that the width of baggage cars cannot be increased. They run as a rule, from 102 to 110 inches and baggage is stowed away in two rows so as to leave an aisle down the centre of the car. When the length of trunks is excessive this cannot be done. The cars cannot accommodate nearly so many trunks of increased length and so the number of baggage cars per train would have to be increased. It is planned by the railway companies to allot only one baggage car per passenger train and when it have to be employed it increases the expense of haulage and the weight of the train as well as diminishing the speed, all of which are important factors in these modern days of high speed and fine estimates of the cost of operation. The carriers consider that it would be unnecessarily hard to prohibit altogether large trunks but that the imposition of a moderate penalty will tend to discourage these in future."

Wyoming Oil Investments

Companies operating in various Wyoming Oil Fields have been, as a general thing, very successful.

Millions of dollars have been invested and returns are now so satisfactory that the general public rightfully regards Wyoming Oil Stocks as safe and exceedingly profitable.

THE MUDDY CREEK OIL FIELD

Among the nineteen Oil Fields in Wyoming, the new Muddy Creek Field ranks among the highest from a geological standpoint. Its location is in the geological and geographical centre of the Colorado-Wyoming oil formation.

THE LARSEN OIL COMPANY is a Wyoming Corporation, having its principle office at Rawlins. This Company was first in the Muddy Creek field, and has the best locations. The Company is endorsed in the highest terms by the local Board of Trade, banks and business interests. Large local investments prove that the Company is highly regarded where best known.

Investment in Stock of the LARSEN OIL COMPANY appears to be an opportunity to repeat the great profits made by the rise in value of stocks of the "Mid-West" and other Wyoming Oil Companies.

In the older fields stocks are held at prices prohibitive to small investors. The initial price of LARSEN OIL STOCK is very low, much lower than would be justified by the Company's large holdings, equipment and development. Installment payments will be accepted.

The leading bankers and business men of Rawlins have the management of the Company and the reader may rest assured of honorable, able and energetic conduct of affairs.

Full particulars, including State Geologist's Report, Maps, etc., on request, and a thorough investigation is solicited.

MAKING HER HAPPY

One Case Where Love Was Successfully Placed Second to Honor.

By ROSE CARRINGTON.

"If you really loved me, you'd explain," and the girl tossed her head angrily.

"Once more, Helen, I will not."

"Then, Ted, there is nothing more for me to do but to give you back this," and Helen drew off the ring he had placed on her finger with such professions of devoted love that it made her heart ache to remember them.

"Helen, don't,'" he whispered, but she did not flinch.

"Can you bear to break it off?" he asked softly, all the anger dying out of his boyish face.

"Yes, I can when there is a secret between us. If you have one now, you'd have a dozen after we were married." But her own face was relaxing, and the tears lay near the surface.

"Helen, dearest, just wait. Give me until tonight, and then I promise to tell you everything. You owe me that much notice," and he smiled a little uncertainly. "You know when a man loses his job he is given a little bit of notice."

"But this is not a job." Helen said; but she slipped the ring back on her finger.

"Isn't it? Well, I just guess yes, the finest kind of a one."

"How do you make that out?" and now there was a faint smile about the pretty lips.

"It is a mighty fine job, that of making you happy," Ted returned, his usual merry expression coming back into his eyes as he bent towards her.

"Nonsense. But honest, Ted, if you can tell me tonight why not now?" and her eyes tempted him to go against what he believed to be right but he shook off the influence, and returned gravely:

"Remember, Neil, that picture we saw last winter at the art exhibit?"

She did not need to be told which one, for there had been only that which had lingered in their memory.

"You know, the one where the girl is trying to get her sweetheart to wear a white handkerchief so that he will be taken for a member of the other side, and not be killed?"

He Offered Her No Explanation.

"Of course."

"And you know what was under it? Something about loving her less if he did not love honor more?"

Helen nodded.

"Well, that's my case, girlie—honest. I can't tell you because I promised not to, and I can't go back on my honor, for if I did I'd not be worthy of you. See?" And there was a strength of purpose in his dark eyes that appealed to her and made her eyes dim, although, woman like, she asked softly:

"Would you rather give me up than go back on your promise?"

Ted swallowed hard. "If you'd want me to, Nell, I don't believe I could care for you as much as I do. You see, I'd feel that something was wrong. Now kiss me, dear, and just wait until tonight, and I'll prove to you that I'm just what I've said I am, not so awfully bad after all," and without waiting for permission, he drew her into his arms, kissed her not once but several times, then ran away, leaving her gasping, but happier than she had been for several days.

The crux of the trouble had been reached the night before, when there had been a dance to which all of her set had been invited. It was the last she expected to attend before their marriage, and so Helen had looked forward to it eagerly. Ted was to come for her at nine, and she had dressed very carefully, pinning on the blush roses he had sent her, after kissing them with girlish tenderness. However, although she was all ready a little before nine, Ted did not come. Nine grew to ten, then eleven, and finally twelve, and still she waited alone and in vain, and worse than all, she received no message of explanation. Finally, frantic with imagining all kinds of accidents, she had thrown herself, all dressed, on her bed and sobbed herself to sleep. In the morning he had telephoned her, asking her to meet him at the park entrance, and when she arrived at the appointed spot she found him haggard, sleepless and with jumbled clothes. He offered her no explanation, except to say that business had detained him. Still, she loved him with all her girlish heart and as she sat there in the sweet early spring air after he had left her, feeling alone as though on a desert island, she realized that she was beginning to understand more of her woman's nature, to make excuses and forgive without knowing why.

The day passed slowly, and she felt she could scarcely wait until evening. The dreariness of the house became more pronounced because of the calls from many of her girl friends, who came so openly to question her absence from the dance, that she felt that her endurance was almost gone. To them all she replied gaily, hiding her worry beneath a smile.

"Why, there's nothing in it. Surely Ted and I ought to be allowed the privilege of choosing our way of spending an evening. You see, Ted is a bit jealous, and I honestly believe he doesn't like me to dance with any one else." And with this palpable but innocent fiction, smilingly given, she disarmed even her chum who was to be maid of honor at the wedding. The latter laughed teasingly as she cried:

"And to think that you'd be so much in love, Nell, that you'd be willing to give up a dance like that last night." But Nell only smiled back:

"Just wait, Grace, until your turn comes, and then you'll know how dear the right one can be," and there was a catch in her throat as she spoke, for surely Ted was dearer than even her sense of justice, and she felt she could still trust him.

At last, when the gloaming of the spring evening wrapped the world in its cloud, with trembling fingers Helen dressed for Ted, her heart beating so rapidly that she could scarcely get her breath. Long before eight she was ready for him, but it was after nine before she heard his ring and ran to let him in. Somehow she could not reproach him, he seemed so tired and worn. His eyes were deep with fatigue and ring encircled, and so she only put her arms up and drew his head down, saying gently:

"My poor boy, how tired he looks; come, sit down and rest."

"You darling!" he whispered, and for a moment he rested his aching head on the little shoulder lovingly offered for his support, and then he broke out with:

"Thank God, it's all over," and drew her closer to him. All curiosity suddenly left Helen. No longer was she a petulant girl, jealous of her rights, but a strong, courageous woman, with a deep trust in the integrity of the man she was going to marry, and she laid her firm, cool hand on his burning one so confidingly that he raised it to his lips before he began:

"I wonder, Nellie, if I were to ask you to keep on trusting me without any explanation, you'd do it?"

Without any hesitation, she returned:

"I've been thinking about that picture, Ted, and I believe the man was right; he could not have loved the girl as he ought, if he had not been true to his honor. If you can't tell me, it is all right."

It was worth a good deal to him, this simple confession of her faith, but fortunately Ted did not have to take advantage of it. With a little laugh of pure joy, he sat with his arm about her and told her the story, which after all was simple, once she understood. An employer's son, who had fallen into bad company, had been driven to forging his father's name. The check was presented and disputed, and then Ted had been sent to find the missing wrong-doer.

"I spent the whole of last night looking for him, and most of today in getting him to go back home. I had promised not to breathe a word of it until I landed him safely, and I couldn't break my word, not even for you, sweetheart," and he spoke earnestly.

"Oh, Ted, how good you are," she said softly.

"No, it was the only thing to do. Bob's father has been pretty good to me, and now that he and Bob understand each other, the boy will be all right. So no harm's done if you don't mind being loved second to honor. That's your only rival."

"You could not have loved me as much as you do if you had not given me that rival," was Neil's reply.

MEMORIES OF IRVING

His Son's Tale of Snobbery at a Famous Public School

Mr. Laurence Irving, younger of the two actor sons of Sir Henry Irving, at Bristol, received from the British Empire Shakespeare Society a bronze tablet which is to be affixed to the house in Bristol where Irving, then John Henry Brodribb, lived as a boy.

Comparing his father with Macready, the great Shakespearian actor of a generation before, Mr. Irving said Macready never entirely recovered from the fact that he had a public school education—he never quite got the public school contempt for players out of his mouth.

"I shall never forget when, at the tender age of ten, I became a student at Marlborough College the astonishment and dismay with which I found out that the boys regarded with undisguised contempt the occupation which had already rendered my father one of England's most celebrated sons.

"But I did not entirely bow my head before the verdict of the boys of Marlborough College. I caused blood to flow from the nose of the overweening son of an apothecary named Nicholson.

"Like Kean, my father had known what it was to be hissed and hooted at, as well as to be in great financial need, and like Kean, he had ultimately aroused such storms of enthusiasm as are only evoked in the theatre when an unexpected meteor rushes into view."

ROBERT BURNS' RAZOR

Interesting Relic of Scottish Poet Sold in London

There came under the auctioneer's hammer in London a rare personal relic of Robert Burns, and one of peculiar interest to those who value the intimate belongings of great men. It is the last razor that Scottish bard ever used, and belonged to David Paterson, a citizen of Liverpool, who bought it eleven years ago at the dispersal of Edward Qualle's collections of antique gems and curios.

In 1858 the razor was presented by Robert Burns, junior, to William Dunbar, who in 1865 passed it on to T. A. Porter, from whom in 1873 it went to J. Harris Gibson. It came into Mr. Qualle's possession in 1876, and remained one of his most prized possessions till the day of his death.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron, while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the bowl of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X.—Johnson is allowed to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature, who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

CHAPTER XI.—Clyde seeks assistance from a Chinese fellow college student, who recommends him to Yup Sing, most prominent Chinaman in New York. The latter promises to seek information of Cameron, among his countrymen.

CHAPTER XII.—Among Cameron's letters is found one from one Addison, who speaks of seeing Cameron in Pekin. Cameron had frequently declared to Clyde that he had never been in China.

CHAPTER XIII.—Clyde calls on Dr. Addison. He learns that Addison and Cameron were at one time intimate friends, but that a ruling out over Cameron's denial of having been seen in Pekin by Addison.

Of course I had heard something of amyl pearls, and I said so.

"They are glass capsules," I added, "and contain a liquid which smells like bananas. They use them, I believe, in heart attacks, by crushing them in a handkerchief and inhaling the drug."

But it was not the same drug, Evelyn explained. Miss Clement had told her all about it. She doubted that it was an amyl, at all, though it was put up in the same fashion, and released in the same way, and it was like an amyl, in that it was extremely volatile.

"Miss Clement has never seen one of them," Evelyn continued, "but some of the Chinese have told her of them, and of the wonders that they perform. She says the chemical, whatever it is, is very expensive and so they are seldom used, but that in China, especially in secret government enterprises, they are employed on occasion. The effect is seemingly to make invisible the person who uses them. Really, they don't do anything of the sort; for they are nothing more nor less than capsules, filled with a peculiarly-acting anesthetic—an anesthetic so quick and powerful in its action that the victim falls into insensibility without warning, and emerges, after an interval of ten or twelve minutes, without knowing that he lost consciousness or that more than a single second has elapsed."

"The idea seems ingenious," I returned. I was interested, surely, but very far from convinced. "But," I objected, "how is it that the anaesthetizer is not anaesthetized himself?"

"Oh, he doesn't break the pearls under his own nose," Evelyn explained. "He casts them. The slightest concussion fractures the shell, and every one within a certain radius drops instantly into a temporary trance."

"And the swine before whom the pearls are cast, do they drop to the ground to rise again when the ten or twelve minutes are concluded?" I ridiculed.

"Oh, not at all. Your muscles are not relaxed. You stand or sit as if turned suddenly to stone. If your arm is extended, for instance, it remains in that position until the effect ceases." She was very much in earnest, and tried to persuade me that, aided by these pearls, it would be a very easy matter to commit all three of the depredatory acts which had so amazed and shocked us.

I am the last man to regard anything as impossible in this day of wonders, yet I was by no means willing to accept such a solution merely on the hearsay evidence of a woman who had spent a decade and a half amongst the Chinese of New York City.

"Yes, Evelyn," I said, tolerantly, "it is worth considering, and at the first opportunity I shall look into it. But just now there must be more important matters for you and me to discuss. Did Miss Clement, by any chance, see Yup Sing?"

At the question the girl's pale cheeks flushed to her temples and her violet eyes blazed.

"I asked her to see him, and she did," was her anwer. "I thought she might learn from him when and where you parted, and what led up to the plight in which you were found. But he told her that you had failed to keep an engagement with him. He insinuated that you had come to Chinatown intent upon making trouble, and ended by declaring that he had no time to devote to answering the conundrums of such a harebrained American as you had proved yourself. Did you ever hear of such impertinence? I wanted Miss Clement to take me to him that I might tell him what I thought of his outrageous conduct, but she refused. She says he stands very high amongst his people, and that it is not well to antagonize him."

I smiled at her indignation. "After all," I said, "he isn't so much to blame. I must have cut a rather undignified figure chasing Mr. Johnson through Doyers street, and then falling down cellar stairs. When I am able to get out again, I shall go to Mr. Yup and apologize."

But before I was able to get out again, I changed my mind. To be quite definite I changed it that same evening, when, in reading the reports of O'Hara, the detective who for nearly two weeks had been shadowing the red giant, Philetus Murphy, I came upon this entry:

". . . At 5:27 he entered the Mott street store of the Yup Sing Company, remaining until 6:42, when he came out with a tall, thin, well-dressed Chinaman, said to be Yup Sing, himself. Together they went to Ching Wung's restaurant on Doyers street. From there a Chinaman known as Muk Chuen returned with Murphy to Cos Cob."

And the date of this occurrence was the day following my Chinatown misadventure.

CHAPTER XVI.

A Slump in Crystal Consolidated.

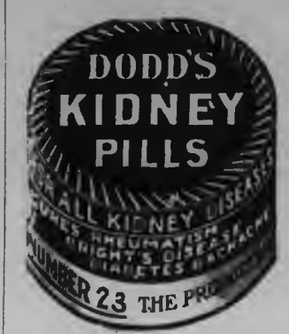
The week of my convalescence was not eventful. Evelyn and Mrs. Lancaster called daily, and the reports from O'Hara came each morning with unvarying regularity and equally unvarying lack of import. The artist, after his visit to Yup Sing, had returned to his Cos Cob hermitage, accompanied by a successor to his former unfortunate Chinese servant, and now rarely left his own grounds. Gravid with suggestion as his appearance in Chinatown had seemed at first, I soon came to realize that it might possibly bear no more vital significance than that altogether commonplace proceeding, the quest of a cook. And in the absence of any confirmatory evidence to the contrary, and with the knowledge gleaned from Miss Clement that Yup Sing, on occasions, added to his regular business of merchandizing that of an employment agent, I saw no reason to attach an undue importance to the incident. Nevertheless I relinquished none of my suspicions regarding Murphy, but continued the detective's surveillance with a fresh injunction to vigilance. And I did not apologize to Yup Sing.

Miss Clement, to whom I believe I owe my life, visited me at my request. How I whelmed her with my gratitude is no more material than how she endeavored to make light of her service to me, declaring that such offices were a part of her day's work in her chosen field, and that her day's work was her passion. And yet it was this part of our interview which gave me my strongest insight into her exceptionally worthy character. Absolutely unselfish, she joyed in a life that even a religious fanatic might well have quailed before; finding flowers in muck heaps and jewels amid tinsel.

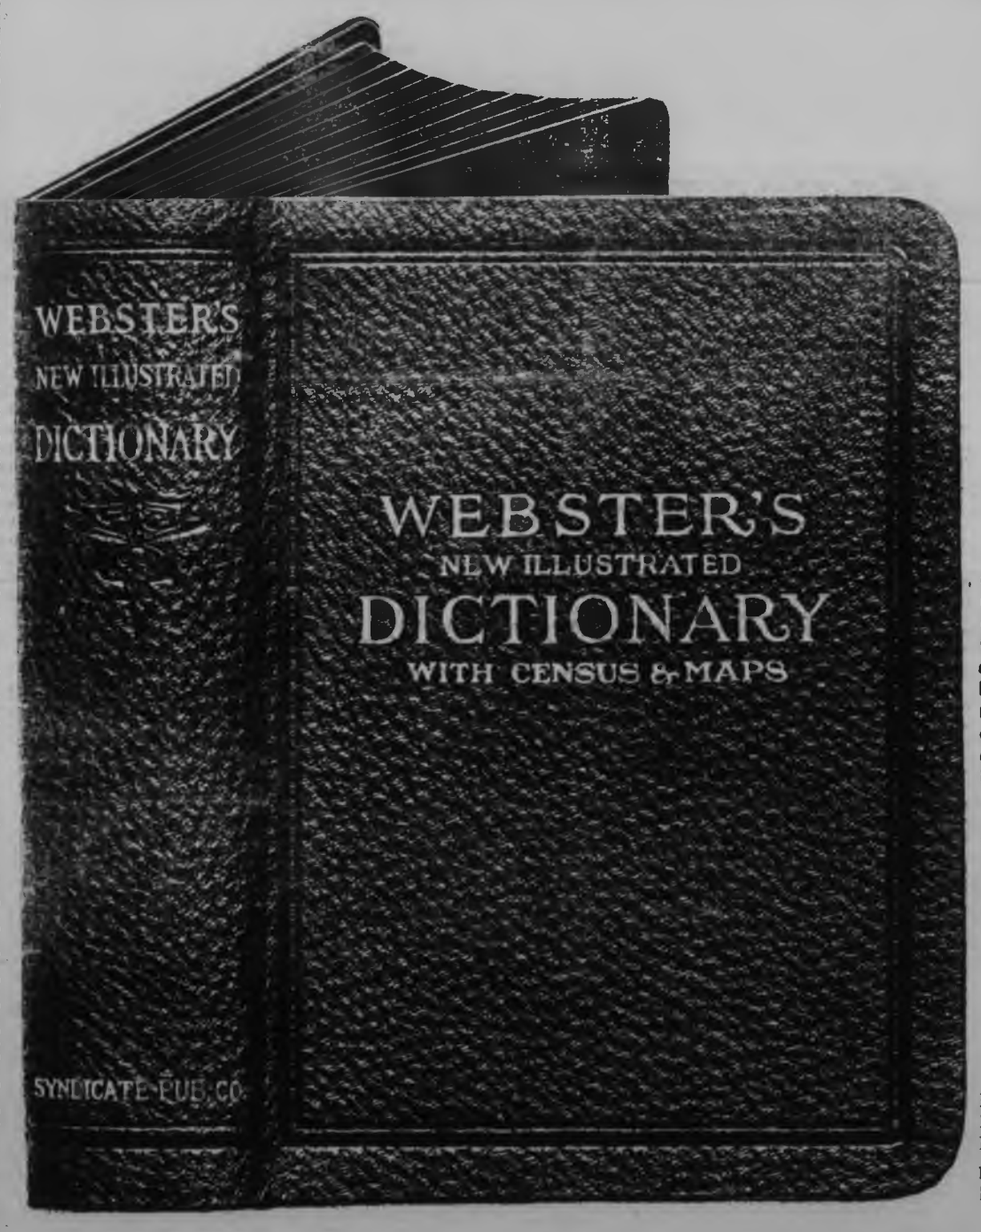
In five minutes, too, I glimpsed her abounding magnetism, the moving agent in that rare efficiency which was part and parcel of her. Later, I learned of the weight of her influence among the dwellers in the Chinese colony; not from any direct narrative of what she had accomplished—for she was chary of speaking of herself—but by deduction, purely. Moreover, my watch, a few trinkets and a little money, taken from me that night in Doyers street, had all been returned through Miss Clement's good offices; and if, thus far, she had afforded us no real clew in our absorbing exigency, I felt that ultimately her knowledge, coupled with her resourcefulness, would prove to us of unbounded value. And, as events shaped themselves, I was not wrong.

It was now nearly four weeks since Cameron's disappearance, and a fear that he had met death in some fiendish form at the hands of his abductors had come to be with me very nearly an obsession. The care I exercised in hiding my real state of mind from Evelyn could not well be exaggerated. When I appeared to her most hopeful I was actually most despairing. With Miss Clement, however, I had no reason to dissemble. With all frankness I told her of my despair; and when, instead of trying to comfort me with empty words of encouragement she agreed with me that the chances of our ever seeing Cameron again were at a minimum, I liked her the better for being straightforward.

"I sometimes feel," I said to her, making full confession, "that we made a terrible mistake in not at once notifying the authorities. Even now I am inclined to lay the matter before them. Anything would be better than uncertainty. A few arrests and the third degree might work wonders."



"Where would you start?" she asked in a blunt, logical way that reminded me of Evelyn's faculty of going to the root of things. "You see, you know so little. The story about the portrait and the mirror, the police would regard as more amusing than convincing. And besides, you haven't any proof. Yup Sing, you tell me, has the only original letter, and by this time he may have lost it or have forgotten that he ever had it. If you had seen as much of the Chinese as I have, you would appreciate how wily they are. My belief is that the police would conclude that Mr. Cameron fell overboard from his yacht and was drowned. Indeed it would be fortunate if they did not take the view that he jumped overboard and committed suicide. Or, worse still, it would not be beyond them, Mr. Clyde, to charge that you pushed him over. The yellow papers would almost certainly intimate such a possibility." Had some one else made this suggestion I should probably have resented it, but I understood Miss Clement. She was as kind as her eyes indicated; and that is speaking very strongly.



"Nevertheless," I said, with growing determination, "I shall make the case public. It is my duty, and I am willing to run all the risks you point out. I shall start by making a complaint against Peter Johnson. We'll have him arrested, get his record, and follow along that trail until we turn up the other conspirators. If poor Cameron's shares fall in the market, they'll have to fall. If the notoriety precipitates a delayed fatality of which Cameron is the victim, it cannot be helped. I simply will not longer shoulder the responsibility of silence."

The way she had of silent deliberation was almost masculine. I can see her, even now, as she sat there that afternoon, her hair the same shade of gray as her cloth gown, her fresh, clear complexion lined in thought, her kindly eyes half closed. For the better part of a minute she pondered. Then, suddenly, her face awoke, and she asked me

That Terrible Fatigue Can Be Overcome

A Simple Home Remedy Now Cures Lack of Energy, Loss of Ambition, and a Feeling of "Don't Care."

Successful in Nearly Every Case.

That miserable nervousness and half-sick tired-all-the-time condition is due nine cases in ten to a clogged-up system. You grow irritable and despondent, you lack ambition, energy seems all gone. Surest road to health is by the frequent use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they will make you feel like new all over in a short time.

Writing from his home in Barcelona, Mr. Frederick G. Mayer states: "I think no one ever suffered as severely as I did for nearly six months. So many serious symptoms were developing as a consequence of this evil condition of my system that I realized I must find a remedy. The strong pills of various kinds I tried seemed after their first effects were over to make me far worse and I did not know which way to turn for relief. I saw Dr. Hamilton's Pills advertised, and the first box used satisfied me. I found a true remedy. Instead of griping with undue activity, Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted as naturally as if physic had not been taken. I never had to increase the dose, and, indeed, within a month I reduced it, and when the system finally acted of its own accord as a result of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took a dose twice a week only, just to make sure the old condition would not come back."

No other remedy cures constipation and billiousness so easily or safely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills: they are an ideal family remedy for all disease of the stomach liver and bowles. Sold in 25c. boxes, five for $1.00, all druggists, and storekeepers or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Old Winter Coughs Now Easily Cured

A New Remedy Now Cures Without the Use of Cough Syrups or Drugs.

Just think of it—you can clear away that hard, racking rough, drive it completely out of the system, make yourself perfectly well by the new breathing cure that employs no medicine at all.

You wonder how; a very simple, indeed; you simply breathe it through a Catarrhozone Inhaler—rich balsamic essences that heal and soothe away the cough in a few hours' time.

In using Catarrhozone you bathe the lining of the nose and throat with that powerful antiseptic of the Blue Gum Tree of Australia, which is probably the surest cold and cough cure in the world to-day.

Clarence E. Cromwell, writing from Medicine Hat, says: "To cure a sneezing cold in about ten minutes, the one thing I know of to do it is Catarrhozone. To relieve an irritated throat quickly, nothing can excel Catarrhozone. It simply eats up a cough or cold of any kind. I know of colds that have hung on for months that Catarrhozone cured quickly. Nearly every man I know carries a Catarrhozone Inhaler with him day and night, and in this country it makes a wonderful protection against all winter ills."

Another Big Lindsay Factory.

Our little neighbor, Lindsay, certainly makes up in enterprise what it is shy on population. The Canadian Lacteal Co. will open there about April 15th. The plant will mean a big thing for the farmers of that vicinity, and in fact of the whole district as far away as they are able to send in their milk by train, for the Canadian Lacteal Company will consume thirty thousand pounds per day, which is equal to twelve thousand quarts of the liquid. They propose that if enough milk can be bought to increase the capacity to three times that amount.

Lindsay Barbers Frightened.

Monday afternoon a Lindsay barber started in relegating surplus accumulation common to the winter months, to the scrap heap. Old papers, a lock of this fellow's hair and a bunch of another's whiskers, were thrown into the stove, which contained a few dying embers. The two artists prepared to lather and shave two customers who had stepped in for their daily facial treatment, when "Zip!" went some explosive in the stove, followed by another and still another. The cannonading was so rapid that both artists shot out the door, followed by the customers. A number of the rifle cartridges, which had been thrown around carelessly in the back premises were the cause of the noise.

EAST WARD CHILD IS BADLY SCALDED

Yesterday morning as Mrs. Pullyplank was preparing to scrub the floor of her residence in Burnham street, East City, a terrible accident happened. Mrs. Pullyplank had a pail of boiling water on the floor. Her attention was momentarily distracted and her baby child got at the receptacle. Its agonizing cries, in an instant, brought the mother back. In the meantime the child had most severely scalded its body and arms. A doctor was at once summoned and did all that medical skill could for the little sufferer. At a late hour last night, we heard that the child was doing as well as could be expected.

LOCAL MAN WAS THROUOH THE FLOODS

Mr. W. Rudkins, of this city, Lindsay's Industrial Commissioner, has returned from Pittsburg, Pa., where he cinched another factory for Scugogville. In conversation with The Times, Mr. Rudkins noted that he was through the floods caused by overflow of the Alleghany River. Several times he had to change cars where the road bed was washed away, and walked over ties held in mid-air by the rails and spikes. He saw, in many places barns washed from their foundations, floating about in the flood. Hundreds of pigs, sheep, cattle and poultry drowned by the overrow, were also passed.

LOCAL JAIL FREED OF INSANE INMATES

For the first time in years the local jail is almost empty of insane patients. This is, incidentally a move towards common sense and decent style of humanity. On Tuesday two out of the three people incarcerated as insane were removed. One man was taken to Toronto, whilst another man named Nugent was taken care of by his wife here.

One little old lady, by name Mrs. Drury, is still in the jail. The woman in question who is hardly big enough to do harm to anyone even though violent, and who is between 70 and 80 years of age was an inmate of the Protestant Home. It seems that she became a nuisance through talking loudly to herself and was committed to jail. It is understood that arrangements will possibly be made to have her sent to the county House of Refuge.

SING THE MARSEILLAISE AS SENTENCE IS PRONOUNCED

Militants Cry "Shame!" as Mrs. Pankhurst Receives Three Years' Hard Labor--Police Unable To Check Protests

London, April 4.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, militant suffragette leader, yesterday afternoon was found guilty of "inciting to malicious destruction of property," by a jury at Old Bailey, London's famous central criminal court.

Mrs. Pankhurst was sentenced to three years penal servitude. When Justice Lush pronounced her sentence he was greeted with hisses and boos by the women in the court room, despite the efforts of policemen to keep them quiet.

"Shame!" cried some of the militants.

The jurors in returning their verdict, of guilty, unanimously begged the magistrate to show mercy to the convicted woman.

When Mrs. Pankhurst realized that she had been sentenced to prison for three years of hard labor, her face blanched, those nearest her thought, but she made no comment.

The maximum penalty for the crime of which she was convicted is fourteen years imprisonment. The jury deliberated only a few minutes.

Militants Sing "Marseillaise."

When the judge pronounced the heavy sentence of three years, the women rose in angry protest. As Mrs. Pankhurst stood in the prisoner's enclosure, her sympathizers cheered wildly, and then filed out of the court singing "March on, March on," to the tune of the "Marseillaise."

Self-confessed instigator of the recent suffragette "reign of terror," Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst again appeared to-day at Old Bailey, London's historical central criminal court.

Wearing the same black gown and hat that she had on yesterday, Mrs. Pankhurst conducted the cross-examination and she questioned each witness closely.

Facing the jurors without emotion but with earnestness in every word, Mrs. Pankhurst told them she would call no witnesses, and then proceeded to tell the men why it was that she pleaded guilty and asked acquittal, even while admitting full responsibility for the Walton Heath bomb explosion.

"No woman in England is ever tried by a jury of her piers, as is her right," she said. "Trials such as this to-day are examples of what they are suffering to obtain their rights.

"I pleaded not guilty because I am not wicked and not malicious, though I accept full responsibility for the Lloyd George explosion."

"Man-Made" Laws Unjust.

Mrs. Pankhurst then proceeded to catalogue all the "man-made" laws of England. They included almost every law of importance in the English code.

"The divorce law alone," she said, "is sufficient to justify a revolution by the women."

MCLEOD IS AGAINST BRITISH SYSTEM OF BANK AUDITS

Former Nova Scotian Tells Federal Committee They Send Out Clerks---Still Urges Board Named By Managers

Ottawa, April 4.—When the Banking and Commerce Committee resumed yesterday morning, H. C. McLeod, formerly of the Bank of Nova Scotia, was still on the stand, and again strongly advocated a system of bank inspection, favoring a board elected by the general managers of all the banks.

Hon. W. T. White, cross-examined him at length. Mr. McLeod said there were many forms of inspection he was not necessarily in favor of Government Inspection, but the inspection should be efficient.

Holds Strong Views, He Says.

"In United States the Clearing House Association have inaugurated a system of bank inspection?" asked Mr. White.

"Yes, in several cities it is very complete. I understand the Bankers' Association had a plan for inspection," said Mr. McLeod.

"You, I understand, do not think this would be advisable?"

"It would be very inadvisable," replied Mr. McLeod. "I hold very strong views on this subject."

Continuing, Mr. McLeod said that he had adopted for the Bank of Nova Scotia a system of external audit modelled on the Scotch system.

"Could the auditors," asked Mr. White, "inspect all the branches?"

"No," he replied. "It was not necessary or possible. They inspected the head office and principal offices."

U.S. Appointments Political.

"Would the system you established in the Bank of Nova Scotia be sufficient?" asked Mr. White.

"It would be an improvement, but it would not be as valuable as a system of bank inspection by a board of the general managers."

"I am inclined to agree with you," said Mr. White. Mr. McLeod was asked to explain the American system. Mr. McLeod said the system of bank inspection in the United States was very incomplete. There was a smaller number of inspectors and the banks were very numerous.

The appointments in the United States were largely political.

LIBERALS IF RE-ELECTED WOULD HAVE HAD CLOSURE

Hon. Sydney Fisher Repeatedly Stated That Liberals, Returned, Would Alter Rules of House

Ottawa, April 3.—Premier Borden has announced that the Parliamentary anarchy with has recently existed by which the Opposition has succeeded in holding up the business of the country for several weeks through sheer physical endurance must cease and that the King's business must proceed. He has served notice that if the Liberal blockade of the naval business or government legislation continues the Government will move a change in the rules of the house which will facilitate business. Both Great Britain, Mother of Parliaments,—and the American Congress have strict closure rules; similar incidents to what have occurred in the Canadian house forced the United Kingdom and the United States to bring in closure.

Liberals Intended Closure.

The announcement of the Premier can hardly be said to have been received with enthusiasm by the Liberals and Sir Wilfrid Laurier has come out with a declaration that the late Government persistently declined to make any changes in the rules. However, from statements made by Sir Wilfrid's followers it is very evident that the Liberals if elected in 1911 would have immediately introduced closure.

What Fisher Said.

Hon. Sidney Fisher speaking as a member of the late Government made the following announcements on three different occasions. On August 1st, 1911 at Waterloo, he said:

"If we are returned to power we will pass reciprocity and we will also pass a measure changing the rules so that the business of the country may go briskly forward without obstruction. It is only right that it should be so. Full investigation we believe in but empty obstruction is a drag on the country."

Also At Magog.

Speaking at Magog on August 19th, 1911, Mr. Fisher said:

"So long as a small minority or any group can take up the time of Parliament in order to hear themselves talk it is impossible to avoid waste of time, and I GIVE MY PLEDGE that, if the Laurier Government is returned again, the rules of the House will be changed. I consider present conditions inimical to the proper conduct of public business."

And At Knowlton.

On August 21st, 1910, at Knowlton, he said:

"IT WAS THE INTENTION OF THE GOVERNMENT, should it be returned, to so change the rules of the House that such obstruction would in future be impossible."

Unless Mr. Fisher is absolutely unworthy of credit the late Government regarded an amendment to the rules as absolutely necessary. Similar strong statements were made by both Hon. H. K. Emmerson and Hon. William Patterson.

THREE WIVES ARE TOO MANY FOR A REAL GOOD MAN

Stylish Tailor is Sentenced to Jail as an Undesirable Citizen---Will Be Deported After Forty Days

Toronto, April 3.—Having thrice launched his bark on the matrimonial sea, Fred Gorgoni is encountering squalls. The sprure-looking New York tailor, who is said to be wanted in Newton, Mass., on a charge of bigamy, faced Magistrate Denison in the police court this morning charged with vagrancy.

The prisoner, well-dressed and exceptionally smart in appearance, heard with the utmost non-chalance two of the women he married relate the experiences of their wedded life to a crowded court. At times he interjected vigorous contradictions, when their testimony did not coincide with his opinions. He insisted on giving his own evidence, and flatly contradicted wife No. 2 when she stated that they had been wed in Boston some six years ago.

Denies the Children.

He denied this impeachment and also denied the parentage of the three children born to the woman during the time he is alleged to have lived with her. Wife No. 3, to whom the man was married only a few weeks ago, and who accompanied him to Toronto, was also an interested spectator in court, though she was not called upon by either the Crown or the defence to testify. At the conclusion of the proceedings, when the magistrate announced his intention of committing the accused to jail for forty days and of ordering his deportation, she broke down and wept bitterly. Later she was told she would have to leave for her home in the United States, and that a police officer would place her on a train.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Showery with local thunderstorms.

OTONABEE CLAIMS ANOTHER VICTIM

Mr. J. W. Helliwell Drowned and His Watch Still Running Yesterday Afternoon.

Little did Mr. J. W. Helliwell, a weaver at the Brinton Carpet Works, think as he stepped off the 10. 3 car Wednesday night, at the southern terminus of the road, that he was within a few steps from eternity. Mr. Helliwell was on his way home at a boarding house on McKellar street. The street at this point is very narrow, particularly so at this season when the water is high. On the south side is crib work and the road is 10 feet of water, with a strong current running. He evidently, in the darkness walked into the water.

Mr. Geo. Evans, who was on his way home, heard his cries and ran back to Mr. Holmes' house. He and Detective Newhall, who boards at Holmes' came to the rescue and they found Mr. J. B. Rye who had also heard his cries, there with a skiff, holding Helliwell's head above water. Newhall and Evans got a canoe and the three men brought Helliwell to land. They carried him to Holmes' residence, but he passed away just as they brought him into the house. They worked over an hour trying to resuscitate him, but it was all of no avail.

After being rescued, Mr. Helliwell recognized Mr. Newhall and called him by name. The shock of the cold water, however, seemed to have been too severe. A peculiar incident attaching to the catastrophe is that the watch worn by the deceased during his immersion was still running at 4 p.m. yesterday. The watch is only of a cheap make and not waterproof.

The late Mr. Helliwell was born in Halifax, England. He came here a short time ago and has since been employed in the Brinton Carpet Co.

He was not married, but has a brother and sister in Hamilton who have been communicated with.

RESUME NAVY TALK MAJORITY TO RULE

Liberals Never Intended to Bring On An Election Recent Attitude Shows.

Ottawa, April 3.—With estimates voted sufficient to carry on the Government for two months, incidentally indicating that the Opposition, despite all their talk, had no real intention of forcing the Government to the country, the Government will to-day again proceed with the Naval bill, provided the Japanese Treaty bill is concluded. It is now in a position to force the issue to a conclusion, and with no need to worry about supply, can assert with determination the right of the majority to rule.

The situation from the Opposition point of view may be summed up in the words of a member of the party speaking privately to-day—"I do not believe we can get an election. I do not believe the country wants one. I do not believe we will win if we do get an election. And I do not see much use in wasting our time to a much further extent."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier will speak to-day, dealing especially with the effort to get his amendment reinstated for discussion. The debate on the point of order at issue will probably take up most of the day. Prior to resuming the debate on the navy it is understood that the West Indian treaty will come up for third reading and will go through with but little further discussion.

HORSE FOOLED BY MIRROR

Sees Hurdle Reflected and Tries to Jump Over It.

Junction City, Kan., April 3.—A valuable riding horse in the mounted service school at Fort Riley was injured severely in an exhibition in the riding hall, when he saw a reflection of a hurdle in one of the huge wall mirrors that line the hall and tried to jump it.

He crashed through the glass and was badly gashed. Lieut. Moore, the rider escaped injury.

NOT IN LOVE WITH NEW LAW FOR LIGHTS ON VEHICLES

Some of the Large Concerns Claim That It Will Subject Them to Considerable Inconvenience and Annoyance In Their Business

Toronto, April 3.—The drastic measures of the Bills to amend the Motor Vehicles Act, which were carried in the Municipal Committee of the Legislature yesterday, will entail, according to the view of taxi-cab companies and the large firms which carry goods at night, inconvenience and annoyance. While the former companies will be handicapped by the examination of all chauffeurs by members of an official league and greater precautions must be henceforth taken to keep the number on the back of the car free from mud the effect upon the companies who deliver goods by night will be most severe, as all vehicles must carry lights visible from front and rear.

Much Inconvenience.

As an instance of the dissatisfaction Mr. Mowry of the City Dairy expressed surprise at the legislation and said that it would certainly cause much inconvenience. "The majority of our wagons," he said, "have lights inside, but only those engaged in suburban delivery have outside lights. These are reflecting lights on the front. We shall have to change everything in winter from one day to another, as the lights will be different for the sleighs and good snow does not last for many consecutive days. A proper equipment for both sleighs and wagons will be required.

"The licensing of chauffeurs, who drive cars for hire or gain, even in the case of private drivers and their preliminar examination by two members of the Ontario Motor League will put the latter in a quasi-officials position, according to Mr. Robertson, secretary of the League. "We did not favor," he said, "the licensing of every driver as we thought it would not have the desired effect, namely the elimination of careless drivers. Any one can get a license. He can be prevented of course, from driving again, but by that time the harm is done."

Moved by Mr. Kenner, seconded by Mr. Mowat, that communication be received and that the association be granted the use of the Board room.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Ritchie, seconded by Mr. Kenner, that a Childrens' hour be established in connection with the Library and that the matter be left in the hands of Mr. Mowat and the Librarian, with power to act.—Carried.

The report of the Finance Committee recommending payment of a number of accounts was read and adopted.

Moved by Mr. Mowat, seconded by Mr. Kenner, that use of the Assembly Hall be granted to Mr. Allen in which to hold musical recital. Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

FOX TERRIER SAVED HIS LITTLE MASTER FROM DEATH

Spot Dived Into the Don and Held Two-Year-Old Child Up Until Workman Rescued Him

Toronto, April 3.—A long-legged, rangy, year-old fox terrier was the hero in a rescue from drowning in the Don near the Sheet Metal Works yesterday. "Spot," is the property of little two year old Joe Milligan, and was gambolling round his youthful master as he played with a companion on the river bank, just under the Gerrard street bridge. The children approached too near the water and young Milligan fell in, clad in a heavy fur coat, he was in imminent danger of drowning, but his canine protector plunged boldly in, and seizing him by the collar, made for the shore. They had almost reached the bank when a workman, hurrying down from the bridge above, plunged in and with two or three vigorous strokes completed the rescue. Dr. Hargreaves was summoned but his services was not required.

The child is suffering no ill-effects and the dog, dry and sleek, has apparently forgotten the occurrence, like a real hero should.

Y.M.C.A. GYM. JUNIORS GIVES ENTERTAINMENT

Last night a charming entertainment was held in the gymnasium of the Y.W.C.A. The event was a small folks concert, given by members of the gym juniors. The evening opened with a selection by the Conservatory Childrens' Orchestra. The opening chorus was well rendered. Readings were given by Miss Gladys Jay and Miss Rigetta Lewis. The Parasol Song and drill were admirably executed, as was the Folk Drill. Miss Mildred Morphet gave a well rendered song. A clever dialogue was given by the Misses Nannie Mills and Rigetta Lewis. The Calisthenic drill was most interesting.

The clever play, entitled "Reggie's Presence of Mind," was given with the following cast:

Peggy—Gladys Jay.

Calvin—Her brother, Uzel Waterman.

Mercy—Her sister, Helen Morphet.

Mrs. Ray—Their mother, Helen Waterman.

Mr. Ray—Their father, Freddy Morrison.

Broken Bow An Indian Chief Fleetwood Cubit.

Dolly Ray—Nannie Mills.

CYCLICAL INSANITY

Toronto, April 3.—That Alexander Brown was not responsible for his actions at two periods of the year, the spring and the fall, and that he was a victim of cyclical insanity was the finding of Chief Coroner Johnston, who, after a conference with his friends, decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Brown was the man found floating in the Bay by Capt. Gillen, of the Clark Bros. Tuesday afternoon.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 366 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is apparent now that 1913 has started out to make a record for itself as a year of great disasters.

We did not know that music was a good hair tonic until a statistician showed that only 2 per cent of professional musicians are bald, against 16 per cent of men in other pursuits.

Switzerland is about to establish the largest national park in Europe. It is in the canton of Grisons and has an area of nearly eighty square miles.

As an additional safeguard against icebergs, one transatlantic passenger steamer is carrying a 72,000 candle power searchlight, with an effective range of five miles.

The historian will speak of the war just closing as the one which marked the last of the Turk in Europe. To us the lesson of the war is its blighting effect on commerce. It showed too that the great nations are not at all desirous of engaging in a great war. A contest between great powers would pretty nearly bankrupt the world.

TO LIMIT NAVAL CONSTRUCTION.

Chicago Tribune:—"So long as Great Britain can and will outbuild other nations in naval maintenance, the suggestions of the British Government to limit construction by international agreement will be reasonable and wise. Germany's formal reply always is that the German Navy is not being developed to challenge the British, but merely to meet the need of the German Empire, and Great Britain, formally accepting this explanation as satisfactory, increases the number of battleships on her programme."

BORDEN HAS MANDATE.

The Liberals declare that the Conservatives have no mandate from the people to back them up as regards their present Naval Policy. Such is not the case. Mr. Borden has a direct mandate from the Canadian people to do just what he is attempting and determined to do. In his manifesto issued on August 14, 1911, prior to the last general election, Mr. Borden made the emphatic declaration that if he was elected Premier of Canada he would go to Britain and inquire into the conditions and if convinced there was a need for assistance he would come back and ask Parliament for a money vote to meet that need. In so far as a permanent naval policy was concerned, he declared at the same time that when it would be formulated he would lay it before the people of Canada and give them an opportunity to express their views at the polls. In view of these facts Mr. Borden's present course is entirely consistent.

WHERE CAN WE BEST BUILD OUR SHIPS.

Ask the C.P.R., that great and on the whole, patriotic Canadian Corporation where they built their Empresses? In Great Britain, of course.

Ask the Canadian Northern where they go for their Atlantic liners when they want them and want them quick—Great Britain is the unhesitating answer.

Ask the present Opposition where they, when in power, built the most if not all of their fishery patrol and icebreaking craft small, though they are—Great Britain again. And yet when we would contribute ships for the purpose of immediately increasing the effective naval forces of the Empire, a proposition accepted by the Opposition and made part of the amendments for which they have voted, we are asked to tie a string to the gift and to put the biggest kind of brakes on the "Immediately" by postponing the ships till we can build them in Canada.

SLAVERY DAYS.

Published by Request.

I am thinking now to-day
Of those years that passed away,
When they tied me down in bondage long ago,
In old Virginia State,
It was there we separate
And it filled my heart with misery and woe.

They took away my boy,
He was his mother's joy,
From a baby in the cradle we'd him raised,
And they put us far apart,
Which did break this old man's heart
In those agonizing, cruel, slavery hays.

They'll never come again
Let us give our praise to Him
Who looks down where the little children play;
It's every night and morn
We will pray for those that's gone
In those agonizing, cruel, slavery days.

Still my memory will steal o'er
To that dear old cabin floor,
Where the shadow of the sun came peeping in,
At night when all was dark
We could hear the watch dog bark,
And would listen to the murmur of the wind.

It seems to say to me,
"You people will be free."
For a happy time was coming, Lord be praised;
We would weep and we would moan,
For our souls were not our own,
In those agonizing, cruel, slavery days.

I am very old and feeble,
And my life is nearly passed,
I have traveled through the roughest kind of road;
Through sickness, toil and sorrow,
I have reached the end at last,
And am waiting by the roadside with my load.

Forget now and forgive has always been my guide,
For that's surely what the olden Scripture says,
Still my memory will turn round
When our souls they were bound down.
In those agonizing, cruel, slavery days.

FALLEN UPON EVIL WAYS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Liberals in the House of Commons having decided that Laurier has lost his grip as a leader, and has sacrificed public confidence on the altar of political expediency, are now crying out for a new Moses to lead them to the Promised Land of Power. Hon. William Pugsley and George P. Graham are struggling for the dubious honor of leading a defeated party, with Rodolphe Lemieux hanging to their coat tails. The Liberal party has surely fallen upon evil days, and hard times. Pugsley, the "sawdust wharf" expert, George Graham, with his well-known ideas concerning the printing of "bogus ballots," and Rodolphe Lemieux, with the civil service loaded down with his relatives. It is pretty hard to find a real, live, up-to-date Moses among that little lot.

BIG SANITARIUM AND HOTEL FOR LILLOOET, B. C.

Dr. Jones, of Victoria, is building an up-to-date Sanitarium and summer hotel at Lillooet, costing fifty thousand dollars. It is the intention of the doctor to install a mill for preparin his own lumber, and the scheme includes the erection of twelve or more cottages and the beautifying of ten or fifteen acres of land. Lillooet is an ideal place for those seeking a change of climate, and is destined to become one of the foremost health resorts of Canada in the near future. The elevation is 700 feet above sea level, and the air bracing with bright days and lots of sunshine. The scenery is a revelation and generally considered to surpass the Alps of Switzerland. The hunting and fishing cannot be equalled anywhere in Canada, and tourists from all over the world will soon be going to Lillooet instead of to California. Upon the completion of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, Lillooet will only be five hours run from Vancouver, the metropolis of the West coast.

BAN ON BIG TRUNKS

Baggagemen Wearied of Handling Them as Big as Small Cottages

Railway baggage agents in Canada and the United States have decided that the long trunk must be banned as far as possible from the baggage car. The Canadian agents have received the sanction of the Dominion Railway Commission to place discriminatory charges on all trunks more than forty-five inches long, and they are waiting for the conceding of permission to the railways of the Republic to do likewise by the United States Railway Commission before putting the new regulations in force in Canada.

For a long time the baggagemen groaned at the constant encroachments of a part of the travelling public in the size of baggage, and consequently on the available space in the baggage car. Their patience became exhausted with the introduction into use of the huge wardrobe trunk.

CURES RHEUMATISM

Quickly Eases Stiff, Sore, Swollen Joints and Muscels — Drives Rheumatic Pains Away.

It is needless to suffer any longer with rheumatism and be all crippled up, and bent out of shape with its heart-renching pains, when you can easily avoid it.

Rheumatism comes from weak, inactive kidneys that fail to filter from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid; and it is useless to rub on liniments or take ordinary remedies to relieve the pain. This only prolongs the misery and can't possibly cure you.

The only way to cure rheumatism is to remove the cause. The new discovery, Croxone, does this because it neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous substances and uric acid that lodges in joints and muscles, to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism, and cleans out and strengthens the stopped-up, inactive kidneys, so they can filter the poison from the blood, and drive it on and out of the system.

Croxone is the most wonderful medicine ever made for curing chronic rheumatism, kidney trouble and bladder disorders. You will find it different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It matters not how old you are, or how long you have suffered, it is practically impossible to take it into the system without results. You will find relief from the first few doses, and you will be surprised how quickly all the misery and suffering will end.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle at any first-class drug store. All druggists are authorized to sell it on a positive money back guarantee. Three dozes a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to cure the worst backache or overcome ordinary urinary disorders.

LILLOOET, B.C.

Newport News March 7th

Not since Placer Mining days in the sixties has the town of LILLOOET enjoyed such a revival as it is experiencing at present.

The early advent of railway facilities has given the place a new lease of life and scores of people hunting business locations or seeking land and other investments are pouring in.

The population of the town has more than doubled within the last two months. It is expected that Lillooet will have a population of 10,000 people within the next three years. It is in the centre of a fine agricultural and fruit-growing country and a large tributary mining country.

Your Opportunity!

There is just as much money to be made in LILLOOET, B. C., to-day as was produced by the famous Placer Mines in the sixties. This time the money will be made in real estate. It does not mean long hours and hard work to the fortunate ones. You do not even have to take a chance. It is an absolutely sure thing that a little money invested now will bring big profits in the near future. Property is rising in value rapidly, and it will soon be too late for the small investor. We still have a few choice residential lots left, also about twenty of the finest business locations right in the heart of the town. These are all sure money makers and will treble in value inside of the next two years. It costs you nothing to investigate. Write us to-day for descriptive literature.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 65-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$27,800—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 200,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public. Preston, Limited, had 50,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

Bulldog Assists in Theft

Found guilty at Dublin of stealing eighteen shirts, the property of Peter Lennox, John Duggan, a convict on parole, was sentenced to twelve months with hard labor, James Heming to ten months, and Bridget Fottrell to six months. The trio, it was stated, entered the shop, and while the men were examining some goods the woman made off with the shirts. In the chase after her, one of the men, who had a bulldog on a chain contrived always to have the dog in the way of those who were trying to capture her.

WHY THEY DID NOT RETURN

Little Story Lacked Pathos Promised by the Altogether Gruesome Introduction.

"Talking about omens," said the ex-Canadian soldier, "a queer thing happened in the Boer war.

"A troop of mounted rifles were returning after a hard day's scouting to our camp near Middleburg, in the eastern part of the Transvaal. On our way back we had to pass the town cemetery, which was on the side of a hill. Near the gate of the cemetery stood a shed in which was kept the town hearse.

"The doors of this building were open as we were riding past, and in some manner he blocks which were usually kept under the wheels of the hearse must have become dislodged, for the hearse slowly moved out of the shed and rolled down the hill into the middle of our party, who scattered in all directions.

"The officer in charge of the troop ordered four men to dismount and take the hearse back. Now comes the queer part. Soon after this we went to Cape Town and took ship for home. Every man of that scouting party returned alive and well to Canada except the four men who handled that hearse. Not a man of that four returned."

The former warrior paused and heaved a sigh.

"Good men, true comrades they were," said he.

"Have another drink," said the bar tender, "and tell us how the poor fellows died."

Silently the soldier drank to the memory of his comrades, set down the empty glass and edged toward the door.

"The reason they did not come back was because two of them got good jobs in Cape Town; the other two married Boer widows and settled down on farms," he said.

The Care of the Teeth

Great care must be taken of the first teeth, even though they are temporary, for the better they are kept the longer they will last and the stronger will be the second set that follows them. The teeth, as soon as they are through, should be brushed each day with a soft brush, one in which the bristles will not come out. Every day the baby's mouth should be washed out, with a soft cloth or a bit of absorbent cotton, dipped in boiled water, or boracic acid solution. Most devices for "making teething easy" are useless, although the baby may be permitted to bite upon something hard, provided it is kept clean. If the child is unusually fretful, it is best to see a doctor. The trouble may be due to some other cause than teething.

Creamed Carrots

Use three good sized carrots for four persons. Scrape and pare them and cut in small pieces. Put a teaspoonful of rendered beef suet in a pot, add a little onion juice, put in carrots, let them cook for a few minutes, but not brown, pour in boiling water to cover, season with a half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and one teaspoonful of sugar. Let the carrots boil rather slowly for an hour. If the water boils low add a little boiling water to replenish. When carrots are done thicken the liquid about them with one and a half teaspoonfuls of flour mixed carefully with three-fourths of a cup of milk. Pour this in with carrots and liquid and stir carefully or drain the carrots and cook a few minutes in white sauce. The liquor about them may be used in a meat or vegetable soup.

FEMALE PIRATES OF OLDEN DAYS

Two Englishwoman Led Adventurous Lives on the Sea And Finally Died on the Scaffold

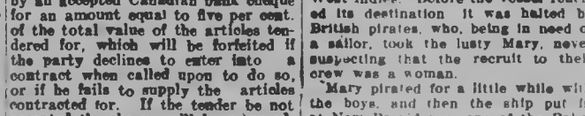
Long before ever the suffrage was an issue in England, in a time when women for the most part spent their lives by their own hearthstones, there flourished two women pirates British born. Real buccaneers they were, who swaggered and swore right lustily and sailed the Spanish Main and did all the other things well regulated pirates were in the habit of doing. Their names were Mary Read and Anne Bonny, and their records are still to be read in certain ancient British court records.

Mary was one of those strange women who have gone through life dressed as men. She kept her secret from all except a very few. Before she was 18 she enlisted as a sailor in the British navy, and a history of pirates published in London in 1724 by Capt. Charles Johnson tells all about her. She did well enough as a sailor, then enlisted in the army and went with a British regiment to Flanders, where she fought through a number of campaigns and was distinguished for reckless bravery and helped keep up the reputation for profanity which goes with soldiers in Flanders. She called herself Frank Read, and apparently no one suspected that she was a girl.

But, being a woman, she could not refrain from falling in love, and finally was married to a fellow soldier of whom she had grown very fond. Then they both left the army, bought a little inn in Flanders and settled down to housekeeping.

Mary's husband died in a year or two, and she went back to her wild, masculine life, shipping as a sailor on a Dutch merchantman bound for the West Indies. Before the vessel reached its destination it was halted by British pirates, who, being in need of a sailor, took the lusty Mary, never suspecting that the recruit to their crew was a woman.

Mary pirated for a little while with the boys, and then the ship put in at New Providence, one of the Bahama Islands, and took advantage of a general pardon offered to every British pirate except Captain Kidd and Captain Avery. They all promised to be good, the crew disbanded, and there was Mary out of a job again.



Now, the British Governor of New Providence was fitting out a privateersman at that time to harry Spanish commerce. Mary became a member of the crew of this British privateersman, and, incidentally, it was a very rough crew she joined. One member of it was a pirate named Rackam. Another was his wife, Anne Bonny, a buxom wench, who, like Mary, was disguised as a man. The rough and ready Anne Bonny fell in love with Mary, who, she fancied, was a man. Of course, Mary had to explain, and then Anne explained, and they grew very chummy.

The bold Rackam couldn't bear the thought of being a subordinate and dividing up the spoils of war with the Government, so he led a mutiny, soon tossed the officers of the ship overboard and moved his belongings up to the captain's cabin.

They went plundering merrily over the Southern seas, although they do not seem to have been as bad as some members of the profession. Generally the crew of a merchant ship was allowed to go its way after everything of value had been carried off. Necessarily men were killed occasionally, but wholesale plank-walking was not a feature of this cruise.

Eventually the pirate ship was overtaken by a British frigate. A short fight followed, the pirates serving their stubby cannon until a storm of grapeshot drove them from the deck. Everyone rushed to the hold except Mary Read and the redoubtable Anne Bonny, who continued to load and fire the cannon. Anne in rage rushed to the companionway of the ship and roared down to the men below to come up and fight, and when they refused jerked a great pistol from her belt and fired into the huddling, cursing mass, killing one and wounding several others. But it was of no avail, and in a little while the crew of the man-of-war came tumbling and cheering over the side of the pirate ship and overwhelmed the cowering defenders.

All the pirates, including Anne and Mary, were put in irons and carried back to England where they were tried and hanged.

NAVAL ENTHUSIASM

More Than Enough Australians Offering to Serve on Ships

No difficulty, except that brought about by the number of applicants in excess of the accommodation, was experienced by the Australian Naval authorities in their recruiting operations. It was found necessary to call a halt, as the cruiser Encounter and the training depots were provided with their full complement of recruits. The naval officers were pleased that their predictions that Australians would take to the sea as readily as the young men of Great Britain were fulfilled.

For an examination of Naval College applicants there were 24 vacancies. Victoria alone, which was allotted 7 of them, produced 70 candidates and it was stated by the naval authorities that they could obtain in that State sufficient boys of excellent type to fill a college roll.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the head of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X.—Johnson is allowed to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature, who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

CHAPTER XI.—Clyde seeks assistance from a Chinese fellow college student, who recommends him to Yup Sing, most prominent Chinaman in New York. The latter promises to seek information of Cameron among his countrymen.

CHAPTER XII.—Among Cameron's letters is found one from one Addison, who speaks of seeing Cameron in Pekin. Cameron had frequently declared to Clyde that he had never been in China.

CHAPTER XIII.—Clyde calls on Dr. Addison. He learns that Addison and Cameron were at one time intimate friends, but had a falling out over Cameron's denial of having been seen in Pekin by Addison.

CHAPTER XIV.—Clyde goes to meet Yup Sing, sees Johnson, attempts to follow him, falls into a basement, sprains his ankle and becomes unconscious.

CHAPTER XV.—Clyde is found by Miss Clement, a missionary among the Chinese. He is sick several days as a result of inhaling charcoal fumes. Evelyn tells Clyde of a peculiarly acting anesthetic which renders a person temporarily unconscious. Murphy is discovered to have mysterious relations with the Chinese.

"Will you wait three days longer? That is all. I have channels of information that are closed to the police, even. There are men in Chinatown, and women too, who would lay down their lives for me. I think some of them would even betray their friends, which is still a greater sacrifice. Wait three days, Mr. Clyde, and if at the end of that time I have not learned for you what you want to know, go on with your publicity idea."

It was now my turn to be thoughtful. Evelyn believed in the woman's ability to aid. She had said as much to me. And I myself possessed a certain degree of faith in feminine intuition. Aside from that, though, Miss Clement had demonstrated that she wielded a certain power in her bailiwick—was not my watch, at that moment, in my pocket?—and her whole personality proclaimed inherent capacity for accomplishment.

"Very well, Miss Clement," I agreed. "I will wait three days. It is now Saturday, November 14. If by this time Tuesday afternoon we are not, at least, on the track of something tangible, I shall be on my way to Mulberry street."

Sunday was with me a day of impatience. I fretted now at confinement, for my ankle was quite strong again, and I was perfectly well in other respects, too. But my physician had set Monday for my first day out, and he refused to concede even a twenty-four-hour change of plan. But I chafed more even at the inactivity to which I had agreed concerning Cameron than at the confinement. All at once, I had become imbued with a necessity for prompt and strenuous measures. Some awful thing, I knew not what, seemed ominously imminent, and remorse tore at me tormentingly.

Early Monday, I telephoned Miss Clement for tidings of her progress, but she could only implore me to wait. She had nothing to report, but she was encouraged. With my hands thus tied diversion was my only refuge, and an accumulation of office work into which I plunged served, in part at least, this purpose.

Evelyn and Mrs. Lancaster had come in from Greenwich and opened the Cameron town house, a great white granite Renaissance affair, on Upper Fifth avenue, facing the park; and because the girl had made me promise, I lunched there; but I went with less grace than ever before, uncertain as I was of my self-control. Evelyn's faith in Miss Clement, however, was contagious. She spoke of little else, and when I came away it was with strengthened hope of speedy results.

It is my habit to glance over the earlier editions of all the evening papers before leaving my office, and later, either on the train to Greenwich or, when in town, at my club, to read more carefully the later issues of the News and Star. On this particular day, however, a succession of matters of more importance prevented my looking at so much as a headline, until, seated at dinner, in the club restaurant, I saw on a window ledge beside me one of the more sensational of the afternoon dailies, and appropriated it in lieu of better companionship.

It was one of those journals which, in catering to the tastes of the proletariat, conceive it wise to minimize their references to Wall street, save only when a marked slump or a panic points the moral of the unscrupulous capitalist and his heinous crimes. When, therefore, long, bold-face type attracted my eye with the announcement, "Fall in Crystal Consolidated," I started to read the subjoined article, confident enough that some director or directors had been spitted for barbecue. And before I had read five lines I came upon the name of Robert Cameron.

If I was to believe this introductory paragraph, my friend was to Crystal Consolidated what John D. Rockefeller was to Standard Oil, yet in the months of our intimacy he had made no reference to this connection; and, though I was thoroughly familiar with the "great glass trust," as it was called, and with the name of its multimillionaire master, strangely enough I had never connected the Cameron I knew with this Cameron, the Captain of Industry.

"I am," he had said, in all modesty, "largely interested in a certain line of industrial enterprises." That was all. I suppose I should have known; and yet, "no prophet is without honor, save in his own country."

The newspaper article I now read, however, left no room for doubt on the subject; and, incidentally in a single sentence, revealed the secret of how Cameron had succeeded in escaping that general recognition which is usually the penalty of greatness. "He has never sat for a photograph."

But, while this part of the article interested, that which followed startled and perplexed me:

"Crystal Consolidated fell to 103 today," it went on, "because of a persistent rumor that Robert Cameron is seriously ill, in a New England sanitarium. The greatest secrecy has been maintained as to his malady and his whereabouts by those who are in a position to know. It has been ascertained, however, that after spending a quiet summer at his country place, Craghelt, on Long Island sound, near Greenwich, he started on October 21, on his fast steam yacht Sibylla for a cruise along the New England coast. Ten days later the Sibylla returned, but Mr. Cameron was not on board.

"It is known that he has been in ill health for months, and there are those who now declare that he has sought the seclusion of an institution for the treatment of nervous diseases, near Boston, his condition being critical.

"Inquiry, today, at his Fifth avenue home in this city, and at his Connecticut country seat, was fruitless. Mr. Cameron was at neither place, and the servants expressed ignorance concerning his present address.

"At the offices of the Crystal Consolidated Manufacturing company and at those of the missing financier's brokers, Hatch & Hastings, evasion was the keynote of the answers to all questions.

"Whether Mr. Cameron is as ill as is reported, or whether he is quite robust, the effect of the gossip on Crystal Consolidated was disastrous. A slump of fifteen points in two hours, this afternoon, wiped out many weakly margined accounts, and spread ruin among a number of speculators who fondly imagined this law-defying trust, of which Cameron is the supporting Atlas, as firmly intrenched as is the government itself.

"Unless something definite is forthcoming regarding Mr. Cameron's condition before the market opens tomorrow, a panic in Crystal Consolidated is predicted. It closed today at 102¾ bid, 103 asked; the lowest figures recorded this year."

It startled me, because it showed that at least a part of the secret we were guarding was a secret no longer; and it perplexed me because I could not fancy through what channel these somewhat distorted facts had filtered into publicity. I had no doubt that the ball, having been set rolling in this fashion, would gain both in volume and momentum unless some energetic measures were promptly taken to check it. And yet, what, under the circumstances, could we do? Subterfuge, I knew, would be useless, and the truth must prove an accelerant.

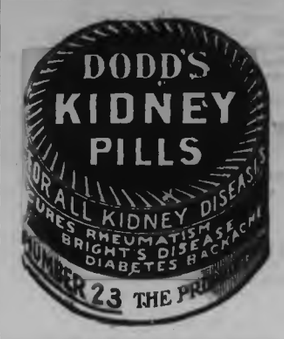
In haste and with diminished appetite I rushed through my dinner, and a moment later was speeding up the avenue as fast as a taxicab could carry me, with the Cameron mansion my destination and a consultation with Evelyn Grayson my object.

It must not be imagined that in this matter I expected any weighty assistance from a young woman of such limited experience; but she was practically alone in the great house and I could well imagine how already reporters must be vying one with another to wring from her admissions concerning her uncle.

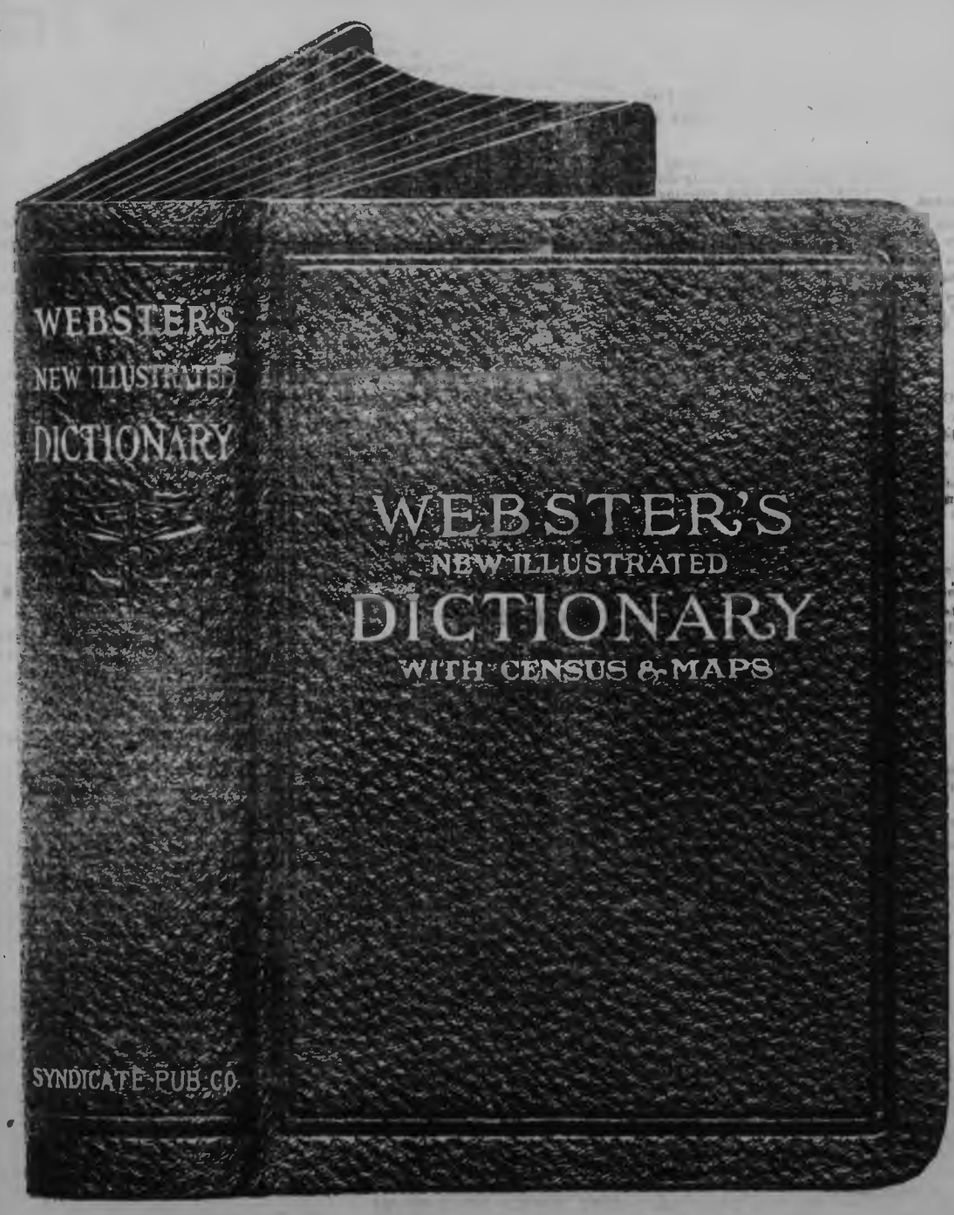
To my infinite relief I found that she had returned the word, "Not at home," to all such callers. Inquiries from other sources had been met in similar fashion. Officers of the company had called in person or had telegraphed, and Hatch & Hastings had been almost aggravatingly insistent.

"But, Evelyn," I said, "this is all such a surprise to me. I had no notion your uncle was at all active in any corporation. I fancied him a director, probably, in a score or more of companies, but that he was the so-called 'Glass King,' I never for a moment suspected. Under the circumstances, he must have a private secretary somewhere, who might have been of inestimable aid to us."

"He has a private secretary, it seems," she replied, "though even I never knew it until I read it in the News this evening. I am sure he never came to Craghelt. His name is Simms—Howard Simms—and he was interviewed at the Company's office. Didn't you see it?"



I confessed that I had missed every evening paper but one.



"It was he, I think," she went on, "who, becoming alarmed at Uncle Robert's long silence, mentioned it to some one, who in turn spread the damaging reports."

"Then he is a very incompetent private secretary," I commented, "if not, indeed, a dangerous one. I shall make a point of seeing Mr. Simms as early as possible tomorrow. Tonight I am going to call on Tony Hatch—I have a nodding acquaintance with him—and assure him that when I last saw Robert Cameron he was in a month ago he was in perfect health, and that I am satisfied he is not in any sanitarium or suffering from any mental or physical disorder. If he approves of the idea I shall give out a statement to the newspapers, implying that your uncle has gone on a little journey of which his family are entirely cognizant, and that his return may be expected almost any day. I think that ought to turn the tide in Wall street tomorrow. Meanwhile, my dear Evelyn, continue to be 'not at home.'"

Couldn't Breathe Through His Nose Stuffed With Catarrh

Catarrhozone Inhaler the One Means of Relief, and it Cured Quickly

The extraordinary efficacy of Catarrhozone is without parallel. A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes, a harsh cough is eased in an hour, the most offensive catarrh is thoroughly drawn from the system. In case of asthma and bronchitis the relief and certain cure that comes from the healing balsamic extracts in Catarrhozone is simply wonderful.

"For more than twenty years I suffered with a cough, bronchitis, asthma and nasal catarrh," writes J. F. Fenwick, of Staunton, P.O. "Every attack I had seemed to grow worse and I could hardly breathe on account of an accumulation of phlegm in the nose and throat. One day I tried Catarrhozone and in ten minutes was wonderfully relieved. I could breathe freely and naturally through the nose, and blood spitting was stopped—the phlegm was cleared away and my regular breathing restored. No remedy can do more than Catarrhozone."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema.

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Do Your Looks Quite Satisfy You?

IF YOUR COLOR IS BAD, IF YOU SUFFER FROM PIMPLES, HERE IS GOOD ADVICE.

Fine Results in Two Weeks

Miss Nettie E. Callaghan, a well-known young lady in Middleton, writes as follows: "I was affected for two years with a rash and ugly looking pimples that spread over my face My color was poor, and my blood evidently completely out of order. Certainly it was a most despairing sort of a case, because various treatments did but little to help me. A friend of mine in Toronto, Ont., advised me to get Dr. Hamilton's Pills, so I sent at once for five boxes. In two weeks I felt like new—looks improved, spirits rose, and I felt I was getting well. I have used this remedy for a long time, and now wouldn't be without it."

If you are in ailing health, have blood disorders, stomach trouble, or headaches, Dr. Hamilton's Pills will help you quickly. All druggists and storekeepers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. 25c. per box, five for $1.00. Sent postpaid by the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y.,

Mr. R. E. Wood suggested that if the accused pleaded guilty to the three charges against her, a fine of $40 would be paid and the other two charges withdrawn. FORMER LOCAL STORY IS HEREBY RECALLED

Mr. John Kylie, the Hunter street shoeman, read an item in yesterday's issue giving a story about the former Commercial House in Peterborough's former history. Mr. Kylie remembers when that hotel was operated, some 50 years ago by a man named Lawson. Lawson had a man in the back yard digging a well. At 1.30 o'clock the man was at the bottom of the well, some 30 feet below the surface, the sides of the hole suddenly collapsed, burying the man buried beneath 25 feet of earth. Frantic efforts were made by willing and sturdy hands to dig the unfortunate out, if possible, alive. When they had dug some 10 feet down, they could hear the buried man's voice. Nearly every man woman and child in the town surrounded the place. It was discovered that three large stones had almost miraculously interlocked, thus saving the buried man from instant suffocation. At 11.30 p.m., the working party rescued the man alive and without a scratch.

THE LEADER OF LONDON SECT DISAPPEARS WITH A WOMAN

London, Ont., April 3.—Reaoboam, formerly McKnight, who was going to lead a big party of local people to Jerusalem to witness the second coming of Christ, disappeared very suddenly to-day, and the authorities intend to have him intercepted at the border. The woman whom he termed his complement, accompanied him. Their followers here are reluctant to admit they were duped, especially those who had sold their furniture and household goods preparatory to making their pilgrimage to Jerusalem.

Relatives here have learned that Mrs. Doan, a widow, who was recently left a considerable sum of money, had left her little children after selling her home, and joined McKnight and wife.

Bacon Popular English Food.

Bacon seems to be even better liked in England than beef. The imports of bacon last year were 4,868,738 hundredweight, against 3,863,389 in 1910; whereas the imports of frozen beef were smaller in 1911 (3,420,071) than in 1910 (3,766,878)

MONTREAL'S FLOOD DOES QUEER THINGS

Postponed Funerals, Weddings, One Result—Children in Water to Their Necks.

Montreal, April 3.—Communication with La Prairie, Que., which was isolated by the recent floods, was established to-day and word of the narrow escape this town had from destruction was received. The waters of the St. Lawrence rose so rapidly on Monday night that the people barely had time to escape to the higher land.

Huge cakes of ice were smashed through the wooden walls of the buildings, in one case an undertaker's warehouse being opened up, the caskets being washed out and rushed down the stream.

One family of little children left by their father while he went for a boat were only taken out of their home in time, the water having reached their chins.

A canny woman, when her chickens were in danger, placed them on the dining room table, upon which they were afterwards discovered several miles down stream.

WEDDING BELLS

Crowe—Matthews.

On Wednesday night, in St. James' church, Miss Grace Ella Matthews became the charming bride of Mr. Gordon Edward Crowe, of Dummer. Rev. J. N. Clarry tied the nuptial knot. The young couple were unattended. They will reside in the township of Dummer.

MAKE WOMEN SERVE FULL PRISON TERM

McKenna to Get New Powers So He Can Give Them Intermittent Imprisonment.

London, April 3.—The House of Commons evidently means to accept Mr. McKenna's new way with the suffragette "hunger strikers." Enough Unionists and Ministerialists support it to ensure adoption of the proposal, which is to release "hunger strikers" on license when in danger of a total collapse, to rearrest them on recovery, and by repeating the process as often as necessary to compel them to serve a full term of imprisonment.

Mr. McKenna announced he will drop the torture of forcible feeding by surgical processes, except for a woman whose release on license would be a public danger.

The following suggestions for dealing with malignant women were made during the debate.

Lord Robert Cecil—"Deport them."

Lord Wolmer, whose mother, Countess Selbourne, is an ardent suffragist—"Deport them to St. Kilda, St. Helena, or any other place that will receive them."

Sir Gilbert Parker—"Even Fiji would not take them."

Mr. Rawlinson, representing Cambridge University, said the idea of torturing women by sending them to Scotland must be repugnant to every human person. (Laughter.)

WOMEN, ARMED WITH EXPLOSIVES, INAUGURATE REIGN OF TERROR

THOSE SUFFRAGETTES HAVE DECLARED WAR IN EARNEST

Campaign With Dynamite and Other Forms of Explosive Now On --- Oxted Station Laid In Ruins To-Day

London, April 4.—With Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, militant leader of the suffragettes, in Holloway jail to begin her three year sentence of penal servitude for inspiring the Lloyd George explosion, the militant suffragettes lost no time in starting to carry out their threatened reprisals.

To-day they blew up a train at Stockport; wrecked the railway station at Oxted, in Surrey, and held demonstrative meetings all over London. Two young militants with suit cases packed with explosives and combustibles were arrested before they accomplished anything.

The women who smashed valuable pictures at Manchester were held for trial.

Station Dynamited.

At the railway station at Oxted, in Surrey, an alarm clock set for 3 a.m., a contrivance similar to those used by dynamiters in America, was found in the wreckage and also a loaded pistol. Militant placards told that the explosion was the work of the women.

The lavatory of the station was completely demolished and the walls windows and doors damaged. So far as known, nobody was hurt.

The Great Western and the Midland Railways, in view of the outrages threatened by the militants last night in retaliation for the sentence passed on Mrs. Pankhurst, to-day issued a general warning to the public, and placed extra guards at the stations, tunnels, and along the tracks.

Militants Carry Explosives.

Two girls suspected of being militant suffragettes about to commit an outrage were arrested before dawn. They tried to escape from the police by dropping bags they were carrying and running away.

The bags were found to contain parafine, paper saturated with oil, candles, matches, cotton wool, patent fire lighters, etc. In each of the bags was a paper bearing the crawl "Beware how you treat Mrs. Pankhurst."

Railway Cars Smashed.

Several railway coaches were also demolished. A canister of explosives had been placed under a seat in on of the cars with a quantity of fire lighters saturated with resin and oil The force of the explosion splintered the sides of several cars, a number of doors being hurled long distances.

Mrs. Emerson of Jackson, Mich., and her supporters, since receiving the news of Secretary of State Bryan's decision not to interfere officially in connection with Miss Zelie Emerson, have determined to concentrate their efforts on the endeavor to obtain permission to have the prisoner examined by a physician of her own choosing.

The building will be finished early in May and will be quite ready for occupation.

GERMAN AIRSHIP SAILS HOME

Unexpected Visitors Left $2,000 Duty Behind Them and Valuable Secrets

Luneville, France, April 4. The German air cruiser Zeppelin IV., after reinflation, ascended and departed for Germany shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The adventure of the German military airship at Luneville will cost not only the import duty of $2,000 on several tons of aluminum and the motors collected from balloons involuntarily crossing the French frontier, but also the disclosure of the zealously guarded constructional secrets on which German supremacy in the matter of rigid airships rests.

The lack of knowledge of these secrets, was, it is stated in military circles here, responsible for the failure of the dirigible belonging to the British Admiralty.

The Zeppelin IV., according to the German War Office, did not carry any military equipment or machine guns.

A German special correspondent at Luneville telegraphs that a hostile crowd tried to rush the dirigible while it was anchored endeavoring to damage it with sticks and knives. The mob were repulsed by a military cordon. He declares the attitude of the French authorities to have been most correct.

The landing of the German military airship Zeppelin IV., which created a sensation was satisfactorily explained to the French Board of Inquiry.

GREEK KNOWN HERE WINS A LAWSUIT

Referring to Mr. Geo. Lettos, of Toronto, who is a personal friend and customer of Mr. Pappas, and known to all the local Greek colony, Toronto Telegram says: "If an egg is bad, it is bad." This was Judge Morgan's dictum in Division Court yesterday in refusing to listen to an expert explaining in technical terms the different grades and quality. The point at issue in the suit brought by Geo. Lettos, restaurant keeper, against A. A. Simonski, was whether it was the eggs or the price that were not palatable, and to decide this point His Honor has reserved judgment.

Lettos claimed to recover $130 part payment on a contract to take 130 cases of "select cold storage" eggs from Simonski, and his ground is that the eggs were not up to the contract quality.

"Customers would send back custard pies made with them," said the head waiter. The piemaker found only one in each half dozen of tender years. The chef and second cook also had their own ideas as to the fighting force of a good egg and backed up their colleague's testimony.

Simonski's come-back was that it was a drop in price and not the quality of the eggs that was Lettos' actual ground of objection. He bought before a falling market and made a bad deal."

SERGEANT BEATTY USED BATON ON POLICEMAN WHO WAS DRUNK

CHIEF'S STATEMENT

Toronto, April 4.—Colonel Grasett, Chief of Police made the following statement in reference to the affair this afternoon:

"The information I have received is that this constable was drunk in a drug store and when the patrol sergeant found him there he called up the sergeant at the station and asked him to come down. They tried to persuade him to go to the station, but he declined. He took off his acquipment and attempted to take off his greatcoat. While they were waiting for the patrol wagon, he attempted to go home which the officer would not allow, and resisted strenuously, striking at the officer, that he had to be subdued by the blow of a baton. A warrant has been issued for his arrest and he will be charged at the Police Court with assaulting a police officer while in the execution of his duty and also with being drunk on duty."

Conflicting Stories Regarding a Disgraceful Incident in The East End --- Warrant Out For Constable Farmer

Toronto, April 4. One of the most disgraceful incidents in the history of the Toronto Police Department occurred at Coxwell avenue and Queen street at ten o'clock last night, when constable J. F. Farmer (482) while performing patrol duty was found in an intoxicated condition by sergeant R. J. Beatty, and in the altercation which followed was beaten with his own baton, placed in the patrol wagon, and locked up in a cell at the Pape avenue Station. He was released this morning and ordered to appear before Chief of Police Grasett, but at 11 o'clock the hour set for the hearing of the case, the constable sent word that he was unable to attend.

Conflicting Stories.

Concerning the affair the most conflicting stories are told. Several residents of the neighborhood this morning expressed the utmost indignation at the treatment which they claimed hah been meted out to the constable by his superior officer. They say that while in a helpless condition, he was beaten unmercifully and unnecessarily. On the other hand the police officer most concerned, Sergeant Beatty, stated that he was compelled to act in his own defence as Farmer attempted to do him bodily harm.

"He was crazy drunk," he said, and pulled off his coat to fight. I hit him with his own baton to protect myself. I hit him once on the head?"

"Did you hit him after he was on the ground?" the sergeant was asked.

"Yes, across the legs, he was doing his best to kick me and I had to protect myself."

Say Farmer Was Very Drunk.

Though considerable reticence is displayed by the authorities concerning the affair, it was learned that the trouble first started at nine o'clock, when Farmer was found absent from his beat. Patrol Sergeant Redford, it is said, discovered the man in Bonham's drug store, 1612 Queen street east, in a drunken condition. Word was sent to the station and Sergeant Beatty arrived, and the latter officer conducted the constable to a yard in the rear of the drug store premises to await the arrival of the patrol wagon.

An Eye Witness.

According to Gawtrey, who was standing on his back steps close to the two officers, he heard Farmer say: "Let me get my clothes off before you take me to the wagon. I don't want to disgrace the force."

NO AUDIT COULD HAVE SAVED THE DEFUNCT FARMERS BANK

Mr. Geoffrey Clarkson Says Bankers Knew Failure Was Coming---Guessed it From Man at Its Head

Ottawa, April 4.—Some interesting facts and suggestions in connection with the failure of the Farmers Bank were given to the Bank and Commerce Committee by Geoffrey Clarkson, liquidator of the bank. The work in which Mr. Clarkson has been engaged is principally winding up the affairs of the dead institution. Chairman Ames designated him as "a bank undertaker."

Mr. Clarkson favored a shareholders' audit, the appointees to be approved by the Minister of Finance. The reputability of the auditor however, was the important point.

He did not believe that the Farmers Bank failure could have been prevented by an audit. The book was insolvent from the beginning, and from its inauguration on account of the expense of organization. It got deeper and deeper. Half of its capital was lost in the opening of its 27 branches, many of which were unprofitable. The main cause of the wreck of the institution was the bad loan made to the Keeley mine, and the efforts that were made in connection with subsequent accounts. The expense of opening branches and the bad loan expended twice the capital of the bank. In addition dividends were paid out of capital.

Audit Couldn't Save It.

An auditor could not have saved the bank, though he might have made conditions known in time to save many losses.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH Y.P.G. IN HUMOROUS PLAY

Music Hall was well filled with a highly delighted audience. The occasion was a humorous entertainment presented under the auspices of the Young People's Guild of St. Paul's Church. The play, entitled "Wanted, A Companion," was well rendered and replete with funny situations. The success of the performance is almost wholly due to Mr. W. A. Logan and Miss Rochester, of the Y.W.C.A., who directed the play.

Cast of Characters.

The following is the cast of characters:—

L. B. Loanlee, Mr. Allan Brown; Lena, his servant, Miss Georgie Davidson; Arabitha Cobblesmith, Miss Jessie Waddell; Della Bright, Miss Jessie Garrow; Dorothy Highnote, Mrs. F. E. DESPERATE DUEL FOUGHT

Paris, April 4. Both combatants were wounded in a fierce sword duel fought to-day between Georges Berthoulat, managing director of La Liberte, and Deputy Pascal Ceccaldi. Their onslaught was very violent and resulted in Berthoulat receiving a thrust in the right breast and Ceccaldi one in the right shoulder. Neither of the wounds is likely to prove fatal.

Orange Grand Lodge May Put Up Costs

Adverting to the generous gift of $500 made by the member for West Peterborough in the Tremblay case, it is of interest to note that an Ottawa despatch of yesterday, says:

"It is rumored here that the Orange Grand Lodge will furnish the security in the Tremblay case. Both parties are Roman Catholics and French Canadian, but it is felt that the attempt of the Church to annul marriages where a dispensation is not purchased is an injustice of such a character as to demand general attention."

NELSON B.C. SCHOOL TEACHERS STRIKE AGAINST GOVT. RULES

Fifteen Ma'ams and One Man Sign Register and Leave --- An Interesting Situation in Far Western School

Nelson, B.C., April 4.—Eight of sixteen teachers in the Nelson Public schools suddenly went on strike Thursday morning. They signed the register and then immediately left the school. The school management committee provided five substitute teachers, three classes having to be dismissed for the day. The action of the teachers is in defiance of the Government's school regulations.

GOLD ASSAYS FROM BEATTY TOWNSHIP

Sample Sent Down by Mr. H. C. Crow Ran $5,500 to the Ton.

For some time steady work has been going on at several properties near Painkiller Lake, in the Township of Beatty, in which H. C. Crow, of the Canada Metal Company, Limited, is interested. The company have a well equiped laboratory for assaying and testing ores and minerals, and Mr. Crow had a number of samples of gold ore from the Cartwright Goldfields, Limited properties sent for assay.

They looked good, but only a few minute specks of free gold could be seen, yet when assays were made they came out as follows: No. 1 traces of gold; No. 2, $10.30 per ton; No. 3, $30.90; No. 4, $43.26 per ton; No. 5, $5,562.00 per ton.

The latter caused quite a sensation and Mr. Lowndes, the chemist in charge, to satisfy himself that no error had occurred, made a second assay from the remaining pulp, and this again assayed within a few dollars of the first.

Since then further assays have been made, giving over $3,000 per ton. The gold beads look pretty good, and caused quite a flutter of excitement when exhibited. When the ore is examined under a powerful glass it seems to be thoroughly impregnated with minute particles of gold. The ore came from a claim which on the surface showed several small veins, but upon sinking a few feet they all merged into one.

LOCAL EXHIBITION DIRECTORS DINE AND DO BUSINESS

Last night the directors of the Peterborough Exhibition Association met at Hooper's Palm Parlours and enjoyed one of those dinners for which mine host "Tommy" is famous. The chair was very ably filled by the President, Mr. J. H. Garbutt. Among those present were Messrs. R. M. Glover, R. Neill, F. Conroy, F. Wise, J. J. Turner, Sr., R. Denne, Ald. A. A. Gillespie, T. Cruickshank, W. J. Cox, J. Storey, J. Baptie, E. Duffus, O. Ball.

After the dejeuner had been disposed of, the directors got down to business.

Mr. W. F. Hamilton asked permission to use the Exhibition grounds from May 5th to May 18th for rehearsal for the members of Kendry's Indian Congress, and to have three shows during that time. The Congress authorities have already spent $3000 in the city on costumes and paraphrenalia. The grounds were granted, as asked, for a nominal sum of $25.

Several letters were read from Airmen wanting to give exhibition flights here.

A plan of the grounds with a view to the erection of modern buildings was referred to a committee.

A number of high class specialties for the Fall Fair, which continues from September 11th to September 13th inclusive have put in applications.

Mr. R. Denne suggested that the present system of horse racing be changed to something like what is seen at Cobourg show.

The meeting then adjourned.

MANAGERS OF MOVIES FACE PROSECUTION

For Giving Sunday Shows in Aid of Ohio Flood Sufferers.

Winnipeg, April 4.—All the moving picture theatre managers, twenty in number were summoned to court to-day to answer the charge of violation of the Lord's Day Act in keeping moving picture shows open last Sunday, when $2,500 was taken in by collection, for Ohio flood sufferers. All large theatres have been giving Sunday concerts after church service, taking collection at the door, and their managers were also summoned.

A NEW CUSTOMS HOUSE FOR THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH

Special to The Times.

Ottawa, April 5th.—The Public Works Department has lately had skilled agent investigating conditions in Peterborough, in view of the recent increased business of the local Customs House. Whilst there, the agent had several conferences with local people who are anxious to erect a modern building on the corner of George and Charlotte streets. It is reported here that it has been considered advisable to sell the present Customs House owing to its too limited capacity and erect a new and larger structure elsewheres.

This will be a most acceptable move on the Government's part to local manufacturers and business men. The rapidly growing imports of Peterborough demand larger premises for the Customs and Inland Revenue Departments. The proposition, when accomplished, will also mean the spending of many thousands of dollars among the artisans and tradesmen of Peterborough.

Farming is the owner of a clear Title to a farm, but, next to this, if one cannot afford the farm, the best thing is to own a few lots within or adjoining a live progressive City has a great future assured. There is no place in the world that fills these requirements like the City of Winnipeg.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 326 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The situation in Europe is becoming so critical that each of the powers restrains the desire to sneeze for fear of waking the dogs of war.

It is a secret known only to a few that the charming girls of the Peterborough art class have made such progress that they are now able to paint a sunset that doesn't look like a mashed tomato.

Our fellow townsmen, Hon. J. R. Stratton, thinks it is great to be a pripate citizen after half a lifetime in public life. This reminds us that the greatness was thrust upon him rather rudely by the voters a few months ago.

An approaching social event is thus chronicled in a Toronto contemporary "The affair will consist of ice cream, croquettes, tea and Mrs. Moeller." The fact that Mrs. Moeller is to be served as part of the menu indicates that the affair will be rather cannibalistic.

The Indiana Legislature has distinguished itself by adopting "On the Banks of the Wabash" as the State song and providing for a "rat killing" day. We presume that they are going to try the song on the rats. If they do the results will be highly satisfactory.

President Woodrow Wilson and his family occupy the same pew in the same old New York Avenue Presbyterian Church in Washington that Abraham Lincoln and his family occupied fifty years ago. And we presume they will sit in it and listen to the same old gospel preached realizing the while their same need of its gracious and uplifting power. After all there are not so many men raised to the dignity of high office in the state who are not definitely related to the Christian Church. And there is a very good reason for the fact.

WHERE DIFFERENCE LIES.

Did Laurier have a mandate from the people when, right after the elections of 1904, he introduced his plan to commit the country to the expenditure of immense sums of money on the building of the new transcontinental railway? If "Cox couldn't wait" in 1904, neither can the Empire wait at the present moment. The present position of Laurier and his blockers is not only unpatriotic but it is absurd. Canada is anxious to increase the effective naval forces of the Empire, and she knows she can do it best in the way Mr. Borden proposes.

THE LAURIER GOAL.

Laurier has once more demonstrated that the dream of his life is the Independence of Canada, and the Separation of this Dominion from the Motherland. In reciprocity he saw thin edge of the wedge to this end. The people rejected Laurier and reciprocity together. Now the Liberal leader is urging the people to regard the Borden proposals to give immediate and effective aid to the naval forces of the Empire, as a blow at self-government and autonomy. In other words the last thing Laurier desires is that Canada should do anything to strengthen the ties which bind her to the motherland.

But in this attempt, as in the one respecting reciprocity, Laurier will fail. Canada is part and parcel of the British Empire, and she intends to remain such. By attempting to weaken British Connection, Laurier is indefinitely postponing the return of the Liberal party to office. He apparently fails to realize that this country is intensely British and has every intention of so remaining.

Having tested the strength of British feeling in the reciprocity election, it would have been thought that Laurier would not risk the employment of tactics similar to those used in that memorable fight. With his anti-British sword he has killed the Liberal party. There is no need for any squabble over the leadership. Soon there will be nothing to lead.

HER BRIGHT SMILE HAUNTS ME STILL.

(Published by Request.)

'Tis years since last we met.
And we may not meet again;
I have struggled to forget,
But the struggle was in vain;
For her voice lives on the breeze,
And her spirit comes at will;
In the midnight, on the seas,
Her bright smile haunts me still!
For her voice lives on the breeze,
And her spirit comes at will;
In the midnight on the seas,
Her bright smile haunts me still.

At the first sweet dawn of light,
When I gaze upon the deep,
Her form still greets my sight,
While the stars their vigils keep;
When I close mine aching eyes,
Sweet dreams my senses fill;
And from sleep when I arise,
Her bright smile haunts me still!
When I close mine aching eyes,
Sweet dreams my senses fill;
And from sleep when I arise,
Her bright smile haunts me still.

I have sail'd 'neath alien skies,
I have trod the desert path,
I have seen the storm arise,
Like a giant in his wrath;
Ev'ry danger I have known,
That a reckless life can fill;
Yet her presence is not flown,
Her bright smile haunts me still!
Ev'ry danger I have known,
That a reckless life can fill;
Yet her presence is not flown,
Her bright smile haunts me still.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—If the Hon. Jimmie has his $1000 saved up for the Bishop, would it not be a good move for him to cut it in two, and follow Mr. Burnham's example by sending $500 to Mrs. Tremblay, of Montreal, to enable her to take her divorce suit to the Privy Council?

Veritas.

WHY IS THE LAW BROKEN?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I think it is true that the city council stop giving favors to the rich that they deny to the poor. Contrary to the city by-law, the new purchaser of the former Crown Hotel is given permission to build dormer windows at the south side of the building, which project two feet 6 inches over the public street. Had the purchaser of this property been a comparatively poor man, or a man without "pull," would that have been allowed? Would the Council have stultified their own legislation? Not on your life, Mr. Editor. I can point to where a local citizen was denied a 9-inch brick kitchen in the fire limits, in the next blocks, also in in the fire limits, was allowed to put up a house with its whole walls under the thickness required by the by-law. It is time the workingman awakes to such favoritism.

ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT IN GOLD

WHAT JAS. FERGUSON SAYS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Quebec Man Cured of Backache, Rheumatism and Headache Voices General Sentiment in Regard to Greatest of Canadian Remedies.

Sellarville, Bonaventure County, Que., April 4.—(Special)—"I can say Dodd's Kidney Pills are worth their weight in gold," In these enthusiastic words Mr. James Ferguson, a well known resident of this place, voices the almost universal sentiment in regard to the greatest of Canadian remedies.

"I have taken Dodd's Kidney Pills," Mr. Ferguson continues, "for backache, stiffness of the joints, rheumatism and headache, and found them as represented.

"I cannot say too much in praise of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and give my full permission to have my name published in regard to them."

People who have been sick, and are cured, want to tell of it. They are grateful to the remedy that gave them back their health. They want their friends to know just how their ills can be cured.

That is why, from one end of Canada to the other, people are talking of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cure kidney disease, and kidney disease is the root of the great majority of diseases to which the Canadian people are heir.

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure backache lumbago, rheumatism, gravel, diabetes, heart disease and Bright's disease, because any and all of these spring from diseased kidneys.

DESCRIBING CANADA

Misconceptions Still Exist in Old Land as to Our Resources

Knowledge of Canada has increased among the British people since the days when a London artist suggested one of our national pastimes by depicting an Indian gaily shooting over Niagara Falls in a beaded birch bark canoe, but much remains to be learned. A certain British magazine, which publishes a Canadian supplement, contained the following illuminating information in a recent issue: "There are huge areas of Canada where practically only one sort of food is produced. Into such districts every other kind of product must be imported For fifty miles around Hamilton, Ont. practically nothing but peaches is produced."

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE is hereby given that the Council of the City of Peterborough intends after this notice has been posted up for one month in six of the most public places in the immediate neighborhood of Peck Street in the said City and published weekly for four successive weeks in the Morning Times, a newspaper published in the said City, to pass a By-Law for stopping up that part of Peck street extending from Maria Street to the Little Lake and along the shore of said Lake easterly to the property owned by the Dominion Government for the Trent Canal and authorizing the conveyance thereof where so stopped up to the VERMONT MARBLE COMPANY or its NOMINEES OR ASSIGNS.

AND TAKE NOTICE that the said Council will at the meeting thereof to be held on the fifth day of May, 1913, hear in person or by Counsel or Solicitor anyone whose land might be prejudicially effected thereby and who petitions to be heard.

DATED this 28th day of March, 1913.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
City Clerk.

LILLOOET, B.C.

Newport News March 7th

Not since Placer Mining days in the sixties has the town of LILLOOET enjoyed such a revival as it is experiencing at present.

The early advent of railway facilities has given the place a new lease of life and scores of people hunting business locations or seeking land and other investments are pouring in.

The population of the town has more than doubled within the last two months. It is expected that Lillooet will have a population of 10,000 people within the next three years. It is in the centre of a fine agricultural and fruit-growing country and a large tributary mining country.

Your Opportunity!

There is just as much money to be made in LILLOOET, B. C., to-day as was produced by the famous Placer Mines in the sixties. This time the money will be made in real estate. It does not mean long hours and hard work to the fortunate ones. You do not even have to take a chance. It is an absolutely sure thing that a little money invested now will bring big profits in the near future. Property is rising in value rapidly, and it will soon be too late for the small investor. We still have a few choice residential lots left, also about twenty of the finest business locations right in the heart of the town. These are all sure money makers and will treble in value inside of the next two years. It costs you nothing to investigate. Write us to-day for descriptive literature.

One Square Yard of Leaf Surface Purifies Great Amount of Air

It has been calculated that a single tree is able through its leaves to purify the air from the carbonic acid arising from the respiration of a considerable number of men, perhaps a dozen, or even more. The volume of carbonic acid exhaled by a human being in the course of twenty-four hours is put at about 100 gallons, but scientists estimate that a single square yard of leaf surface, counting both the upper and the under sides of the leaves, can, under favorable circumstances, decompose at least a gallon of carbonic acid in a day. One hundred square yards of leaf surface then would suffice to keep the air pure for one man, but the leaves of a tree of moderate size present a surface of many hundred square yards. All other forms of vegetble life act similarly in abstracting the noxious carbonic acid from the atmosphere

We Are Developing

A REAL BONANZA

Idaho-Bride Shares The One Best Buy To-day

If any of the readers of this notice are wanting to make a substantial mining investment, we believe they will have but very few chances to make one such as is now being offered by our Company.

With our own mill adapted to handling our ores, there will undoubtedly be a wide margin for profit, such as is seldom brought to the notice of the investor. Evidently

We Have Millions

in store for us in these mines. WE ARE DEVELOPING VAST ORE RESERVES. BONANZA ORE 1,000 FEET ABOVE US, AND PICTURE ORE AT A DEPTH OF ABOUT 2,000 FEET BELOW THE SURFACE. THAT IS PROVING THE GROUND SOME, IS IT NOT? WHERE CAN YOU BEAT IT? EVERYBODY TALKING ABOUT OUR RECENT BIG STRIKES!

Now, Mr. Investor, WE WANT QUICK ACTION, and if you want goods that can be delivered to you, buy them now.

There is Nothing Shoddy About This Investment

We have the courage of our own convictions, and when we tell you that IDAHO-BRIDE SHARES is one of the best buys on the market to-day, we mean it. We are not offering to sell out treasury stock just for the sake of selling it. We have very good reasons for doing so. We can use your capital to very good advantage RIGHT NOW at both mine and mill; otherwise, this notice would never appear. It's quick results we are wanting, and if youwant to share in our good fortune, you're welcome, and your co-operation will be appreciated.

WE SHALL NOT SOLICIT THE PUBLIC MUCH LONGER. THIS IS ABOUT THE LAST OFFER YOU WILL EVER GET FROM US. THIS STOCK IS CHEAP AT $5.00 PER SHARE; but we are offering it for much less. You can't go out on the market and buy it, as our stockholders are holding tight. There's where they are showing good, common sense. They are expecting big dividends and we don't think they will be disappointed. Our mines are too good for that. If you want in with us

Better Make Your Application at Once

A word to the wise is usually sufficient and what we are telling you is for your own good. If you don't get these shares, some other lucky individual will. NUF CED. So get them while the getting is good

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$37,000—AFTER ALMOST 2 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public. Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

4. The proceeds of the said debentures when sold shall be used to pay the purchase price of the said land, the cost of the submission of this By-Law and the other expenses in connection with carrying out of the said agreement.

5. The said Company in respect to the said land, and the buildings, machinery and plant thereon and the business assessment in respect thereof shall be exempt from taxes (except school taxes and local improvement rates) until the 31st day of December, 1923, provided said lands are used or held exclusively for manufacturing purposes and manufacturing is carried on in said building during at least ten months of each year during said period and at least twenty employees are engaged in the business of the Company in the City of Peterborough for an average of at least ten months in the first year of said operations and at least thirty employees are so engaged for an average of at least ten months in each of the ensuing nine years, provided always that if the failure to carry on the said manufacturing business is due to a strike of the employees of the said Company or to the destruction of said building or the plant or machinery by fire or tempest, the time during which such manufacturing shall cease to be carried on by reason thereof not exceeding in any case one year) shall not be taken as a failure to carry on manufacturing so as to disentitle the Company to such exemption from taxation but if the said Company shall fail or neglect at any time before the 31st day of December, 1923, to operate and carry on the said business as aforesaid and employ therein the number of employees above mentioned for at least ten months in any calendar year then such exemption shall cease and the rates and taxes payable in respect to said land, building, machinery and plant and business assessment shall be and become payable in respect thereto as if this By-Law has not been passed.

Wyoming Oil Investments

Companies operating in various Wyoming Oil Fields have been, as a general thing, very successful.

Millions of dollars have been invested and returns are now so satisfactory that the general public rightfully regards Wyoming Oil Stocks as safe and exceedingly profitable.

THE MUDDY CREEK OIL FIELD

Among the nineteen Oil Fields in Wyoming, the new Muddy Creek Field ranks among the highest from a geological standpoint. Its location is in the geological and geographical centre of the Colorado—Wyoming oil formation.

THE LARSEN OIL COMPANY is a Wyoming Corporation, having its principle office at Rawlins. This Company was first in the Muddy Creek field, and has the best locations. The Company is endorsed in the highest terms by the local Board of Trade, banks and business interests. Large local investments prove that the Company is highly regarded where best known.

Investment in Stock of the LARSEN OIL COMPANY appears to be an opportunity to repeat the great profits made by the rise in value of stocks of the "Mid-West" and other Wyoming Oil Companies.

In the older fields stocks are held at prices prohibitive to small investors. The initial price of LARSEN OIL STOCK is very low, much lower than would be justified by the Company's large holdings, equipment and development. Installment payments will be accepted.

The leading bankers and business men of Rawlins have the management of the Company and the reader may rest assured of honorable, able and energetic conduct of affairs.

Full particulars, including State Geologist's Report, Maps, etc., on request, and a thorough investigation is solicited.

NEWSPAPER OF 1808

Canadian Publication of the Days of Napoleon Was Very Modest Affair

A most interesting book in the possession of G. V. Hastings of Winnipeg is a volume of the weekly issues of The Quebec Mercury for the year 1808. Each issue consists of eight pages about ten by twelve inches in size, but the use of rather small type makes it possible to put a large amount of reading matter on so small a page. A single glance shows the immense progress that newspapers have made in these hundred years. Pictures and illustrations are practically absent; one cut of a house, repeated ad infinitum, does duty for the "for sale" and "to let" advertisements. The ships fare a little better, there being three different cuts of them. There were no advertising specialists in those days, so there is little evidence of any attempt being made to catch the eye.

A remarkable feature of the Mercury is the comparatively small amount of local news. There is no society column, no sporting page, no department of music and the drama, although there are a few advertisements of musical and dramatic performances. Horse racing is the only local sport that there is any record of but there is an account of a foot race in England that was to have lasted twenty-four hours. The stakes amounted to 600 guineas, certainly a prize worth the effort. Instead of editorials there are usually clippings from English or United States papers. Parliamentary proceedings are recorded, bits of news are collected from various parts of world, poetic effusions are frequent and occasionally a short story appears. No doubt the people of those days found The Quebec Mercury a very interesting paper, notwithstanding its shortcomings.

There was one very special reason for interest those were the days when Napoleon had all Europe in a ferment.

It is amusing in these days of large and fast steamships to read the advertisements of sailing vessels claiming speed and accommodation for twenty-five cabin passengers. Where modern steamers take days for a voyage those boats took weeks. It was not till the following year that steam was first used as motive power for boats. As those slow ships were the only means of conveying news across the ocean, news of the stirring events in Europe was always six or more weeks old, yet none the less interesting on that account. The paper records events in the struggle between Russia and Sweden and the more important strife of Spain against Napoleon, which took active form in this year. Turkey also comes in for occasional notice, and her approaching doom is pronounced by various prophets. The contemporary point of view is the chief interest in these events which have become matters of past history.

In connection with Spain's war against Napoleon there is an appeal to her Cuban colony for financial assistance, the plea of patriotism being very strong. In such a patriotic struggle the appeal was justifiable. One writer speaks of the crown of Spain as the wealthiest in Europe, and that was a strong reason for Napoleon's desire to possess it. Another writer speaks of his wish to overturn every dynasty that had a name older than his own, a motive that has probably escaped most historians.

A contemporary event of some importance was the arrival of the French king, Louis XVIII., in England and his accommodation on one of the estates of the Marquis of Buckingham. Sir Arthur Wellesley, afterwards the Duke of Wellington, begins his glorious continental career by joining forces with Spain, and his first victories are recorded.

While everyone appeared to be opposed to the French in general, there is one Frenchman who gets credit for his compilation of a Chinese dictionary, the first to be published in Europe. Evidently the general excitement did not disturb him in his work as a scholar.

STILL LIVES AS QUEEN

Though Long Years in Exile Eugenie Retains Old-time Royal Etiquette

The aged Empress Eugenie has now spent 42 years of her life in exile, but still likes to retain in her house the royal etiquette she enjoyed at the height of her fame and beauty as the wife of Napoleon III.

For instance, at her English home Chiselhurst, her week-end guests are all expected to bow low when the Empress enters the drawing room before dinner. In spite of her great age the Empress can still make a stately courtesy, and this she does, akin in all the guests with the one bow and afterward proceeding alone before her guests into the dining room.

In the little hotel where the Empress frequently stays in Paris she is treated by the manager and servants just as if she were still Empress. These little attentions please the old lady immensely.

These little weaknesses of ex-Empress Eugenie appeal to her friends, but the same cannot be said of the Duke d'Orleans, who has sold Wood Norton to Sir Charles Swinfen Eady.

The duke has announced that his wife's health does not permit her to remain in England, but clubmen in London tell a very different story. They say the duke was so unpopular he could never get guests to stay at Wood Norton, where he kept up a ridiculously regal state, even making servants walk backward from his presence.

Englishmen never forgave the duke for his ingratitude to his country which he displayed by grossly insulting Queen Victoria at the time of the Boer war.

LICENSED HAWKERS

Street Vendors in London City Now Wear Badges

London hawkers are now wearing on the left arm a metal oval-shaped badge and a number issued by the Commissioner of Police. Street vendors have increased so greatly in number of late in the most frequented thoroughfares in the City that it has become a serious problem of traffic.

Altogether, about 3,000 men and women sent in their names to be registered, but a very large number of the applicants did not succeed in making good their claims as they have to show a plausible title to three years' street trading before being allowed to do business at their favorite haunt—Ludgate Hill—the year round.

Most of the licensed hawkers are old people—with the exception of the lower women. The men seem to regard the badge as a cherished distinction, and, whether they wear it on the right arm or the left, make it sufficiently conspicuous. One of them tersely remarked: "Fewer of us and more trade. We feel like a bit of the Corporation now."

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree, where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the bowl of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Neil Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X.—Johnson is allowed to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature, who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

CHAPTER XI.—Clyde seeks assistance from a Chinese fellow college student who recommends him to Yup Sing, most prominent Chinaman in New York. The latter promises to seek information of Cameron among his countrymen.

CHAPTER XII.—Among Cameron's letters is found one from one Addison, who speaks of seeing Cameron in Pekin. Cameron had frequently declared to Clyde that he had never been in China.

CHAPTER XIII.—Clyde calls on Dr. Addison. He learns that Addison and Cameron were at one time intimate friends, but had a falling out over Cameron's denial of having been seen in Pekin by Addison.

CHAPTER XIV.—Clyde goes to meet Yup Sing, sees Johnson, attempts to follow him, falls into a basement, sprains his ankle and becomes unconscious.

CHAPTER XV.—Clyde is found by Miss Clement, a missionary among the Chinese. He is sick several days as a result of inhaling charcoal fumes. Evelyn tells Clyde of a peculiarly acting anesthetic which renders a person temporarily unconscious. Murphy is discovered to have mysterious relations with the Chinese.

But neither at his home nor at any of his clubs could I find Mr. Hatch, though I searched for him diligently until long after midnight. Evidently he was intent on evading the sleuth hounds of the press, and had successfully taken to cover.

And then, on my way back down the avenue, to the Loyalton, that happened which made all subterfuge, all tact, all dissembling, unnecessary. For on the sidewalk, opposite the cathedral, I found the best of answers to all the questions raised by the rumor mongers—the animate refutation of every disturbing waif word.

CHAPTER XVII.

Opposite the Cathedral.

Fifth avenue at two o'clock in the morning is fast asleep. There are localities in New York which are more widely awake at that hour than at any other time of day, but the highway of fashion is not one of them; and in the neighborhood of Fiftieth street, its repose is as profound as at any point of its long, undeviatingly straight course.

For over an hour I had waited in that sumptuous white marble club edifice of the plutocrats which ostentatiously punctuates the avenue at Sixtieth street, and, tired of sitting, nervous and disappointed, I had chosen to walk down to my rooms, believing that the exercise in the clear, frosty air would serve to counteract, in a measure at least, all three of these vexations.

To the limit of sight there stretched away a double, converging chain of twin lights marking the curb line for endless blocks, and illuminating the nearer sidewalk and roadway, if not to effulgence, certainly with a clearly defining radiance. Now and then I met a quick-stepping pedestrian, usually in evening dress with cigar alight; and at more or less brief intervals limousined motors and taxicabs with gleaming lamps sped by me at top speed. Once a hansom passed, the hoof-beats of the hard-driven horse resounding jarringly against the night silence.

At Fifty-fourth street I cut diagonally across the avenue to the west side, and, continuing my way southward, absorbed in the problems confronting me, had been for a little quite lost to encompassing objects. Then, suddenly, fearing lest in my abstraction I should pass the street on which my rooms were located, I aroused myself to get an idea of my location.

Across the way the grim facade of the Cathedral rising dark and sullen as a fortress made all clear. But, on my own side of the avenue there had been no such distinguishing mark. The brown stone dwellings, monotonously ugly, with their high stoops and balustraded areas, were no more enlightening than the stone flagging of the sidewalk or the asphalt of the roadway. Scores of blocks [illegible] practically the same aspect as this. But as with critical gaze I measured one after another of [illegible]ns I was all at once arrested by sight of a tall bent figure clutching the high iron railings which guarded the avenue frontage of the house on the corner—the only really individual house in the row.

My first rough concept was that I had come upon incapability resulting from intemperance. At closer view, however, I tempered my judgment. The possibility of illness or injury intervened, and I paused Samaritan-like to offer succor. The wayfarer was evidently a man of middle age, if I might judge from the contour of his back, which was towards me, and I saw at once that he was struggling to keep upon his feet by sheer muscular handhold of the railing's iron uprights, for his knees were bent threateningly and his arms were extended and tense.

Until I was close beside him he gave no sign of realizing my presence. Indeed I think it was not until I spoke that he half turned his head towards me, and, for the first time, I got sight of his features.

Whether or not I uttered a word, or made a sound, or stood for a long moment silent, I cannot say. I know only that I doubted my eyes and questioned my reason; for, if these were not playing me false, the profile thus revealed to me was the profile of Robert Cameron.

To try to set down in detail just what followed must be an idle effort, with fancy providing the bulk of the ingredients. Surprised, amazed, astounded even, are all too feeble terms to apply to my emotional condition. Dazedly, I was floundering in what seemed a veritable sea of unreality. When the commonplaces began to readjust themselves, I was standing at the curb, my arm wound supportingly about Cameron's waist and his arm pressing heavy on my shoulder. Drawing in to us was an empty hansom cab, provided by Providence, and hailed, I suppose, by me, though I swear I have no recollection of it.

The cabman helped me to lift him in, and at this the pity of his plight smote me, tempering the joy of having found him, and quickening within me a spirit of angry retaliation against his enemies. For the man now at my side was far different from that man who had sat with me on the after deck of the Sibylla, only four weeks ago. He was, indeed, it seemed to me little more than the husk of the Cameron I had known. In facial conformation the change was not so marked, though his expression was pathetically at variance with anything I had ever before seen him wear. The lines of his face were drawn, as with pain, and his eyes were dull to vacancy. He lolled, sleazily, in a crumpled heap in his corner, like a spineless manikin; and though I plied him eagerly with a flood of questions, he might have been a deaf mute for all the answers he accorded me. Once I thought he shook his head in negation, but I was later forced to conclude that this was involuntary, being caused by the roll of the cab as one of its wheels encountered a depression in the roadway.

Yet in spite of his sorriness of presence and demeanor—in spite too of the tormenting mystery of his return, which was scarcely less baffling than the mystery of his departure—it was at least a relief to know that he was alive and out of the power of those that were bent upon his harm. Good nursing, coupled with skilful medical attention, had just worked wonders for me, and I was confident that it would do the same for him; and then we should have facts and not theories to aid us in our quest for the culprits, and, eventually, in the administration of justice to the guilty.

I had given the cabman the number of the Cameron house and admonished him to make all possible speed; so, with the long lash of the whip snapping sharply at brief intervals and the jaded horse, thus urged, bounding at a clumsy, lumbering gallop, we rolled noisily northward. Having given over the effort to obtain from my fellow passenger even a gestured answer to my most pertinent inquiries, I turned my mind to what lay before us. The Cameron establishment would doubtless be fast locked in slumber as well as otherwise, but I made small question of my ability to rouse some of the servants. My hope, however, was not to awaken Evelyn. It could mean only a night's rest lost for her, for she could gain nothing by seeing her uncle at this hour, considering his condition.

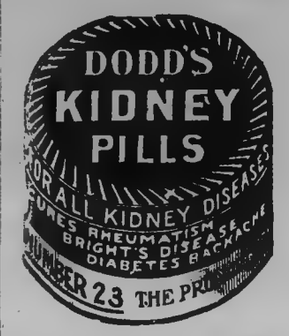
I was still busy planning when a mighty hand on the lines brought our horse to his haunches, and ourselves nearly out through the suddenly parted apron; and the Cameron residence loomed massive and dark on our right.

As I stepped to the sidewalk the driver descended, too, but I motioned him back.

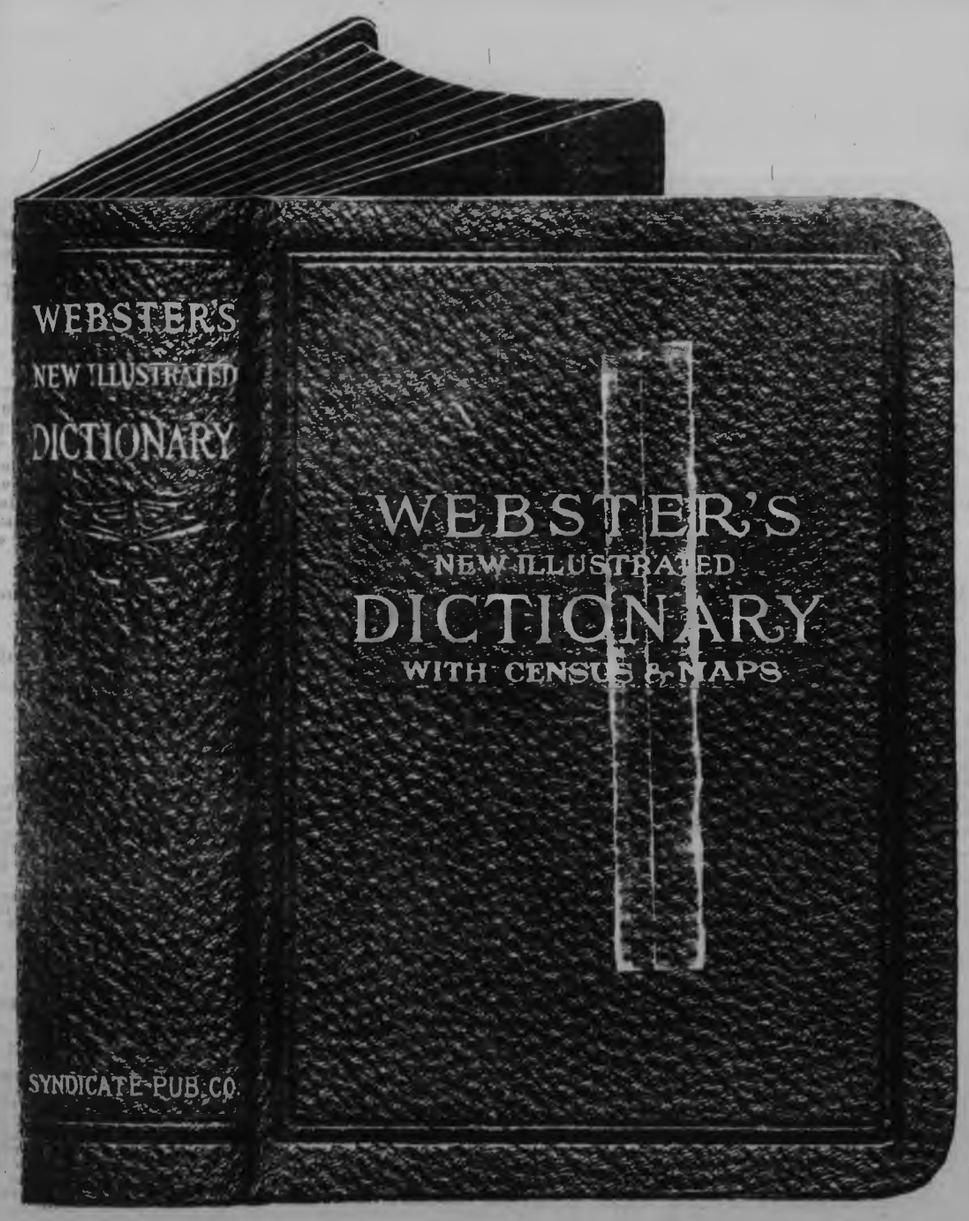
"Never mind, thank you," I said. "I'll get some one from inside to help carry him." And in a moment my thumb was on the push-button and faintly there came back to me through heavy double doors the far-off echo of the bell, jarring against the silence of the great house.

The promptness with which chains fell and bolts were drawn surprised me. And yet, I suppose, it was merely an evidence of the perfect management of an establishment wherein every contingency is provided against. A footman, as irreproachably liveried and groomed as though the time were midday instead of after two o'clock in the morning, greeted me with becoming imperturbability. I recognized him as one of the men from Cragholt, and called him by name.

"Stephen," I said, with an effort to disguise the excitement with which my every pulse was throbbing, "your master is outside in a cab. He is very weak and will need assistance. Get another man to aid me, and then awaken Mr. Checkabeedy and Louis. And make haste. No, I can't come in; I'll wait outside." He turned away in obedience to my directions, but I checked him. "And, Stephen," I charged, "no word to any one else, as you value your position; especially no word to Miss Grayson."



I marvelled at the man's preserved emotion. His "Very good, sir," was uttered with all the stolidity which marks a response to the commonplace; and yet I knew that he was fully conscious of the eventfulness of this late and unlooked-for home-coming. And the footman who joined me a few minutes later was not less well-trained.



Together, he and I lifted Cameron from the hansom and carried him up the broad flight of granite steps, between the massive guarding lions, and placed him in a great chair in the hall, before the wide, sculptured fireplace. And though this would probably prove the most exciting topic of the servants' hall for weeks to come, he gave not the smallest sign that he was taking part in other than the usual.

Checkabeedy, the butler, however, though no less perfect a servitor, was more privileged; and Louis, volatile as the most characteristic of his countrymen, collapsed utterly, without effort, apparently, at any restraint whatever. The former's interest was evidenced in a commiseratingly lugubrious visage and a few blunt questions, but the Frenchman wept and sobbed in wordless sympathy. And I had it not in my heart to blame either, for a

Do You Feel Moody, Irritable, Depressed?

When That Languid, Laggy, Easily-Tired Feeling Comes, Your Liver is Slow

Tells How to Act Quickly

"Even when I was young I was not robust and healthy like other girls. I suffered from headaches, and had sort of blue feelings that deprived me of the joyful spirits and pleasures other girls seemed to get. After I married I found I could not throw worries off like other women, and those full feelings of despondency and weariness made me very unhappy. There was no cause to feel so, and my doctor said my liver was sluggish, and this accounted for my poor color, my tiredness, langor and despair. The pills the doctor gave me were too purgative, made me weaker because they were too active for my constitution. Dozens of my friends recommended Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and they were so mild and helpful. Well, I never used a pill that acted so quietly as Dr. Hamilton's They were so comfortable to use, I was afraid they might not help. But in a week I knew they had been actively engaged in clearing up my system. They did the work of a tonic and blood medicine combined. I improved to a marvelous degree with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and I now maintain the most perfect kind of health by using them just once or twice a week."

It is Mrs. E. V. Erlanger, well known at Gloucester, who relates the above experience. She proved what you and all other, men and women, can prove—that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are best for restoring health and best for keeping the system in perfect running order. Don't be misled into using anything but Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. a box, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid by the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

She claimed that the accident was due to the negligence of the town.

Water High at Auburn.

The water at Auburn dam is higher than it has been for years. A Times representative met Engineer H. O. Fisk at the dam yesterday afternoon. Mr. Fisk explained the unusually heavy flow is due to the fact that, in former years from 30,000 to 40,000 feet of water used to seep through and underneath the old dam. Now the splendid new concrete structure is absolutely impervious to such leakage and this sends all the water through the shutes, thus making the river's flow seem greater.

Lewis Got Full Again.

Lewis Wilma seems to be a diplomaniac without the proverbial cunning of those afflicted. Lewis gets tight and, at yesterday's police court was charged for the third time, within a few days of being drunk. Lewis seems either short sighted or color blind as he does not appear able to keep out of the way of a blue coat whilst celebrating. Lewis came here from the back country with a load of furs, so he otter know better than spend his change foolishly. Lewis was fined $2. but not hgving the change about him, went up on the hill where they toil not but spin yarns.

Catarrh or Colds Never Quickly Cured By Swallowing Drugs

Cough Syrup, Tablets, etc., go to the Stomach, Perhaps Sicken It, But Don't Kill the Germs of Catarrh.

The Direct Breathing Cure is Best.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago" writes Mr. G. E. Boot, a well known resident of Bridgetown, W. I. "My head ached terribly, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cures me. I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy, it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co. Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

TO KEEP THE FACE FRESH, CLEAR, YOUTHFUL

(National Hygienic Review.)

More important than the cosmetic care of the complexion is its physical care. To keep the face clean, fresh, youthful, there's nothing better than common mercolized wax. It absorbs the soiled or faded wornout skin particles. Using cosmetics simply adds unwholesomeness to the complexion. That's the difference. By all means, acquire the mercolized wax habit. It's so easy to get an ounce of the wax at the druggist's, apply at night like cold cream and wash it off next morning. There's no detention indoors, the old skin coming off so gradually no one suspects you're using anything. When in a week or two the alluringly youthful, roselike, underskin is fully in view—well, you won't want, or need, a make-up complexion after that. It must be apparent that this process means complete riddance of all cutaneous blemishes, like freckles, pimples, blotches and blackheads.

For obstinate wrinkles, a face bath made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in half pint witch hazel, surpasses massage cream and everything else for results.

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

The Canadian Pacific Will Build Four Separate Lines

Pierce Rocky Mountains in Four Places, And Double Track From Winnipeg to The Coast

Three Lines to be Electrified --- Company to Spend Many Millions

(Special to The Times.)

Montreal, April 6.—The Canadian Pacific has a big plan afoot to eliminate the Rocky Mountains so far as rail commerce is concerned. The company proposes to have three, and possibly four distinct lines from Winnipeg to the coast. The first will be the present main line. The second will be a new cut-off via Spuris, and the third will be through Saskatoon and Edmonton through one of the northern passes into competitive territory of the northland and on to a Northern Pacific coast port.

The Soo Line will likely be run on to Nelson over the regular C. P. R. tracks, and then diverted to Portland to catch fast through freight between Canadian and American prairies and the frdit lands of the south. Improvements are now under way, and the proposal will make the Canadian Pacific main line shorter than any other transcontinental by 300 miles.

Grades and curves will be better than on any American road, and the company looks to develop the western outlet to Europe and the Orient.

Complete electrification of the Rocky Mountain division has practically been decided upon. This will mean a saving of two-thirds in the cost of fuel. Many reasons are mooted to justify this vast expenditure in thus improving the main lines of the C.P.R in the west.

The Company's Plan.

(1) The company is soon to have formidable competitors for western Canadian trade in the C.N.R. and the G.T.P., companies with lower grades than their present ones.

(2) Effort is being made to reduce operating expenses on the mountain divisions. With improvements proposed and with mountain divisions electrified the company will save 200 per cent. on fuel alone, and the efficiency of the line will be vastly increased. Many lines of snow sheds will also be eliminated.

(3) The Canadian Pacific is anxious to find a market for prairie products in the Orient, and is also anxious to make of its lines in reality the world's greatest highway. To this end also the Pacific passenger fleet is being largely augmented.

(4) A new outlet to Europe must be found for prarie-grown grain, and with the opening of the Panama Canal and the establishing of steamship lines from Pacific points to Europe the company expects to reap justifying profits from the undertakings being planned.

This gives a grain route open twelve months in the year, and what is important to the railway company, operating expenses per mile, will remain practically constant.

(5) The ever-increasing commerce between the prairie provinces and British Columbia demands railway lines more economically administered.

(6) The present season has demonstrated to the C.P.R. that 800 miles of barren barrier between eastern and western Canada is practically in insuperable barrier to economic transportation the year round. Hence the determination to divert western traffic by western route.

A NARROW ESCAPE FROM ACCIDENT

Quite a crowd collected on Saturday afternoon at the corner of Water and Brock streets. At 3 o'clock, Mr. Robert Dickson, from the north country, was seated in a democrat waggon, in which were two hogs. Just in front of Fitzgerald's carriage works, Dickson tried to turn his team round too quickly. The waggon upset and Dickson, in some way fell under the collapsable seat, he had occupied. The seat held him firmly, his head projecting over the dash board. Had the frightened horses started to kick, Dickson's grey matter would have been spattered over the roadway, instead of under his hat. Fortunately a bystander caught the animals and pacified them.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Mild and generally fair. Not much change in temperature.

Germany Opposes Peace Conference

Berlin, April 6.—Official circles in Germany scout the suggestion made by the Frankfurter Zeitung for the holding of an international conference to evolve a plan for the restriction of armaments.

It was pointed out that Germany is now facing the discussion of a bill calling for a big increase in its military forces and that the Government firmly intends to enact it into a law and is utterly disinclined to consider proposals for disarmament.

The German Foreign Office regards the proposal for an international conference as merely another move in the campaign waged by the Frankfurter Zeitung against the new military bill and says that the suggestion is not entitled to any sympathy in Germany. Germany evidently thinks that war is not far off.

ENTIRE POPULATION TO BE VACCINATED

American Authorities Getting Alarmed Over Spread of Smallpox at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 6.—Following the compulsory vaccination order issued by the provincial health department, doctors started in this morning to vaccinate the residents of ward one.

All who have not been vaccinated by their own physicians must call at the schools and submit to the operation. By Tuesday night the physicians expect to have vaccinated the entire population.

There is a possibility of trouble before them. There are fully 280 school children who have not been vaccinated and many people say they will refuse to submit. If necessary, they will leave town.

The American authorities have become alarmed over the spread of the disease and there was talk of refusing people from the Canadian side admittance to the States across the international bridge. Dr. Logan the new health officer, is handling things with a firm hand, and in every case where people refuse to have their arms scraped a prosecution will follow.

BULGARIA MAKES HER REPLY TO DEMANDS OF THE POWERS

Practically Repudiates Terms Imposed on March 22 as Basis of Peace in the Balkans--Objections Are Met

Sofia, April 6.—The Bulgarian Government yesterday handed to the diplomatic representatives of the European powers its reply to the communication made to it on March 22 concerning the suggested basis of peace between Turkey and the Balkan Allies.

The reply, which is that of all the allied Balkan nations, accepts the conditions of mediation proposed by the European powers, subject, however, to reservations which practically repudiate the proposed terms.

What Powers Asked.

The following are the propositions of the powers:

1.—The frontier of the Ottoman Empire in Europe shall start at Enos and follow the course of the Maritza River and then that of the Ergena, shall end at Midia. All territories situated to the west of this line shall be ceded by Turkey to the allied states, with exception of Albania, the delimitation of which shall be fixed by the powers.

2.—The question of the Aegean Islands shall be settled by the powers.

3.—Turkey shall abandon all claims to Crete.

4.—The powers cannot favorably entertain the demand for indemnity, but they will admit the allies to participate in the discussion of the international commission in Paris for an equitable settlement of their participation in the Ottoman debt and in the financial charges of the districts to be handed over to them. Turkey is to be asked to take part in the labors of this commission.

5.—The great powers declare at the same time that as soon as these bases are accepted hostilities shall cease.

Counter-Propositions.

The reply of the Balkan allies is contained in the following counter propositions:

1.—In the definite determination of the frontier of the province of Thrace the line indicated in the conditions formulated by the powerss hall be taken as a basis and not as a definite line.

2.—The Islands in the Aegean Sea shall be ceded by Turkey to the Balkan allies.

3.—The allies consider they should know before hand the frontiers proposed for the future state of Albania, trusting they will be in conformity with those proposed in London.

4.—The Balkan allies demand for a war indemnity must be accepted in principle, the task of fixing the amount being left to a commission which is to study financial questions and on which the Balkan allies will be represented.

5.—The Balkan allies agree that the operation of war shall cease as soon as the above conditions have been favorably received and submitted by the European Powers.

Powers Make Concessions.

Contrary to expectation the European powers promptly met the objections of the Balkan allies to the terms of mediation originally proposed by making concessions designed to secure an immediate cessation of hostilities in the Balkan peninsula.

Notes by Soccer.

England by her victory over Scotland on Saturday at Chelsea becomes champions of the nations for 1912-13. Scotland needed only to tie the game in order to gain the honor, but, although having all the best of the exchanges in the second half and at times the hardest of hard luck she failed to centralize the goal which Hampton scored for England in the first portion of the game and at the finish had to retire beaten by the odd goal

LARGEST IN THE WORLD

The C.P.R. Repair Shops At Odgen, Near Calgary

FOR some months been engaged in in erecting the largest railway shops in the world. These have just been opened at this place. the C. P. R. has

There was no blowing of trumpets for the occasion and even many prominent officials at Calgary were unaware of the official opening so quietly and unostentaciously was the ceremony carried out. The opening of these shops, which are called after one of the company's most popular officials, mark a new era in the annals of Calgary and district, if not in the Canadian West, for where less than twelve months ago was open prairie land, to-day there exists a great hive of industry. Springing up around the new Ogden shops is the city of Ogden which is very rapidly extending through the advent of the largest repair shops in the world. The C. P. R. has already expended several millions of dollars on the erection of buildings and equipment forming these huge and colossal works, but there still remains more to be done before the shops reach the state of perfection which is a part of the policy of the C. P. R. The shops occupy a hundred and twenty acres; are of the most modern construction and contain the latest appliances used in the construction of the repair of a locomotive that the mechanical world has devised, and constitute a group of twenty buildings,—the locomotive works being by far the largest, occupying a space of eight acres. Eleven and a half months from the turning of the first sod for the construction of the works the C. P. R. turned out its first engine here.

Despite the fact that the opening ceremony was very quietly celebrated, on the morning that it took place the news was flashed around the city of Calgary like wildfire, and the Street Railway soon found that it was impossible to deal with the people that surged into the cars and had to call for the assistance of the police to properly handle the crowd. Between five or six hundred men are now employed in the shops, but it will be about four months before they are in full working order when it is expected that fully two thousand five hundred men will be found employment. The contract for the shops was let to the Westinghouse, Church Kerr Co., and Mr. T. N. Gilmore, the railway equipment engineer for the contractors supervised the work. The power plant is one of the biggest in the west, containing six Babcock and Wilcox boilers, capable of developing 2,100 h.p., and the concrete smoke stack providing draft for the boilers is 250 ft. high and is a land mark which can be seen at a distance of many miles. The steel work itself was a revelation no less than seven millions of pounds having been utilized in the buildings. The capacity of the locomotive shops, which will be used for the present to do heavy work on the engines, will be between six and eight hundred locomotives a year. The shops will be a great acquisition in the west, and will materially assist the company in keeping its huge rolling stock in the highest state of efficiency. It is not likely that there will be an idleness at the Ogden shops as the C. P. R. makes a point to completely overhaul its rolling stock at least once a year.

A STRONG PETITION RE RUBIDGE STREET

A petition was circulated on Saturday petitioning against the recent decision of the Council who seem to have given the Hamilton Co. permission to close Rubidge street, between Murray and McCoul streets. This petition will be presented to the Council tonight. The petition asks that the street be kept open and that a bridge be built across the creek. It further points out that on Rubidge street are more Churches and Sunday Schools than on any other street in the city. The petition is signed, among many other endorsees, by Messrs. John Crane, R. Dobie, of the C.G.E. Co., Judge Edmison, W. H. Hamilton, the grocer, R. Gliddon, of the Conservatory, Noah Laplante, M. E. Tangney, W. J. Hooper and Chas. Crowe.

ENCOUNTER WITH PIRATES.

Hongkong, China, April 6.—In a sharp encounter with a band of pirates on the West River to-day, a force of Chinese soldiers and customs officers shot one and captured six pirates. The remainder of the band fled. An immense quantity of loot was recovered.

FRENCH CABINET TO INCREASE LA BELLE FRANCE'S AIRFLEET

Paris, April 5. The vast aerial preparations made by Germany determined the French Cabinet Council today to decide to bring forward on the reassembling of Parliament on May 7 a bill to add greatly to France's air fleet.

Even the outlines of the new measure have been kept secret, but it is generally agreed that the conditions of war on land and sea have been so changed by the progress made in the navigation of air that France must put forth fresh exertions in this directions.

France already possesses 600 aeroplanes, but is deficient in dirigible balloons capable of dropping explosives on battleships, arsenals, ship yards and other objective points.

PREMIER SUBMITS PROPOSALS TO END NAVAL DEADLOCK

Conference at Ottawa Between Party Leaders and Mr. Borden Says There May Be Developments This Week---Opposition Paper Has Significant Statement on Probability of Peaceful Solution

Ottawa, April 6.—It is understood that the prime minister and Sir Wilfrid Laurier will confer this afternoon with reference to the business to be taken up in the house on Monday.

The government would like to put through the reciprocity agreement with the West Indies, and to advance one or two other government measures upon the order paper if some guarantee can be given that the discussions thereon will be kept within reasonable limit.

The Ottawa Free Press, the local Liberal organ, gives a rainbow hue to the Borden-Laurier conference as follows:

"A rumor was current on Parliament this morning that Premier Borden had submitted to Sir Wilfrid Laurier some important proposals, with the view of ending the deadlock on the navy bill. It was said that these proposals are in the nature of a compromise. A conference of leading Liberals is being held this morning in Sir Wilfrid's office to discuss the premier's communication.

"Undoubtedly a compromise would be welcomed by many private members on both sides of the house. Conservatives report some dissatisfaction with the government's plan of expending the entire naval vote outside of Canada, while Liberal members find their action criticized in some quarters as disloyal to the empire. Any compromise which would permit a part of the money to be spent in Canada would be welcomed by a majority of the members.

"The election talk has largely died away, but the Liberals have by no means surrendered. They might welcome closure as a way out, but the prime minister is averse to the use of closure at this time."

"There will be some developments next week" was all Mr. Borden had to say when pressed as to some particulars of his program.

MRS. PANKHURST IS MOVED TO LONELY PRISON CELL

Authorities Fear Demonstration if Suffragette Leader Stays in London

London, April 6. An order was expected from the home office yesterday removing Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst from Halloway jail to Atlesbury prison, forty miles from London. The suffragette pickets, who in relays have walked around the jail night and day since their leader was imprisoned, were chagrined at the prospective transfer of Mrs. Pankhurst, because Aylesbury is a lonely place, where any demonstration the women might make would lose much of its effectiveness.

That the defiant militant leader will not serve three years in prison or even an appreciable fraction of that time, is almost assured. Her stay in jail will be mensured by her physical endurance. If Mrs. Pankhurst has the will power to starve herself into a condition of such weakness that death would follow, she will be released in Home Secretary McKenna's "ticket of leave" plan whenever the prison doctors report that further confino would be fatal.

True to her word, Mrs. Pankhurst has not eaten a bite since she was committed. She ate her last meal on the day of her conviction when Justice Lush ordered a recess to permit the militant leader to confer with her daughter, Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, who is still ill from forcible feeding. So far Mrs. Pankhurst has not been forcibly fed and it is said she will not be.

Mrs. Pankhurst was joined in her hunger strike to-day by Miss Olive Hocken, who was found guilty at the Old Bailey yesterday of an attempt to set fire to the pavilion on the Rochampton Golf Links and sentenced to four months in prison.

CAUGHT WHILST THEY IGNITE SPLENDID NEW GRANDSTAND

Two Suffragette "Fire Fiends" Captured at Kelso Racecourse--Intense Alarm in Provinces

London, April 6. Two suffragette "fire fiends" were captured yesterday morning red-handed while setting light to the new grand stand on the Kelso race course in Scotland. Rags saturated with petroleum had been placed beneath the stand and ignited, when the watchmen on duty sprang out of their hiding place and captured the two women.

The grand stand on the Ayr race course, also in Scotland, was gutted by fire this morning, causing a loss of $15,000. This also was attributed to the militant suffragettes.

Several suffragette placards and a bundle of suffragette literature were found in the vicinity of Ayr race course, leaving no doubt in the minds of the authorities as to who was responsible for the fire.

A considerable number of window-breaking and telegraph and telephone wire-cutting outrages were committed during the night by militants in various parts of the country.

The bomb and arson campaign threatened by the women has caused intense alarm in the provinces, especially at historic places like Chatsworth and Blenheim, where special patrols of police and gamekeepers have been placed on duty day and night.

BERLIN MAN IMPROVED BY SERUM TREATMENT

John Schewitz, a Motorman, Followed Famous Physician to London.

Berlin, Ont., April 6.—John Schewitz, a motorman on the Bridgeport and Northern Railway, is verily jumping for joy.

Three weeks ago he was suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs and was doubtful about his recovery, but when Dr. Friedmann paid a visit to Canada he decideh to consult him, and went to Toronto for that purpose. He was denied an interview, and followed the doctor to London, and was inoculated with the serum, with the result that he is on the road to recovery.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 326 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

THE LAW OF QUALITY IS AS SURE AS the law of gravity. Gravity keeps both our feet on the ground. Quality informs your judgment when you are on the "Ground floor" in the matter of value. Martin-Senour's Paint is the Ground Floor of paint value. It makes good every time. It flows freely, has great covering capacity, shows a beautiful finish, and wears like iron. It will more than meet your expectations in quality, brilliance and durability. Campbell & Best, 174 Hunter St., next to post office.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Now that Adrianople has fallen, it is high time for the Turks to tumble to the situation.

Some of our friends greatly deplore the fact that the Government jobs are not being passed around fast enough to make their heads swim.

This great family journal's idea of an ardorless lover is the young Lindsay man drove two miles alone before he discovered that his sweetheart had fallen out of the buggy.

Evidently the town of Wetmore, is tired of the jokes about its name, for it has voted in favor of local option and has appointed a man named Dryer as superintendent of schools.

Much has been said about the laudable example of the bartender who became a university student, but it has been offset by the University graduate who has become a bartender. A case of "horse and horse," so to speak.

A British exchange announces that the price of first-class Egyptian mummies has been advanced to $200; but it is hardly likely that this will have any appreciable effect on the price of food

In a recent inventory taken in London of suffragette tools of destruction there were found dynamite, wire clippers, corrosive fluid, hammers, flints, hatchets, stones and false identification plates for automobiles. On the whole their kit seems to be as extensive and complete as an up-to-date crackman's. The one thing lacking is the mask, and that the ladies will not use.

AMERICAN SINGERS.

It is alleged that there are teachers of singing in Florence and other Italian cities who are making fortunes out of aspiring Americans who ought to be at home. Our sympathy is with the teachers. The misery they must suffer in trying to extract music from some of the vocal organs which come to them, is worth a greater reward than this world holds The only complaint we have to make is that the reward is not shared with those who have to listen to the singers after they have graduated.

RECIPROCITY.

The benefits following the defeat of reciprocity are being demonstrated every day and the latest is seen in the announcement that an enormous steel plant is to be erected near Sandwich, Ontario. The capitalization of this great company is twenty million dollars and it is estimated that the works will employ in the vicinity of 5,000 men. This means that a new town will grow up. With 5,000 men in the works it is estimated that the establishment of this industry will mean a total population of not less than 20,000.

Had reciprocity passed these steel works would have been located in Detroit, in the United States.

SUFFRAGE IN CANADA.

Woman suffrage has extended to the great Dominion of Canada, where it has found a highly fertile soil and is springing up, mushroom-like, almost over night. Like all great humanitarian movements suffrage thrives best under the stimulus of oppression and malice. A cause that cannot breed martyrs cannot hope to secure permanence. In Canada the cause of woman suffrage is thriving on the remarkable man-made laws that rob women of many of their very obvious rights.

In the United States our laws are so drawn that women are much better protected than men. To illustrate, a wife receives the entire revenue from property owned before marriage; she receives and controls all the money she owns while married, and the husband is responsible for the payment of all his wife's bills Dean Walton, in the Canadian press, has called attention to the manifestly unjust laws affecting married women in force in the province of Quebec. There all a married woman earns belongs to the husband. There the law pushes this wrong to the extent that a husband can establish a mistress and keep her from the earnings of his wife, and the wife cannot secure a divorce except she is wealthy enough to secure the passage of an act of parliament.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Times does nor hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

SUNDAY STREET CARS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Why not Sunday street cars for Peterborough? Our city is growing rapidly and growing like a cow's tail, downwards, down southwards. The distance beween friends and relatives living respectively in the first and fifth ward is too great for convenient visiting on Sunday. The churches fought for years against Sunday street cars in Toronto. However modern progress and common sense prevailed over the old time Blue Law methods. Whilst Sunday street cars, on pleasant evening nights, by taking the hard worked mechanic to God's fresh air in the parks and suburbs, and thus take a few nichels from the church plates, they would undoubtedly result in bringing more worshippers to church in inclement weather. The argument of the hard worked motormen and conductors would I knew be used to put off what eventually come; this however, is only a hot air argument. The local street car men are now forming a union that will effectually prevent the street car men from being worked. Surely it is better to let the street car men take a week day off instead of Sunday, when they would get greater uay than to keep thousands of working men debarred from enjoying an afternoon on Sunday instead of confining them to the hot pavements and glowing brick of the city.

IMPRUDENT POLICY OF FRENCH SENATORS

Ottawa, April 6.—That during the fight over the Keewatin school question in connection with last year's Manitoba boundary bill, pressure was brought to bear upon Premier Borden by Hon. Senator Landry to have Hon. L. P. Pelletier removed from the cabinet, was an interesting matter once more brought to light in the Senate.

It was an illuminating sidelight on the fierceness which often characterizes political warfare in the Province of Quebec.

Hon. Mr. Pelletier when the Keewatin school question was being debated in the House disagreed with Quebec Nationalists, and many Liberals from that province as well, and held, as did Mr. Monk and Mr. Doherty that Catholics had no vested rights in the Territories as far as separate schools were concerned.

In the course of his speech on that occasion Mr. Pelletier declared that notwithstanding threats from his own province, he would not be swerved from his course.

Speaker Landry at that time bitterly attacked the French-Canadian ministers for the stand which they had taken.

Some time later Senator Landry was asked in the Senate if he had written Premier Borden suggesting changes in the cabinet so far as Quebec was concerned, and making "charges and accusations against Hon. Mr. Pelletier."

Speaker Landry replied at that time that the correspondence consisted simply of copies of communications between himself and the postmaster general which Mr. Pelletier had marked private.

The matter was brought up once more by Senator Roche. Speaker Landry while not denying that he had asked the Premier for the retirement of Mr. Pelletier, gave the same answer which he gave last session. It is understood that the matter is to be brought up again.

LILLOOET, B. C.

Newport News March 7th

Not since Placer Mining days in the sixties has the town of LILLOOET enjoyed such a revival as it is experiencing at present.

The early advent of railway facilities has given the place a new lease of life and scores of people hunting business locations or seeking land and other investments are pouring in.

The population of the town has more than doubled within the last two months. It is expected that Lillooet will have a population of 10,000 people within the next three years. It is in the centre of a fine agricultural and fruit-growing country and a large tributary mining country.

Your Opportunity!

There is just as much money to be made in LILLOOET, B. C., to-day as was produced by the famous Placer Mines in the sixties. This time the money will be made in real estate. It does not mean long hours and hard work to the fortunate ones. You do not even have to take a chance. It is an absolutely sure thing that a little money invested now will bring big profits in the near future. Property is rising in value rapidly, and it will soon be too late for the small investor. We still have a few choice residential lots left, also about twenty of the finest business locations right in the heart of the town. These are all sure money makers and will treble in value inside of the next two years. It costs you nothing to investigate. Write us to-day for descriptive literature.

Loneliest England.

A man who was described as living in one of the loneliest parts of England has been given a parliamentary vote by the revising barrister at Brampton, Cumberland. The conservative agent said he had visited the place—a farm situated on a fell between Newcastle and Maltwhistle on the border of Northumberland. In an area of 30,000 acres there were only four cottages. The members of this farmer's family had lived in the cottage concerned for 600 years, and tradition said that the kitchen fire had never been extinguished for 200 years. The claimant, William Goodfellow, slept in a bedroom eight feet square. He would have to walk fifteen miles to vote. The Liberal agent said he endeavored to reach this remote spot, and finding the route so difficult and dangerous turned back when he had still twelve miles to travel. He understood a child was at the place who had not seen another child for two years.—London Evening Standard.

A Soap Substitute

Occasionally we meet with persons whose skin is so delicate or so easily irritated that they cannot use soap. It is a mistake in such instances to recommend different brands of soap to them in the hope of finding one that will suit. Instead offer them the following substitute which is cleansing and soft enough for almost any skin. It is composed of a mixture of equal parts of oatmeal and almond meal, ground and passed through a sieve. The meal may be delicately scented according to individual fancy. It is often convenient to put the meal into small bags for the bath. Use the bag to bathe the body and face as you would a wash rag

The ore was sent to Campbell & Deyell, at Cobalt. This again proves the value of the property. $6.00 ore will pay to mill. Samples can be seen at our office, assay papers, etc. We invite you to call.

AN INVESTMENT, NOT A SPECULATION.

You can now buy at 50 CENTS A SHARE, par value $1.00. This stock, from the way it is being taken up, will shortly be advanced to 60 cents.

48 assays were made from the shaft, averaging over $70.00 gold to the ton.

Mines with a 5-stamp mill are making $500.00 profit a day. There is no reason why CARTWRIGHT GOLD FIELDS, LTD., when the stamp mill is installed, should not make $1000.00 per day profit and pay big dividends to the lucky shareholders.

$50.00 buys ..... 100 shares.
$100.00 buys ..... 200 shares.
$250.00 buys ..... 500 shares.
$500.00 buys ..... 1000 shares.

The Company have demonstrated that they have the ore and all they have to do is to get the mill installed and produce the gold. Buy before the advance in price.

LOCAL REPRESENTATIVE WANTED

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock, each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

Before offering shares to the public, Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

VICTIM OF CLEVER THIEVES

Parisian Jeweler Loses Large Sum Through the Working of a Most Ingenious Scheme.

A remarkable story of international thievery was related in a Paris police court the other day, when a man named Bucking, who had been extradited from London, was placed on trial. Bucking, it appears, began by writing to a famous Paris jeweler under the name of "Mrs. Marchmont," mentioning another wealthy lady customer, and asking for a quantity of expensive jewelry to be sent to London on approval. The request was immediately complied with, and $1,350 worth was chosen and paid for with a check. Three months later "Mrs. Marchmont" ordered $6,000 worth, and also paid by means of a bill on a London bank.

Shortly after there came an order for pearl necklaces to the value of over $25,000 to be sent in order that the customer might choose one of $5,000, and following this the jeweler received another request in the name of an alleged friend of "Mrs. Marchmont" for necklaces, rings, and brilliants, also to the value of over $25,000, all of which were confidingly sent to London. This time, however, no payment followed, and, the jeweler placing the matter in the hands of the police, the pseudo "Mrs Marchmont" was arrested in the person of a German named Bucking.

Growing Old Gracefully.

It is impossible to escape the yoke of time, but there is a becoming as well as an unbecoming way of donning and wearing it.

On a warm spring morning some years ago the late Captain Faulkner of Texas was walking along the highroad when he met an old negro proceeding slowly toward the village store, in order to get his stock of groceries for the coming week.

"Well, Uncle Primus," said the captain, "how are you?"

"Yas, suh; yas, suh; thank you, suh, Marse Faulkner; yas, suh," returned Uncle Primus. "Ah is feelin' good; Ah suttinly is feelin' fine. Ah doan' remember as Ah evah felt no bettah in mah life, but some way ruther Ah seem to be gettin' to de tahm of life w'en Ah's lookin' fer de low spots in de fence."—Craftsman.

If not possibly so before another year. Now is the time, do not put it off. Secure their likeness, and you will never regret it. In this case get a real likeness—a work of art that will not lose its clear-cut lines and beauty.

VISITING RELATIVES

Maisie Explains Why She Declined an Invitation.

By WILLA KENDALL.

"Maisie, how dared you refuse Mrs. Winston's invitation in such an ungracious, abrupt manner?" asked Louise in astonishment.

"Didn't you hear her intimate that she'd treat me just like one of the family?"

"Isn't that the height of hospitality, to make guests feel as if they were at home?"

"There's no place just like home," answered Maisie emphatically, "and I'm rather glad of it. Who wants to be treated when she's visiting with that easy familiarity and the realisms showered upon a relative?"

"I haven't done much globe trotting and my experience has been rather limited," said Louise, "but what has made you so cynical?"

"When I visited my aristocratic cousins the Mannings, I was received with cordial greetings and had visions of a very gay week-end, until Cousin Jane announced, 'Put your wraps and bag anywhere; the maid is out. I hope you're not hungry as we have only a light lunch. We're not going to make any fuss over you, but treat you just as though you were one of us.'"

"Didn't you have enough to satiate your hunger?"

"Hardly. A simple repast served on gorgeous dishes is no more sustaining, even if a butler stands in back of you and picks up your napkin, than if you are served on premium dishes that come with a pound of coffee. We were hardly through when the baby commenced to whine. 'We'll have to stay with her while the nurse goes on an errand,' said my hostess. The next hour was spent in entertaining the youngster, who broke my eye-glasses and then laughed with joy."

"Put Your Wraps and Bag Anywhere; the Maid Is Out."

"I suppose you had to meet all of your cousin's friends and be on exhibition the rest of the time,' said Louise sympathetically.

"No such luck. As the infant could not be trusted alone he was left in my charge for the greater part of the afternoon while Mrs. Manning entertained company. Upon the departure of her visitors, my aristocratic cousin said in her most charming manner, 'Dearie, Mrs. Johnston can't attend the meeting of the U. S. L., so I have to write a paper to read in place of hers. Will you assist me? You're so clever. It will be real quiet here tonight. I knew you'd prefer spending the evening with us rather than by being bored by strangers.'"

"How selfish. Didn't you meet any young men?"

"Not that you could notice it. We labored over the intricacies of the suffrage question until I crept to my room weary with the words, 'Votes for Women,' ringing in my ears. Hardly had I fallen asleep when a thundering knock at the door awakened me. Hastily dressing I rushed downstairs to inquire what the troubre was. My host accosted me with a smile. 'We're early risers,' he said. 'Usually our guests have their breakfasts in their room, but as you're just like one of the family, we thought you'd prefer to join us. Didn't you rest well? You look rather tired.' I assured him I felt splendid, and then sat down to listen to family arguments and complaints about the high cost of living, extravagant wives, and sarcastic remarks about husbands who were growing too stout."

"Rather interesting," commented Louise. "You're usually so tactful I presume you had eyes that didn't see and ears that didn't hear family squabbles."

"Just so."

"Did you go motoring often?"

"No, I was compelled to refuse an invitation as my cousin said it was so rarely she had anyone whom she could trust to tell how a gown would fit, that I should go with her to the dressmaker. Do you think it was any great pleasure to go to the florist's and to the caterer's to order flowers and French pastry for a dinner to be given after I left?"

"At any rate, you didn't have any expense," said practical Louise.

"You forget the tips for the servants, and the presents for the children. Then Mrs. Manning forgot her gold bag and had to borrow mine, saying 'there's no one I'd rather ask than you.' Evidently five dollars is a mere trifle to her, for she didn't return the money I left in it and I never had the courage to give her a gentle reminder. That evening I was requested to show the cook how to make a fish timbale with mushrooms."

"Did they compliment you on your culinary ability?"

"Not nearly as much as they bemoaned the fact that I burnt one of the cook's favorite pans, and that she threatened to leave because strangers came into her kitchen. To cap the climax the young heir of the house burst into an avalanche of tears because no one would escort him to the Five-Cent show. His father had an engagement, his mother a convenient headache, and the governess expected her gentleman friend. All gazed at me until the power of suggestion was so strong I volunteered my services. Unfortunately I tore my skirt on one of the seats, and there was such a draught that I caught a severe cold and I've had it so long that I'd be lonesome without it."

"Was your kindness appreciated" asked Louise.

"It seems we went to the theater which has the wildest, most exciting and thrilling films, and I was roundly censured for taking the boy there instead of to the one opposite."

"Did you remain long?" interrupted Louise in a sympathetic tone.

"Too long. I was persuaded to telegraph George that it was an utter impossibility for me to keep a theater engagement with him."

"Why?"

"How could I refuse my cousin after all her kindness to me, when she had such a bad headache and I was the only one who was able to decorate the table for her birthday dinner the next day? George didn't believe my excuse and took Dorothy."

"Why, I saw George and Dorothy together again last night."

"Yes, I know he's been taking her ever since. Do you blame me for not accepting Mrs. Winston's invitation?"

THE POOREST OF ALL PEOPLE

Natives of the Arctics Who Have Enough to Eat Are Considered Very Fortunate.

I have not known so poor a winter during the whole of my stay among the Eskimos (now 22 years), says a writer in the Christian Herald. While the coast is ice-bound, the days short, snowstorms frequent and the thermometer often 40 degrees below zero, it is not possible for the Eskimo to do much to secure a living. One way for the women to produce something was to cut holes through the sea ice, which reaches a thickness of six feet, and there they stood fishing for rock cod, most days securing only between five and ten fish. The mission endeavored to help, but poverty was so general that all resources were taxed to the utmost.

An outsider has no idea of what poverty among the Eskimos means. At the best of times the wants of an Eskimo are few and his food consists of the coarsest of substances. Seal walrus and whale meat form a large part of their diet, and the blubber of these animals serves in the place of pork or butter.

In China the famished inhabitants subsisted on roots or some inferior vegetation, but here the vegetable kingdom has nothing to offer. The earth is frozen and deeply covered with snow and ice; the birds have gone south and one might walk for miles without seeing a living creature. At the same time it is of interest to know even these primitive people have for ages found a kind of substitute for food somewhere. Along the beach, which is known to have plenty of seaweed, holes are cut through the thick ice and the seaweed and mussels pulled up through the holes, and it is on record that the Eskimos have sustained life on this, one might say, refuse of the sea, during the long winter months.

The Eskimo has no word for "God" in his language, and it has been fitly marked that the very austere aspect of life may have helped to exclude the conception of a superhuman benevolent Being from the beliefs and superstitions of these people of the Arctic.

World's Oldest Museum.

The oldest museum in the world may be found in the city of Nara, the former capital of Japan. Since its foundation, in 756, it has gone through all the changes of the Japanese empire without one single addition to its collection. Dr. Otto Kummel is one of the few Europeans who were permitted to visit this museum. It opens its doors but once a year, on a day in spring, when a special committee inspect the collection, and a new list is made out. The museum contains about 3,000 articles, which are said to be the most beautiful specimens of decorative work which have ever been produced by human hand, such as lacquer ware, decorative furniture, enamel ware, cambric-like fabric, etc. The origin of the majority of the articles is uncertain; some came from China and others from Korea, but most of them appear to be of a more exotic origin. All, however, came of a year prior to the year 756.

BUILDING BRANCHES

Canadian Roads Have More Mileage in States Than Latter in Canada

The announcement that Newman Erb, president of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad is incorporating a new company to build branches to the Canadian border causes a Canadian writer on railroad matters to note that while the United States Railways have only 1,485 miles of track in the Dominion, the States have been invaded by Canadian roads to the extent of 7,197 miles divided as follows: Canadian Pacific Railway, 5,391 miles; Grand Trunk System, 1,656 miles; Canadian Northern, 170 miles. The writer goes on to add: "The Grand Trunk had a big fight to obtain admission into New England but its efforts were successful. The main purpose of extending that road into the rich traffic territory of New England is, according to the railway's own contentions, to balance their business between the Eastern and Western States. The Grand Trunk's double track main line lies across Canada like an arm, the elbows at Montreal, the forearm across Ontario, the hand upon five fertile and productive States, with Chicago, the great traffic centre, in its palm. The fingers of this hand are the feeders, which will bring through this gateway the traffic of the west, the northwest and the southwest."

Boiling water poured over apples will loosen their skins and make paring an easy matter.

Too Much Enthusiasm for Idleness.

Long ago Robert Stevenson suggested that a lad who played truant might be doing himself more good than he who never missed a lecture. Now we hear a professor declaring "We are prone to forget that the twin gifts of youth are enthusiasm and idleness." All our young people are terrifically in earnest about something or other. But they have not much chance of idleness. Even their games are so organized that sport itself begins to be a systematic business."—London Telegraph.

PRIZE POEM ON HISTORIC EVENT

Upon the occasion of the unveiling at Halifax by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, of the tower commemorating the establishment of representative government in Nova Scotia a poem was read which won a prize of $100 offered by the Canadian Club of Halifax. The winner of the contest was Rev. A. L. Fraser of Great Village, N. S. Following is his sonnet:

"Freedom doth greet this royal throng to-day,
In these elysian haunts, largess of one,
Whom time has amply proved Britannia's son:
And when by age or love or ease shall stay
In years unborn this pillar to survey,
Its walls will toll not of war's stunning shock,
But how long since kind liberty did rock
Her cradle by this old Atlantic bay.
And if far scattered children turn their feet
To where their fathers' earliest hearth did blaze
And bathe the very stones in tears 'tis meet
That we, of British blood, this pile should raise
Where first a daughter of our ancient throne
Did sit beside a fireside of her own."

BIG PURSES SPOIL BOXING

An Old-Timer Thinks the Lesser Gets too Great a Share of the Spoils

A Canadian admirer of the art pugilistic at present in England writes: "On Derby night I was walking along the street wishing I hadn't taken expert advice regarding the race, when I espied a well-known figure in front. It was that of a short old gentleman who still retains the cautious, cat-like tread of the prize-fighter. A smart clap on the shoulder brought him round sharply with his hands ready to resent the 'fib' he thought a stranger was taking. His steely blue eyes lost their hardness when he saw who his 'attacker' was, and he was soon busy telling me of his adventures at Epsom. We were not long getting on to his favorite topic, boxing. The victories of Carpentier and other Continental boxers had worried him as to the future pre-eminence of English boxing. Boxing is not what it was, he claimed. Of course many old gentlemen in other walks of life make a similar assertion about other things. But my old friend with the steely blue eyes gave his reasons. Boxing prizes are too big nowadays and the loser gets too big a proportion of the stakes. This induces laziness. They don't have to fight often enough to keep themselves in tip top condition.

"Boys nowadays are mostly brought up too soft," he said. "A section of the press and a section of the public make it their business to denounce boxing as a brutal sport, ignoring the fact that it teaches boys self reliance to an extent that can be claimed for no other sport. A boy who can look after himself with his fists is nearly always the last to begin trouble, but the last to leave it when the inevitable has happened." My old friend quoted his own case as to the value of boxing. I know his history well, and one day hope to have the privilege of seeing it in print. His adventures by land and sea would fill a thick volume, and his knowledge of how to use nature's weapons has brought him safely out of tight corners when he looked 'well down the course.'

"He has traveled all over the world, and wherever he went he found that respect for him increased in proportion to the publicity accorded the fact that he could box. In New Orleans once, however, this reputation operated disadvantageously. A big black man with whom he became embroiled took no risks, and brought him to earth with a heavy blow with a water carafe that laid open his head, and took all the pleasure out of the little tramp he soon afterwards took from New Orleans to San Francisco. That was the second time he had been counted out. The first had occurred some years before at Eaton—in the 'sixties. The young gentlemen of that academy of learning were in the habit of importing some one day of each year a number of London boxers whom they dressed up in Eton uniform and let loose on the unsuspecting 'townies' as the genuine goods. It used to be an easy and well-paid day's work for the London visitors. But on this occasion the suspicious 'townies,' having learned by bitter experience that things are not always what they seem, had indulged in a counter importation from Birmingham. And great was the slaughter when the clash of arms began, and when the thoroughly disorganized, outnumbered, and battered spurious Etonians went to receive their (on this occasion) really earned gold, they resolved never again to take down less than the quantity of material ordered by this year's lot instead of fourteen men—and, further, that the quality should be of the nature demanded! Four 'duds' at a reduced fee just turned the balance against them!"

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the bowl of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X.—Johnson is allowed to go after being closely questioned. Evelyn takes the letters to an expert in Chinese literature who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

CHAPTER XI.—Clyde seeks assistance from a Chinese fellow college student who recommends him to Yup Sing, most prominent Chinese in New York. The latter procures the desired information of Cameron through his countrymen.

CHAPTER XII.—Among Cameron's letters is found one from one Addison, who speaks of seeing Cameron in Pekin. Cameron had frequently declared to Clyde that he had never been in China.

CHAPTER XIII.—Clyde calls on Dr. Addison. He learns that Addison and Cameron were at one time intimate friends, but had a falling out over Cameron's denial of having been seen in Pekin by Addison.

CHAPTER XIV.—Clyde goes to meet Yup Sing, sees Johnson, attempts to follow him, falls into a basement, sprains his ankle and becomes unconscious.

CHAPTER XV.—Clyde is found by Miss Clemens, a missionary among the Chinese. He is sick several days as a result of inhaling charcoal fumes. Evelyn tells Clyde of a peculiarly acting anesthetic which renders a person temporarily unconscious. Murphy is discovered to have mysterious relations with the Chinese.

am in hopes that when he awakens his mind will be comparatively clear."

He was about to bid me good-night when I checked him.

"Doctor," I said, "I am glad to find you so optimistic. Before you go I want you to write me a bulletin of Mr. Cameron's condition and sign it. I want no mention in it of the injury, since it is not serious. If possible, I would suggest that you use the word 'indisposition' and be sure to employ the 'temporary' you called into play a moment ago."

Dr. Massey gladly acceded. Seated at Cameron's writing table he scribbled a bulletin of even more encouraging and confident tenor than I had indicated. And I used it to turn the tide of speculation in Crystal Consolidated.

But neither the spoken nor the written words of the physician held for me any considerable measure of solace. My friend's condition was desperate. I knew it and my heart ached for him; but it ached more for Evelyn, his ward, who loved him, and who must be given the gladness of good news only to be crucified the next moment on the cross of anxiety.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Three Promises.

Need I say that I did not sleep that night? It was five o'clock when I left Cameron's, after a talk with the nurse, and I promised to return in an hour. The interval was devoted to a cold bath, a shave, and a change of clothing at my rooms; and at six I was back again, talking once more with Checkabeedy who was personally serving me with coffee in the breakfast room.

"Between you and me," I began, "there is small need of concealment in this matter of Mr. Cameron's disappearance and return, his coming as remarkable and mysterious as his going. I think I am experienced enough to understand that such an affair as this cannot be kept entirely secret—especially not from Mr. Cameron's servants—and it is better, Checkabeedy, that you should understand it thoroughly. I can fancy the distorted story that has been circulated below stairs. That more rumors, wide of the truth, have not leaked out and gained press publicity, speaks very well for you and your staff, and I congratulate you on your loyalty and good judgment. All I ask now is that you will continue to be guarded in what you say. A single unadvised word might interfere very materially with our efforts to trace the guilty ones and bring them to punishment."

And then I told him as much as I deemed wise of the facts of the abduction, of my chance finding of his master the previous night, and of my anxiety concerning his present condition.

"And above all things, Checkabeedy," I added in conclusion, "don't look solemn and distressed when Miss Evelyn is present. Before her, no matter how we really feel, we must appear confident."

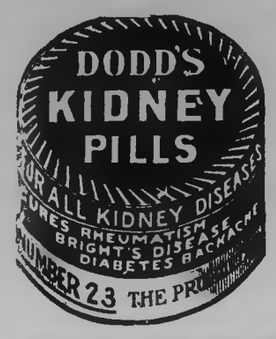
A little later the morning papers were brought in, and I scanned one after another in search of some new twist or turn of the story of the previous afternoon. The more conservative journals were inclined to make light of the scare. "Mr. Cameron," said one, "ceased to be active in the affairs of the Crystal Consolidated over two years ago. If he be ill, which is by no means certain, the fact can have but little real significance so far as the company of which he is the largest shareholder is concerned. It may be stated on the best authority that Mr. Cameron's shares have never been used speculatively, and that even in the event of his death they could not by any possibility come on the market, for the reason that he has provided a trust fund, by will, for the benefit of his niece, and that they are a part of that fund."

The sensational press, of course, still insisted that the Glass King was in a New England sanitarium, though they had failed to locate the institution. Despite my alarm I smiled at the thought of how their afternoon editions would have to eat the leaves the Welsh say.

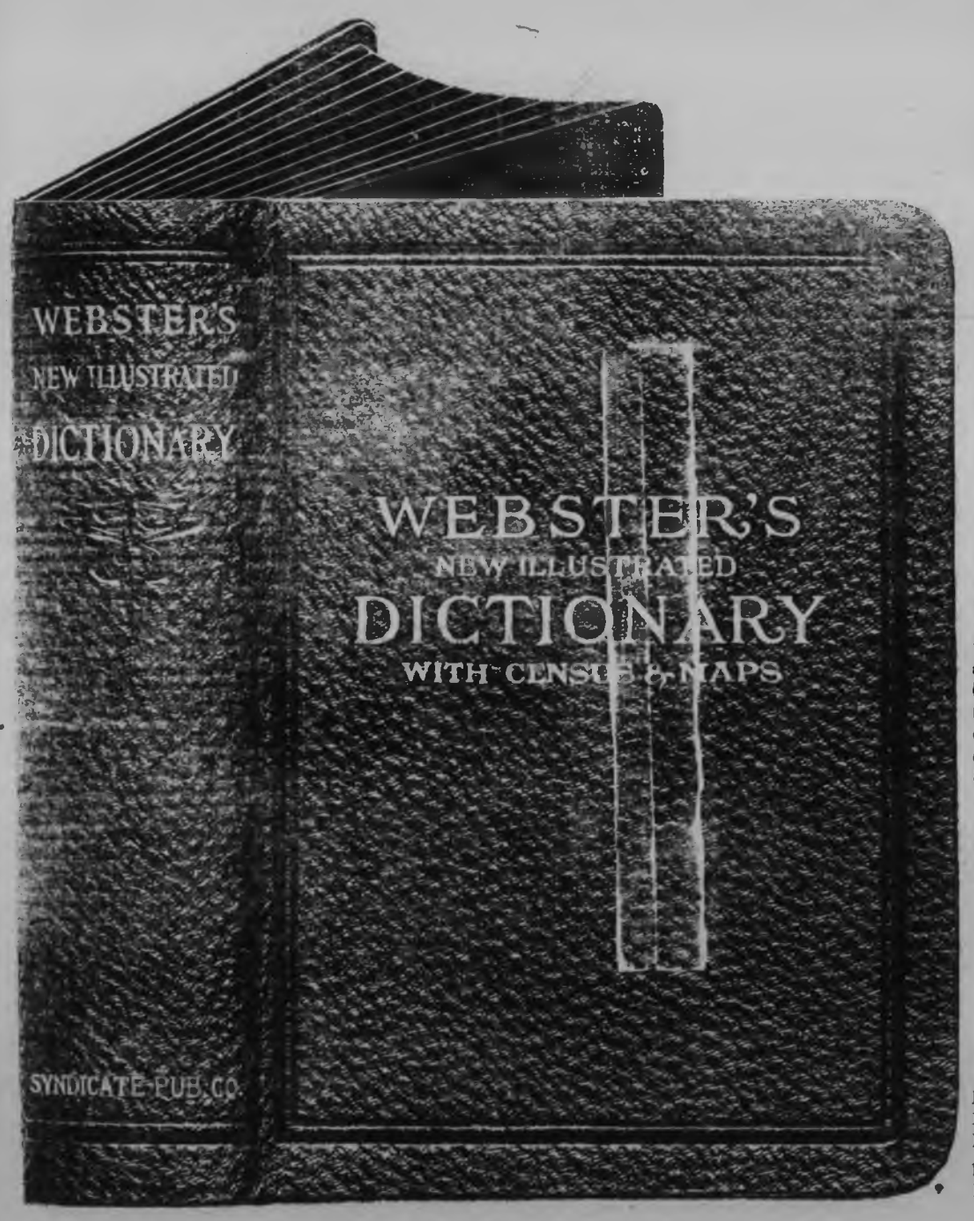
The papers finished, I grew restless. I desired constant news from the sick room, and lacking it, I roamed about the house, in nervous unease, my brain busy with conjecture, forming one theory after another, and dismissing each as readily. The situation was a tantalism. The answer to all the questions which had absorbed me for weeks lay dormant in the brain of the man sleeping beyond that closed door. Theories, therefore, were now more futile than ever. The one accomplishment to be asked was the arousing of an intellect, the stirring of a memory. Dr. Massey had promised that when Cameron awakened mental clarity would be restored, that he would be able to answer questions with intelligence.

It is hard to explain why I doubted this. I think it must have been something I saw in those dull, vacuous eyes, when I first looked into them under the pale light of the white-globed electric street lamps. If I had been forced to identify Cameron by those eyes alone, I should have said that this man was not he. They were so different, lacking all the expression of the Cameron eyes I knew. And yet I made no question as to his identity. I knew him, despite this; knew that strong chin and jaw, which spelled determination in two syllables; knew his broad, generous nose, and his high intellectual forehead. These points of recognition were so convincing, that I could afford to ignore the eyes I had never seen before and the wasted frame and the shrunken, unsteady legs.

At brief intervals I consulted the clocks. It was marvellous how the time dragged. And that nurse! Would he never have an errand outside the suite? I had told him I should spend the morning in the house, and that I wished to be informed of the slightest change in his patient. I must conclude, therefore, that Cameron was still sleeping, that Bryan was still watching.



From the fact that Evelyn had not yet appeared I drew a measure of consolation. If I could have tidings of even the slightest improvement in Cameron before meeting her, it would aid me in the assumption of confidence upon which I had determined.



At ten minutes past eight I was searching the encyclopaedias in the library for information on the subject of brain concussion. Already I had followed the trail through three volumes from "Brain" to "Nervous System" and from "Nervous System" to "Concussion," when an opening door caused me to turn eagerly. Mr. Bryan, the nurse, in a white uniform such as hospital doctors wear, stood on the threshold. The next moment I had risen from my crouching position before the bookcase and had met him midway across the room with anxious inquiry.

"Mr. Cameron awoke a quarter of an hour ago," he told me. "His power of speech has returned. He asked me where he was and what had happened. I told him he was in his own house, and that he had met with an accident."

What a Difference in the Morning.

Ben Hobson, who is possibly as well known to the local police as is a pet corn to the man whose foot it adorns, got an overdose of conviviality on Friday night. Ben got good and full. The eagle eye of P. C. Bullied quickly diagnosed Ben's indisposition, and the officer gathered him in. At Saturday's police court, in default of a $2 fine, Ben was sent to Castle Nesbitt where he can compose an ode to "Oh, What a Difference in the Morning!"

A Lindsay Poobah

Lindsay Warder:—Chairman Hugill Dobson, of the town property committee, has been a busy man of late, formulating re-organization plans to govern the fire hall, town hall, public library and Victoria Park. As a result of their investigations it is understood that Mr. Jas. Bell, driver of the fire team, and caretaker of the fire hall at the present time, will be created a commissioner, his duties to include those of caretaker of the fire hall and chief of the fire brigade, caretaker of the town hall and market buildings, caretaker of the public library and park commissioner. He will in future reside in a private house, although of necessity will have to sleep in the fire hall as at present. Mr. Bell also have the general superintendency of the park, keeping the grass cut, the trees in proper trim and the park tidy in every respect.

To Solve the Fly Test.

Sanitary Inspector Spence from personal and sanitary reasons does not like flies. When this hard-working official is deep in contemplation trying how to keep Peterborough clean and healthy, he does not like the pesky flies playing tag on the back of his neck or using his nose in hurdle races. Anyhow, the inspector has issued an ultimatum to the fly, contained in one word: "Skidoo!" To the people who have szaqles, where in the concomitant manure, the flies breed, in the millions, Mr. Spence says "keep your stable refuse absolutely covered, so closely covered that the most inquisitive egg burdened bluebottle or the horsefly cannot creep in."

Father Ferguson, sang high mass, and Rev. Father O'Brien officiated at the cemetery. Late Mr. Helliwell's Funeral.

The last mortal remains of the late W. J. Helliwell, of the Brinton Carpet Works, who met his death through shock from immersion in the Otonabee River a few nights ago, were laid to rest on Saturday afternoon in Little Lake cemetery.

The Rev. Jas. Price, rector of St. George's church, of which the deceased was a member, conducted the funeral service. At Comstock's, the employees of the Brinton Carpet Company said the Lord's Prayer in unison and at the mortuary chapel, the funeral service of the Anglican Church were conducted. Numerous floral tributes were sent.

Mr. Jas. O'Shea Laid to Rest.

Mr. Jas. O'Shea, Saturday morning received a telegram from Edmonton saying that the funeral of his father, the late Jas. O'Shea, took place at Rocky Mountain House, Alberta, on Wednesday, April 2nd, his friends there having decided on that course. Mr. O'Shea had tried to telegraph several times to Edmonton regarding particulars of his father's obsequies, and had intended going to Winnipeg, if necessary to meet the remains there and bring the body here for burial. He was told by wire from Winnipeg that the Edmonton line was down and it would cost $30 to get a message through.

Do You Realize What This Means to You, Mr. Business Man?

Weary Tiredness Changed to Vigor

That Played-Out Feeling Was Quickly Remedied and Health Restored.

Story of a Merchant Who Almost Lost His Business and His Health Through Neglecting Early symptoms of Disease.

"My life for years has been of a sedentary character," writes T. B. Titchfield, head of a well known firm in Buckingham. "Nine hours every day I spent at office work and took exercise only on Sunday. I disregarded the symptoms of ill-health which were all too apparent to my family. I grew thin, then pale, and before long I was jaundiced—eyes and skin were yellow, my strength and nerve energy were lowered, and I was quite unfitted for business. In the morning a lightness in the head, particularly when I bent over, made me very worried about my health. Most of the laxative medicines I found weakening, and knowing that I had to be at business every day I neglected myself rather than risk further weakness. Of course I grew worse, but by a happy chance I began to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I was forcibly struck by the fact that they neither caused griping or nausea and it seemed incredible that pills could tone, cleanse and regulate the system without causing any unpleasant after effects. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted with me just as gentle as nature—they gave new life to my liver, strengthened my stomach, and won me back to perfect good health. My skin is clear, dizziness has disappeared and my appetite, strength and spirits are perfect."

Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are sure to cure. Sold in 25c boxes, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers or postpaid from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Woman Fined Here Defended.

The citizens of the village of Millbrook are greatly worked up over the conviction of Mrs. Stevenson, who was fined $100 in that village and $40 here. More than one of Mrs. Stevensons patients, whom she is said to have cured, signified their willingness to testify in her behalf should she decide to enter a plea of not guilty. The little five-year-old girl, whom Mrs. Stevenson is credited with having snatched from the grave, was in the Millbrook court prepared to testify should the occasion demand. It is said that Mrs. Stevenson will make application to the authorities in the Old Country for a certificate, which will enable her to dispense the remedy that is said to have affected such remarkable cures.

FINE FOR BARE HATPINS.

Boston, Mass., April 7.—Massachusetts women who fail to cover the points of their hatpins with a device that will protect the public from injury will be liable to a fine of $100 after to-day, when the law barring bare hatpins becomes effective. The method of protection is left to the discretion of the wearer.

BANDIT LACOMBE DIVES TO TO DEATH FROM PRISON ROOF

Desperate Criminal Who Murdered Editor Suicides When Trapped on Roof of Prison

Paris, April 6.—The anarchist bandit, Lacombe, known as one of the most desperate criminals in Europe, committed suicide yesterday, in the prison De La Sante, where he was awaiting trial on the charge of assassinating M. Ducret, editor of the anarchist newspaper L'Idee Libre.

Lacombe had been arrested in Paris on March 11, after the police throughout France had sought him for several months. When taken into custody he was carrying in his pockets a small dynamite bomb, two dynamite cartridges, two automatic pistols, and a supply of ammunition. The mob tried to lynch him while he was on the way to the police station.

During his incarceration Lacombe confessed to the murder of Ducret, and admitted also killing a postmaster at Bezons, and a railroad employe at Les Aubrais, near Orleans.

Lacombe in some unexplained manner escaped from his prison cell after breakfast this morning. When the Wardens discovered his absence there was a tremendous commotion. The interior of the prison was searched, and the alarm was given outside. The whole neighborhood of the jail was patrolled for several hours by republican guards.

Some time afterwards Lacombe was found on the roof of the prison lying behind a chimney. When he saw his pursuers he stepped to the edge where he was surrounded on three sides by armed wardens.

As he was about to be seized, he turned, saluted the warden, smiled ironically and then jumped headfirst like a diver into the stone court yard several stories below, where he was dashed to death.

TRAMS CRASHED INTO STATION.

Turns Turtle and a Score of Passengers Are Injured—Fireman Garrett Killed.

Toledo, Ohio, April 5.—A Baltimore and Ohio passenger train crashed thru an open switch at Holtville about midnight, demolishing the station and turning turtle.

Fireman Jackson of Garrett, was killed; Grant Mason, who was in the station, was fatally injured, and a score of passengers were seriously injured. Five others may die.

The train was travelling at the rate of sixty miles an hour. Six of the seven coaches were overturned. According to the engineer there was no switch light to give warning. The switch was left open by the crew of a local freight train, it is alleged.

NEGRO MURDERER LYNCHED IN MONTANA.

Mondak, Mont., April 5.—J. C. Colhns, a negro, the slayer of Sheriff Thomas Courtney of Sheridan County was taken from the jail late last night and lynched. The mob hanged him to a telegraph pole and then set fire to his clothing in a futile effort to cremate his body, after they had riddled the swaying corpse with bullets.

Deputy Sheriff Richard Burmeister, who was shot by the negro, died last night in a local hospital.

THREE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH.

Deadwood, S. D., April 5.—While the father was in town and mother absent at an neighboring ranch on an errand of mercy the home of Mike Carney, near Ekelala, Mont., was destroyed by fire.

The three Carney children of three years, 2 years and 5 moutns respectively, all perished in the flames.

The distracted mother attempted to commit suicide.

Later.—One of the injured men died in the hospital this afternoon, bringing the death list to four.

JACM JOHNSON AS SMUGGLER

Chicago, April 7.—The case of Jack Johnson comes before the United States District Court here to-day in the charge of smuggling. It is claimed that the negro pugilist sneaked a $10,000 diamond necklace into the country from England without taking the trouble of accepting Uncle Sam into his confidence. The "white slave" case against Johnson comes up later.

THE GERM OF RHEUMATISM HAS BEEN ACTUALLY IDENTIFIED

Chicago Physician Believes it Lurks in Food and First Lodges in Tonsils

JAMES W. BUCKLIN

Mayor of Grand Junction, Col., who has undertaken to supply coal to the citizens of his town for $1.50 a ton. He secured possession of a seam of coal near at hand and is operating it as a municipal enterprise.

Chicago, April 6.—That rheumatism is caused by a germ was announced last night by Dr. Edward C. Rosenow of Rush Medical College, who also asserted he has discovered the identity of the hitherto unknown bacteria.

Dr. Rosenow made known his discovery for the first time to the staff of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute, to whom he described his research work. He said it had been carried on by experiments with rabbits, into which he injected rheumatic germs taken from human beings.

Dr. Rosenow found the tonsils of several patients were inflamed. He injected bacteria from tonsils into rabbits and the identical symptoms developed.

There is nothing to indicate the disease may be transmitted through air. Dr. Rosenow said, and it is believed the germs lurk in food and first lodge in the tonsils. His discoveries will be the basis for experimental work in search of a cure for rheumatism.

THE NEW U.S. TARIFF BILL CUTS DUTIES BY MANY MILLIONS

Sweeping Reductions Which Will Give Canada Wide Markets

Washington, April 7.—Removal of all tariff from many articles of food and clothing; broad reductions in the rates of duty on all necessaries of life; an increase of tariff on many luxuries; and a new income tax that would touch the pocket of every American citizen whose net income exceeds $4,000 are the striking features of the new Democratic tariff revision bill, presented to-day to the House.

Sugar would be free of duty in 1916, the bill proposing an immediate 25 per cent. reduction and the removal of the remaining duty in 1916.

Raw wool would be made free at once, with a correspondingly heavy reduction in the tariff on all woolen goods.

FIGHT TO FINISH IN NAVY BILL OBSTRUCTION WILL CONTINUE

Government May Introduce Closure To-day--Laurier Refused to Fix Date---A Desperate Game

Ottawa, April 7.—There seems no doubt now that it is a fight to a finish on the navy question. The Liberals have decided to continue their policy of defiant obstruction on the naval bill and the outlook now is that during the next few weeks Parliament will see some of the stormiest sittings in its history. It is expected that the naval bill will be on the boards to-day when the struggle will start. If the Liberals will agree to let the West Indies Treaty bill go through with a day's debate, and there is no reason why it should not, then the naval bill might be held over until Tuesday or Wednesday, but the Liberals have apparently decided on a policy of obstruction of everything. It is not expected that the notice of amendment to the rules which will prevent a minority holding up all business will be introduced until later in the week. The Liberals will be given a few days' grace and as soon as it is apparent that they intend to continue the blockade, the amendment will be introduced.

WHY IT WENT DOWN AND OUT

E. C. Clarkson, official liquidator of the Farmer's Bank, testified last week, before the House of Commons committee, that "the Farmers Bank was foredoomed to failure on account of the methods of inauguration and organization."

WAR CLOUD GROWS DARKER ON THE BALKAN PENNINSULAR

Situation is Acute and Ambassadors in London Hold Many Conferences

London, April 7.—The Montenegrin situation admittedly is acute to-day and the ambassadors were hurrying about to informal conferences, while expecting a request from Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to meet at the Foreign office.

All of the powers but Russia are represented on the international fleet blockading Antavari, and Russia has approved of the move. Two more German vessels to-day left Kiel to join the blockade.

Diplomats professed to believe that a peaceful solution of the difficulty would be found, but none of them gave any tangible idea of what form that solution might take.

Montenegrin Forces Grow.

Cettinje, April 7.- Planning another combined assault on Scutari today, the Montenegrins and Servians continued to defy the concert of the powers, while warships of five of the great nations maintained a strict blockade of Antivari, Montenegro's port on the Adriatic.

The forces besieging Scutari were augmented by fresh Servian artillery. King Nicholas and Premier Tomanovich were warmly congratulated by the people on their defiant note to the British admiral in command of the international fleet.

The British admiral sent the following message to the Montenegrin Premier, Dr. L. Tomanovich:

"I have the honor to inform you that the international fleet is assembled in Montenegrin waters as a protest against the non fulfilment of the wishes of the great powers. I desire to call your Excellency's attention to the presence of the fleet as a proof that the great powers are acting in concert, and request that their wishes be fulfilled without further delay. Please inform me immediately that your Government is ready to carry out the wishes of the great powers."

Austria is a Menace.

To this the Montenegrin Premier replied in a note expressing regret at the presence of the fleet, which he considered a violation of the neutrality proclaimed by the powers at the beginning of the war, and to the detriment of Montenegro. The Premier continued:

"Despite the pressure which the presence of the fleet implies, there will be no departure from an attitude which conforms to the necessities of the state of war existing between the allies and Turkey."

A brigade of Austrian troops from Cattaro has been manoeuvring near the Montenegrin boundary. The customary notice has not been given the Montenegrin Government, and Austria's action is considered unfriendly and menacing.

King Nicholas of Montenegro is quoted in the Paris Temps as saying that he has learned with sorrow that the cruiser Edgar Quinet will represent France in the naval demonstration on the Montenegrin coast.

SCANLON GETS OFF WITH ONE YEAR

Yesterday morning Patrick Scanlon pleaded guilty, before His Honor Judge Huycke, of stealing valuable game chickens from George Graham.

He, through Mr. Gordon, his counsel, pleaded not guilty to stealing $38 from Wilt Metheral, in the American Hotel. The evidence in this case was similar to that given in a former issue of The Times. He was found guilty.

Yesterday afternoon Patrick Scanlon was charged with stealing money from a man named Frye, in the Oriental Hotel. Frye said he left $51 in his pants' pocket on the night of the alleged theft. He missed the money next morning. Witness used to be about with the prisoner. There were three men sleeping in the room. The hour was fastened inside. Prisoner had been sleeping in the room for a month.

Mr. White, then bus driver for the Oriental on Feb. 28th, slept in the same room as Scanlon. He was called at 5.30 a.m. The door of his room was fastened on the inside with a hook. He came back to the room at 7 o'clock.

W. Kitney, fireman at the Oriental, was the next witness. He got there that morning at 6 a.m. He saw the prisoner come out of the bedroom from which the money was stolen. The other occupants of the bedroom were asleep in bed. Prisoner had been employed at the Oriental for some months. Witness is paid by the Park Commissioners, but not by the Police Commissioners for detective work.

Detective S. H. Newhall testified to prisoner, after arrest, asking him why he was held as a vagrant when he had money. The witness repeated the evidence he had formerly given, reported in these columns, regarding prisoner saying that "the young fellow in the Oriental never had a trunk."

A young man, an Italian, named Cavalier, whose absence delayed the court a long time, was next witness.

Cavalier said that he slept with Frye and White in a room at the Oriental on Feb. 27th. The door was bolted on the inside.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, for the defence, claimed there was not sufficient evidence to convict.

His Worship said he was sorry he could not agree with Mr. Gordon. He went over the evidence. His Honor said the most conclusive evidence of guilt was prisoner's statement to Detective Newhall.

County Crown Attorney Wood showed how the prisoner had been found guilty of forging a cheque for $192.07 previous to present cases. Prisoner had pleaded guilty to stealing Graham's game chickens worth $100 and two more deliberate cases of theft had been proven.

Mr. Gordon admitted that the evidence on the two money stealing cases was enough to convict. He asked consideration for the youth of the prisoner and for a light sentence.

His Honor said the prisoner was evidently a young man of more than ordinary ability. The theft of money was badly doubled by taking it from friends. He would not give him the full limit of the law, but send him where he would have time to consider how contemptible his thefts were. He was given one year in Central for one year on each charge, the sentences to run concurrently.

EUROPEAN WAR NEVER SO NEAR

Sir Edward Grey Made Plain Statement of This Fact To Commons To-day

London, April 7.—There would have been a European conflagration, but for the agreement reached by the powers regarding the frontiers of the future state of Albania, according to the opinion expressed by Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Sir Edward was emphasizing the importance of the international character of the naval demonstration now being made on the Montenegrin coast and the importance of upholding the European agreement on the subject of Albania when he made the grave statement:

"That agreement is essential to the peace of Europe and in my opinion it was only accomplished just in time to preserve the peace among the great powers."

Commander Sir James Whitney receiving the Suffragette envoy at Fort Toronto, 1913.

FIRST TRIP OF EMPRESS

New Palatial C. P. R. Ship Starts Around The World

One of the latest additions to the magnificent fleet of steamships of the C.P.R., commenced its first trip, starting out from Liverpool for an around-the-world tour. The new vessel is the much talked of Empress of Russia which will be a valuable addition to the already fine fleet of steamers now plying between Vancouver and the Orient. It was a unique idea to inaugurate this around-the-world trip on the initial voyage of the floating palace, instead of sending the vessel by way of Cape Horn, and needless to say the results justified the enterprise as to-day when the Empress left the docks at Liverpool it was with a full complement of passengers and thousands crowded the docks to bid them bon voyage. Included in the passenger list are many Canadians who left these shores a few weeks ago to be at Liverpool in time for the sailing of the Empress of Russia. The Empress of Asia follows a little later.

Beyond all question the most notable merchant steamers built in the United Kingdom during the past year were the two which the Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering Company constructed for the C.P.R. Company's transpacific service, which have received the titles of the Empress of Russia and the Empress of Asia. Though outwardly the vessels are identical in appearance there is a difference in the interior work, the Empress of Russia, being decorated in the French style, mainly Louis Quinze and Louis Seize, while the Empress of Asia will be representative of the English style of the Georgian period, which is particularly effective on board ship. The leading dimensions are: length 590 ft., breadth 68 ft., the depth 46 ft., the gross tonnage being in the neighborhood of 15,000 tons. A feature which catches the eye of the man who has but a casual acquaintance with ships, is the cruiser stern, which gives a distinctly naval touch, besides conveying the idea that a fast turn of speed can be attained. In point of fact the speed will be 18 knots per hour. Accommodation has been provided for 1,100 passengers in all—200 first, 100 second, and 800 third class—and as the officers and crew will number 470, the total complement will be 15ut. Elaborate precautions have been taken to secure the safety of all, and should any accident occur, there would be little chance of the ship sinking, the vessel being provided with double and number of water-tight compartments called for by the Board of Trade.

Coming to the general design, the vessels have orlop, lower, main and shelter decks, while above the latter is a long combined forecastle and bridge, the bridge deck being extended from stern to side stranchions. Above, again there is a promenade deck 350 feet long. Here are situated the many first class public rooms, including the lounge, a particularly fine room 48 feet long and 30 feet wide with a height in the centre of 11 feet. There are also waiting rooms, smoking rooms, and verandah cafe. The vessels are fitted up in the most luxurious style and the dining room is a new departure—the tables being arranged for two and four persons, while in quiet alcoves there are tables for a party of six. There is also a well equipped gymnasium and up-to-date laundry, while the kitchen and serving rooms are all that can be desired. The vessel is fitted with powerful engines and a long range Marconi system of telegraphing in addition to semaphore signalling from the bridge. The "Empress of Russia" is scheduled to arrive at Vancouver on June 7.

LADY CARSON DEAD.

Belfast, April 7.—Lady Edward Sarson, wife of Sir Edward Sarson, the former Solicitor-General, and now leader of the Unionist movement in Ulster, died yesterday.

GERMANY LOOKS FOR A GENERAL EUROPEAN CONFLAGRATION

Imperial Chancellor Says That the Empire Must Stand Ready With Last Man

Berlin, April 7.—Dr. Von Bethman-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, while submitting the Government's bills increasing the army, and introducing new forms of taxation in the Imperial Parliament to-day, delivered a striking speech whose keynote was, "A European conflagration in all probability will not occur, but, if outside forces should threaten us, Germany must stand ready with her last man."

The good intentions of the French and Russian Governments were beyond question, declared the Chancellor, but Germany must reckon with the great force of modern public opinion which in the form of French warlike patriotism and Russian Pan-Slavism, threatens the peace of the world, against the wishes of the great masses of both peoples.

Little Chance For Naval Holiday.

It was noteworthy that in the chancellor's speech Great Britain was referred to only as a pacific factor. Dr. Von Bethman-Hollweg, although indicating by his manner that he had little belief in the practicality of the suggestion made by Winston Spencer Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, of Britain, for a year's naval holiday said Germany was willing to consider concrete proposals from the British Government.

The Imperial Chancellor opened his speech by pointing out that the strength of the army had not kept pace with the growth of the German nation and asked: "Could Germany allow itself the luxury of dispensing with tens of thousands of trained soldiers."

France Looking For War.

The Chancellor then reiterated Prince Bismark's saying, "If the French wait for us to attack them they will wait forever," and concluded that there was every reason to believe that the present French Government wished to live in peace with Germany and that the French masses wished it too, but the warlike party in France counted on the superiority of the French army, on the belief that German cannon and military instructors had been tried and found wanting by Turkey, on the Russian alliance and perhaps on British assistance, while Germany could not ignore the aspirations of such French and Pan-Salvic circles.

CITY COUNCIL IN REGULAR SESSION DOES MUCH "BIZ"

Rubidge Street Closing is Referred Back to Committee of the Whole for Consideration—Plumbers Make a Kick

Last night the City Council met in regular session with His Worship Mayor Bradburn in the chair.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. G. W. Mulligan asked to hold services in Central Park.—Granted, on motion of Ald. Duncan.

A petition from a number of citizens was read asking that Rubidge street, or that part of it now closed temporarily by by-law, be opened. The pith of this petition was given in yesterday's issue.

A petition was read from East Ward citizens asking for a footbridge at London street.

A communication was read from C. B. Routley, regarding his property at 411 Downie street.

The Salvation Army asked for a grant for their public institution. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Peterborough Light and Power Co. wrote asking permission to place three poles on Auburn street. Referred to Property Committee.

Judge Edmison, in regard to Rubidge street petition, said he was not authorized to speak except for the signers of said petition. He and his fellow signers thought the street should be opened up. This subject was brought before the City Council 18 years ago. The closing of the street would injure property adjoining.

The Mayor explained that the by-law only lets the W. Hamilton Co. have the street subject to three months' notice to vacate.

Judge Edmison was sure that thoroughfare could be made a good street, with little grading.

Ald. Buller read a report from Engineer Hay against Mr. Edmison's contention.

Judge Edmison explained that all the signers of the petition were property owners not tenants.

Ald. Johnston, as mover of the by-law giving the Hamilton Co. permission to use the street, explained that all the portion used by the company is built-up-ground. "We will all be dead before a bridge is built over the Rubidge street creek." The Hamilton Co. has done good for the city. It is only a loan of the street.

Judge Edmison said that his half acre on the corner was offered $1,000 more for if the street was opened.

Ald. Green endorsed Ald. Johnston's views. He never thought until last night, that any one ever thought of opening up that part of Rubidge street. If a bridge were placed over the creek and with so steep a grade leading to it, children would be endangered.

Ald. Buller advocated the ideas promulgated by the last two speakers. To erect a high level bridge that would be necessary, would be a costly undertaking. It is only a loan of the street.

Ald. Langford endorsed the sentiments of the former Aldermen.

Ald. Gordon said the danger was to give corporations to much power. He thought the matter should be referred to the Board of Works.

Judge Edmison explained that the power of the Council to lease public property is at an end.

Ald. Duffus, as Ald. Buller, wanted to have the matter settled at once, endorsed Ald. Gordon's suggestion.

Mr. Geo. Gladman, president of the W. Hamilton Co. said the company did not want to close the street permanently. If the Council did not intend to erect a bridge, the company only wanted to put up a shed. He wanted to put galvanized iron sheds down at three months' notice.

Ald. Buller moved that the question of the Rubidge street loan be referred back to a Committee of the Whole.

Ald. Gillespie thought this was only fair.

The Mayor advocated sending the matter back to Committee of the Whole, provided the Hamilton Co. assume legal obligations, should they be given the street.

Mr. R. J. Todd, of the Christian Scientists, complained that the Christian Science Church was not mentioned in the town's advertising. He asked for advertising in a Christian Science paper.

Mr. Robt. Pollick spoke regarding the London street Bridge. Alds. Johnston and Anderson endorsed the London street bridge suggestion.

Ald. Buller said this matter might be settled right here, and not let the committee representing the asked for bridge go away fooled. The matter is now before the Board of Works.

The local plumbers, who addressed the meeting, will be heard at next meeting of the Property Committee to consider changes for smoke testing.

A TEST CASE.

Against Law to Hold Dual Position as Water Commissioner and School Trustee.

Toronto, April 7.—A decision has been given by Judge Morgan unseating Dr. Irwin from the Water, Power and Light Commission of the village of Weston on the ground that he is a high school trustee. The commission consists of three members, and the decision would create a vacancy and consequently an election. Dr. Irwin is considering the question of an appeal with a view of determining whether the offices cannot be jointly held.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 396 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Examiner says: "The Liberal party is still in the ring." Quite true; but the stillness is that of a dead rabbit.

The Iowa city of 40,000 people which elected a switchman as mayor on Monday probably thinks that it is on the right track.

A perusal of the first chapter of Hon Ted Roosevelt's autobiography convinces us that there is not going to be any room in it for anything but himself.

A Western newspaper prints a long article telling "how to meet a tornado." But nobody wants to meet one. What all of us want to know is how to get out of the way.

Now the German war chest in the Julius tower at Spandau is to hoard $90,000,000 of idle money—enough to meet expenses of a war for the first four and a half days. But such an object lesson is worth a good deal.

A New Jersey man predicts that in ten years graft will be unknown in politics and business in the United States. But he is either a chronic optimist or the millennium is much nearer than we ever dreamed it to be.

Reform always causes somebody to suffer. It is estimated that the Missouri law prohibiting free lunches will save the saloon men of that State $250,000 a year, but just think how it is going to cut down the revenue of the specialists in stomach diseases.

The new spring hats with the rudder in the back, which we see on well dressed Peterborough ladies, will probably enable a convivial person to steer a straight course, provided his cargo doesn't list too far to port or starboard.

The current press contains portraits of Lillie Emmerson, the English suffragette, who was sent to prison for three months. The pictures show Miss Emmerson in prison garb and also in society "full dress." The latter costume gives a much deeper conception of her real person

THE OTHER EXTREME.

One day a Toronto clergyman declined an offered job in a big New York church at a high salary. Next day another clergyman was found who had declined the offer of a similarly high salary. Matters progressed until now there is a regular epidemic of salary-declining, and the ministers are so afraid that they may be thought mercenary that the big churches are up against it for spiritual advisers. Like most other things it is being overdone.

MODERN SURGERY.

Dr Brady, the celebrated surgeon, says. "dynamite would be a bad thing to use to destroy an ant's nest in an elephant's ear. It might kill 98 per cent. of ants, but it would cost 100 per cent. of elephant. Lukewarm water would drown all the ants and save the elephant.

"Antiseptics are not necessarily good germicides, and germicides are not always good disinfectants. In killing the rats in father's barn we must be careful not to kill father.

Lord Lister introduced carbolic acid into the operating room and established the working basis for the era of antiseptic surgery. But Lister lived to see the passing of antiseptic surgery and the dawn of aseptic surgery. The endeavor to-day is not to kill the germs in the operating room, but to keep them out of the operating room.

"Carbolic acid is the type of all antiseptics, the criterion by which all germicides are judged. But it is a deadly poison. Too often we discover that the carbolic salve so popular in domestic surgery almost kills father. It unquestionably disgusts the germs, but it sometimes destroys the finger. Gangrene, necessitating amputation, has very frequently been the cost of antisepsis attempted with carbolic salve. Carbolic acid in any form whatever delays, if it does not prevent, healing of minor wounds. Indeed, the toll of injury and death from its former employment by Lister's antiseptic technique in the operating room was really what instituted the present aseptic surgical technique, which means absolute cleanliness without poisonous and irritating germicides.

Germs exist everywhere that civilized man exists. We can't be sure that a surface is free from germs until we remove the germs by means of ordinary cleansing, plus germicides. And when the surface happens to be a portion of human body we must take care that our germicides kill only the rats in the barn.

Preceding an operation we cleanse the skin by ordinary means and give it one thorough application of some germicide, such as ordinary tincture of iodine. Then we take exquisite pains to keep it sterile by employing only sterile instruments, dressings and hands. The modern operating room is no more uninviting for sick people than it is for healthy germs It is cleaner than any woman's kitchen; you could eat off the floor if you weren't so very nervous. Nothing poisonous is permitted within the door.

"Nature is the greatest surgeon. She heals all wounds by her own peerless methods. Your own blood serum is the best germicide for any wound once the wound is clean."

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I was pleased to see in your paper of Saturday that the liao wire member for West Peterborough, is still keeping up the active interest in local affairs that has characterized his course in Parliament.

This city, with its great revenue collected, as compared with our population, not only deserves, but requires a larger Custom House.

When the Public Works Department is considering a site for the new building, I would respectfully suggest to them to keep an observant eye on Central Park. That beautiful spot is now surrounded by some of Peterborough's best buildings. We have there the Armories, the Collegiate, the Y.M.C.A., the Public Library, etc. Now, Mr. Editor, would not a fine new government guilding there round up matters? Why not make Central Park a show place for both our citizens and strangers to the city? This would be an ideal spot for a Custom House which could be placed advantageously on either McDonel or Murray street.

Stomach Always Baulked, Had Constant Indigestion

Smell of Cooking Made Him Sick—Bilious Two Days a Week.

Cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Mr. Clemmons' experience is not unusual. Nowadays poor stomachs are more the rule than the exception But the proper treatment is sure to make a quick cure. You can always depend on Dr. Hamilton's Pills, they reach the trouble at once, go right to business, work while you sleep and have you feeling better if not cured next morning.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.Q. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend who had been cured of a similar condition, advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvelous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon grew within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a live man."

Be advised—use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c per box, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ontario.

DAMS ON THE UPPER TRENT CANAL BREAK

Orillia Packet: Mr. Paris Wood, of Gloucester Pool, is in town this week. He tells the Packet that there have been heavy floods in the lower Severn this spring. The old dam at Port Severn was carried away about a week ago. The dam at Six Mile Lake is also gone. The Port Severn dam will have to be replaced before there can be satisfactory navigation between that point and Gloucester Pool. It will be necessary for the canal purposes. The Pool has been lowered four or five feet. When the dam gave way the flood carried off the logs piled on the bank by Jos. Leduc and Louis Caskinett. It was feared the bridge would give away, but it stood the strain.

The breaking of the dam gave some relief at the Big Chute, where the Simcoe Railway and Power plant was threatened with a flood, both from above and from below. The water had risen below to within two feet of the floor of the power house, while above it was within an inch of overflowing the canal feeding the waterwheels. The stoplogs were not removed from the dam in the Pretty Channel early enough, with the result that when the men went to take them out, they found it impossible, as the water was rushing over the piers. It was this that backed up the water within a few inches of the floor of the Orillia power house at the Ragged Rapids. No damage has been done, however, and the water is now receding.

CHINESE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY OPENS

Peking, April 8.—The new Chinese National Assembly opened to-day, being the first Congress under republican government. There are about eight hundred members in the lower house and three hundred in the upper chamber. For the first meeting the members will exercise a double function, being, in the first place, practically delegates to a constitutional convention, for the body is charged with drafting a constitution and the establishment of a permanent form of government. After the function is over the members will revolve themselves into legislators.

"THE COUNTY SHERIFF"

The theatre-goers have a treat in store when "The County Sheriff" comes to The Grand Opera House, Saturday, April 12th, matinee and night. This is one of those quiet melodramas that burns little powder. Still abounding in heart interest and thrilling climaxes, it tells a beautiful love story af the plains, with just enough comedy to relieve the intensity of the dramatic situation. The story is told in four acts and special scene and stage equipments are carried for the entire production. Mr. Lem B. Parker, the author, has added very little fictitious embellishment to the already interesting story. The costumes, which are historically correct, is a feature of the performance. "All the wotld loves a lover" is an old adage and a true one, and one of the most fascinating stories of the love of two men for one women that was ever told, is the basis of the play. "The County Sheriff."

IF CONSTIPATED OR BILIOUS "CASCARETS"

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Get a 10-cent box.

Take a Cascaret to-night to cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous, upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out. Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action; a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

MAPES-JOHNSTON MINING CO., LTD.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

The Elk Lake fire didn't damage Mapes-Johnston camp—camp is seven miles from Elk Lake, but the opening of the ELK LAKE Branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad gives the Mapes-Johnston Mining Company's property an outlet for shipping ore heretofore lacking.

DEVELOPMENTS

The Mapes-Johnston has two shafts in good ore—No. 1—90 feet deep, with native silver showing in a big eight-inch vein all the way down the shaft—vein big and strong at bottom of shaft—a true fissure vein.

SILVER—9,000 Oz. Ore——2,200 Oz. Ore—SILVER

Real SILVER and SILVER ORE on the Mapes-Johnston—Not on adjacent or adjoining property—BUT ON the MAPES-JOHNSTON. Not 30 or 50 feet to drift to it, but on the surface—in both shafts—in several veins.

Not 62-oz. ore, or 100-oz. ore, but 9000 oz. ore—assayed by real commercial assayers—not assayed with the eye or by interested friends—no guesswork—real assays.

Shaft No. 2 is 75 feet from Shaft No. 1, and 65 feet deep—shaft No. 2 is sunk on junction of two immense veins—5-foot drift at 65-foot level shows over 9000 oz. of silver to the ton in 9-inch pay streak—2200 oz. of silver to ton in wall rock each side of vein.

RICHEST SILVER ORE OF THE NORTH

comes from just such a vein junction as the Mapes-Johnston has where these big values were found.

Small Allotment of Treasury Shares

is offered for Public Subscription at 20 cents per share—par value $1.00 per share.

This is the first public offering, but no better offering at anything like the price could be made. The property was purchased, paid for and developed to present status by Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and private subscriptions were made at higher price than present offering.

$100 BUYS 500 SHARES—$500 BUYS 2,500 SHARES—OTHER AMOUNTS IN PROPORTION.

MORE TREASURY SHARES—$27,800—AFTER ALMOST 3 1-2 YEARS' WORK

than when property was under option—Before property was paid for—Silver discovered—shafts sunk—20 veins trenched—property patented—9000-oz. Silver ore found and assayed—Mapes-Johnston Treasury had 300,000 shares.

Toronto, February 1st, 1913.

Note.—The MAPES-JOHNSTON property is paid for, patented and title thereto in the name of the Company. The funds for operating and developing up-to-date were furnished by the Mapes-Johnston Syndicate, and only 30,200 Treasury Shares were sold before Preston Limited, secured control of and an option on the balance to be sold. Before offering shares to the public, Preston, Limited, had 58,000 shares donated to the Treasury by Messrs. Mapes & Johnston to carry out the emergency expenses of putting the property on an active operating basis. NOW

WHEN MAKING YOUR PURCHASE MENTION THE TIMES

TREE THAT EXHIBITS ANGER

In Idaho a Species Quakes and Emits an Unpleasant Odor When Disturbed.

In Idaho there exists a species of the acacia tree which is entitled to be classed as one of the wonders of plant life. This tree, Harper's Weekly states, attains a height of about eight feet. When full grown it closes its leaves together in coils each day at sunset and curls its twigs to the shape of pigtails. When the tree has thus settled itself for its night's sleep it is said that if touched it will flutter as if agitated or impatient at the disturbance. The oftener, it is averred, the foliage is molested, the more violent will become the shaking of the branches. Finally, it is further alleged, if the shaking be continued, the tree will at length emit a nauseating odor quite sufficient to induce a headache in the case of the person disturbing the tree.

In Idaho it is called the "angry tree" and it is said that it was discovered by men who, on making camp for the night, placed one end of a canvas covering over one of the sensitive branches, using it for a support. Immediately the tree began to jerk its branches sharply. The motion continued, with increasing "nervousness," until at last came a sickening odor that drove the tired campers to a more friendly location.

Curiosity prompted an investigation. One of the "angry trees" was dug up and thrown to one side. Immediately upon being removed from the ground it is said that the tree opened its leaves, its twigs lost their pigtails and for something over an hour and a half the outraged branches showed their indignation by a series of quakings, which grew weaker and weaker and ceased when the foliage had become limp and withered.

All the Tired Nervous Women

CAN FIND A CURE IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Madame Perrault Tells How She Cured Her Kidneys With Dodd's Kidney Pills, and Found Health and Contentment.

Verner, Ont., April 7.—(Special.)—"I am very content. Dodd's Kidney Pills have made me well." Those are the words of Madame Eugene Perreault, a highly-respected lady of this place, and mother of a large family. For twenty years she was a sufferer. But, let her tell her own story.

"I was always tired and nervous," she states. "I felt heavy and sleepy after meals. My limbs were heavy, and I had a dragging sensation across my loins. My skin itched and burned at night. I had a bitter taste in my mouth, especially in the morning. In twenty years I hardly knew what it was to have a well moment. Then I commenced to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Six boxes cured me."

Madame Perrault's symptoms were those of kidney disease. They are the symptoms of nine out of ten of the nervous, rundown, pain-racked women of Canada. Madame Perrault found a speedy and complete cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills. They simply cured her kidneys.

FOOD WE ALL USED TO HAVE

Remembrance of Childhood Feasts Spoiled Wealthy Man's Expensive and Well-Ordered Dinner.

Zona Gale, writing a story called "The Bridge" in the American magazine, presents a broker named Cassoday dining at his club in New York. While he dines, Cassoday is visited by a mental reincarnation of himself called Littlechild. The story then goes on:

"'What's this?' said Littlechild over the soup. 'Green turtle. But I remember the chicken soup we used to have the day after mother had had boiled chicken dinner and dumplings. What's that? I don't know "sole." The fish we used to have was baked browner outside and whiter inside, with no hot gravy—oh, not like this at all. What's that? Mother wouldn't have done any filet tricks. But I can smell the roast beef when she was thickening the brown gravy just after she took the pan out of the wood stove oven—don't you know how we stopped to sniff with every armful of wood we brought in? Endive? I can't place it—you know we used to run out and pick the lettuce last thing before we sat down at table—we got it from the shady part of the patch toward the well-house Glace what? Yes, but don't you remember her apple puddings with cinnamon in the sauce? Apples off the seedling that grew by the corn crib——'

"Cassoday pushed back his chair

"'Wasn't it right, sir?'" asked the waiter anxiously

"'Devilish right, thanks,'" said Cassoday.

HIS FIRST USE FOR WEALTH

For a Millionaire, Mose's Aspirations Would Seem to the Ordinary Man Singularly Modest.

E. F. Swinney, president of the First National bank of Kansas City, who was born in the south, says the Saturday Evening Post. He goes back home once or twice a year and it is part of the homecoming program to have Old Mose polish his shoes. Old Mose prides himself on the fact that he has known "Misteh Eddie" since he was born—and "his daddy befo' him."

When Mr. Swinney was there recently Mose was polishing his shoes. He stopped and asked:

"Misteh Eddie, how much is a million dollahs?"

"Well, Mose," Mr. Swinney answered, "you have seen ten dollars, haven't you? Now, imagine a pile of those stacks and you have a million dollars. Then ten times that and you have $1,000. Then ten times that and you have $10,000—and ten times that and you have a million."

"Misteh Eddie," continued Mose exceedingly troubled, "would all th' silver dollahs go on that table you have?"

"No, Mose—not if they were piled to the ceiling. What would you do if you had a million silver dollars, Mose?"

Mose stopped shining. He pondered for a minute. Then he said:

"Well, Misteh Eddie, I reckon I'd have mah cistehn cleaned out."

Deceived by Appearances

John Melpolder, superintendent of the Boys' club, is very fond of walking. Melpolder was camping recently north of Broad Ripple and decided to walk to Indianapolis. The roads were dusty and the sun beat down unrelentingly. When Melpolder reached Broad Ripple he had covered ten or twelve miles and looked like a tramp. Coming to a fork in the road and not being sure of the correct route, Melpolder approached two girls and a young man sitting in the shade.

"Can you tell me how to get to Indianapolis?" he asked. The correct road was pointed out and as he started to plod on one of the girls said:

"Why you are not going to walk, are you?"

"Why, yes," said the pedestrian, "I thought I would."

The young man fumbled in his pocket. "Here," he said, fishing out a dime, "you better ride the street car in. You can catch it about a square up the road."

Then each girl handed him a coin. Melpolder thanked them kindly for their proferred assistance, but declined the offer, saying that he preferred to walk. When he started on they looked after him in open-eyed astonishment.—Indianapolis News.

If you are troubled with sleeplessness, try one of the following simple remedies before going to a doctor with the plea that he give you something to make you sleep:

Drink a glass of warm water before going to bed instead of the usual glass of cold water. Sip it slowly, and if possible eat a small biscuit or cracker with it.

Avoid all mental exercise for at least half an hour before retiring; allow the brain to rest and become calm before you attempt to sleep.

Stand before an open window and breathe deeply, inhaling through the mouth and exhaling through the nose; then lie down and continue doing this until sleep overtakes you.

Keep the eyeballs looking down, or roll them from one side to the other, counting each time they move.

This is the principle by which we are told to count sheep leaping over a log. The sound of water dropping slowly into a pan or the ticking of a clock will occupy and quiet the brain, and looking steadily at one object or a point of light will bring the blessing of sleep to weary, wakeful eyes.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a tree where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is repulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the head of an opium pipe under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter appears mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a motor boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X.—Johnson is allowed to go after being severely questioned. Evelyn takes the latter to an expert in Chinese literature who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

CHAPTER XI.—Clyde seeks assistance from a Chinese fellow college student who recommends him to Yup Sing, most prominent Chinaman in New York. The latter promises to seek information of Cameron among his countrymen.

CHAPTER XII.—Among Cameron's letters is found one from one Addison, who speaks of seeing Cameron in Pekin. Cameron had frequently declared to Clyde that he had never been in China.

CHAPTER XIII.—Clyde calls on Dr. Addison. He learns that Addison and Cameron were at one time intimate friends, but had a falling out over Cameron's denial of having been seen in Pekin by Addison.

CHAPTER XIV.—Clyde goes to meet Yup Sing, sees Johnson, attempts to follow him, falls into a basement, sprains his ankle and becomes unconscious.

CHAPTER XV.—Clyde is found by Miss Clement, a missionary among the Chinese. He is sick several days as a result of inhaling charcoal fumes. Evelyn tells Clyde of a peculiarly acting anesthetic which renders a person temporarily unconscious. Murphy is discovered to have mysterious relations with the Chinese.

"Yes, yes," I hurried him. "And what then? Did he inquire for any one?"

"No. For all of a minute he lay looking about the room without another word. Then, in a puzzled way, he repeated: 'My own house!' and asked, 'Where is this house?' And I told him. He did not seem to recognize the room at all."

"Is he still awake?"

"Oh, no. Dr. Massey left directions that he was to be given some nourishment—a raw egg and milk—and then another powder to make him sleep. He turned on his side after that, and in less than three minutes was in a deep slumber once more."

I was annoyed that I had not been called. I let myself hope that sight of me might possibly have stirred his memory even though the familiar objects of his bedchamber failed. I said as much to the short, broad-shouldered nurse, whose twinkling eyes were in violent contrast with his thin-lipped, grave, determined mouth.

"Dr. Massey's orders were that for twelve hours no one should be admitted to the room," was his unanswerable rejoinder.

"Which means not until after five o'clock, this evening?"

"Exactly, sir. But I shall report to you everything he says as nearly as possible in his own words."

"Very well," I said. "I shall spend the day here." My tone conveyed dismissal and I fear it still smacked of annoyance. Mr. Bryan, however, gave no sign of resentment. His eyes were still kindly merry, his mouth still inspired reliance. He turned towards the door, saying:

"He'll probably sleep four hours at least, Mr. Clyde. If you wish to go out, there's no reason why you shouldn't."

I meant to reply. My lips were already framing a sentence, when a tableau checked me.

Evelyn Grayson was standing in the doorway. She wore a clinging house gown of pale blue, cut low at the throat, and bordered with a deep collar of Irish lace. The rose flush of youth and health tinted the cream of her complexion and a shaft of sunlight from a near window made a glittering golden nimbus of her hair. With wide, startled eyes she was gazing at Bryan, or, to be more exact, at the snowy linen duck in which he was clad, and which must have held for her a perplexing significance.

The nurse had halted, deferentially standing aside at sight of the girl whose young beauty seemed to dazzle him.

For a moment the stillness and silence were absolute. Then Evelyn turning her gaze upon me advanced quickly, with a little questioning cry:

"Philip!"

"You're surprised to find me here," I interpreted, with hands outstretched.

"And to—" she began, laying her fingers against my palms.

"To find a nurse here, as well," I finished for her. "Let me introduce Mr. Bry—" But when I would have presented him he had already gone.

"But who is ill?" she questioned in nervous haste. "What—"

It were well, I thought, to have the revelation over and done with as speedily as possible.

"Your uncle. I brought him home at two o'clock this morning."

I do not know what I expected, but I am sure I was not prepared for what ensued. Her fingers, suddenly releasing themselves from my fond but feeble support, clutched wildly at the lapels of my coat for support, as she burst into a passion of sobs. In vain I made efforts to comfort and quiet her. She became hysterical. She laughed and cried by turns, while I, making bold to regard her as a sorrowing child rather than the woman she was, held her close and murmured all the soothing, encouraging words and phrases I could conjure.

"I—I—am so glad," she whispered at last, her big liquid blue eyes swimming, her fair face wet with the torrent of her emotion. "I—I— am so happy."

Presently I placed her in a great, cavernous leathern chair, and lent her my handkerchief—assisted her, indeed—to remove the evidences of her tumultuous joy. After which I sat down opposite her and answered a hundred questions, still marvelling at the contrariety of the feminine temperament which defies disaster dry-eyed and over good tidings is like Niobe all tears.

Evelyn's emotions alone considered, it was, therefore, just as well that Cameron had not returned robust and of sane mind. Her rejoicing undiluted might have resulted in nervous breakdown. As it was, the mere fact that he was weak and a trifle distraught—which was the mildly equivocal way in which I softened the truth for her—had for her fortitude the revivifying potency of a tonic. It so balanced her joy with anxiety that she grew strong in surprisingly short space.

"I do not see why a nurse is at all necessary," she objected, at once. "I shall nurse him, myself. Louis and I can do everything that is required."

"But Dr. Massey—" I began. Whereupon she interrupted me:

"Dr. Massey probably thinks I am a foolish, frivolous child. I shall nurse Uncle Robert even if I have to dismiss Dr. Massey and get another physician."

There was nothing to be gained by opposing her at this time, so I held my non-committal peace, doubting, nevertheless, the practicability of her proposition. But to her next proposal I must needs interpose the obstructive truth.

"Come," she commanded, brushing back from her temples with both hands the encroaching golden halo, with the gesture of one who prepares for conquest, wiping away, as it were, the last clinging vestiges of her emotional weakness. "Come, let us go to him, together."

She was on her feet before I could restrain her.

"Not now, Evelyn," I said, quietly, and, at the risk of seeming rudeness, sat still.

"But, why?" And there was a hint of suspicion in the look she gave me.

"He is asleep," I told her. And when she had relaxed into the great chair again, I added, temporizing, "Mr. Bryan will let us know when he wakens."

Her disappointment was undisguised, and in secret I sympathized with her. She was experiencing something of that which had come to me when Bryan had refused me converse with his patient. But it were better to divert than to commiserate, and so I said:

"This is the day I am to hear from Miss Clement."

"Is it?" she asked, differently, the disappointment still rankling. "I didn't know."

"She has promised me important information before three o'clock. If she keeps her word, this whole perplexing mystery may very shortly be cleared up."

"Isn't that what you would call supererogatory?" she asked, smiling.

"I should think Uncle Robert could tell all that is needed, now, himself."

I was at a loss for a moment how to answer her; and in that moment the telephone broke in, and did away with the necessity of response.

The instrument was on the writing table at my elbow, and with a "Shall I?" to Evelyn, I took the receiver from the hook and bent to the transmitter.

"Yes," I said. "Miss Grayson is here. Who is it, please?" I thought I recognized Miss Clement's voice, and I was not wrong. But, after all, it was I she wanted. She had called up my rooms and my office, and, unable to get me at either place, had taken the chance that Evelyn might aid her to my discovery.

"You have learned something?" I asked, disguising as well as I could my burning interest. If possible, I would keep from Evelyn the least suggestion of how vitally important I regarded the news I hoped for.

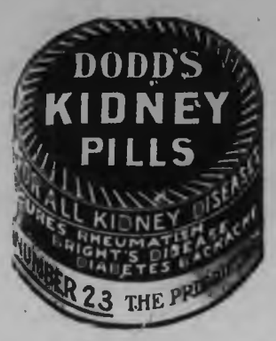
"I hardly know how to explain it to you," came Miss Clement's reply. "I was on the verge of what I am sure was a most pregnant revelation. I was to be given names and dates and circumstances. I had been promised these by one in whom I put the greatest reliance. And now I am asked to wait another twenty-four hours. Something has happened, my confidant tells me; something puzzling and utterly unexpected, and those who know most of the matter are now most at sea."

Evelyn must have seen me smile. It was quite evident to me that Miss Clement was in touch with some one well informed, but it was not that which provoked the smile. I smiled because I felt that Cameron in some way had outwitted his captors and gained his freedom. This was the unexpected happening which had thrown the villainous slant-eyed camp into confusion, and I rejoiced at my friend's intrepidity.

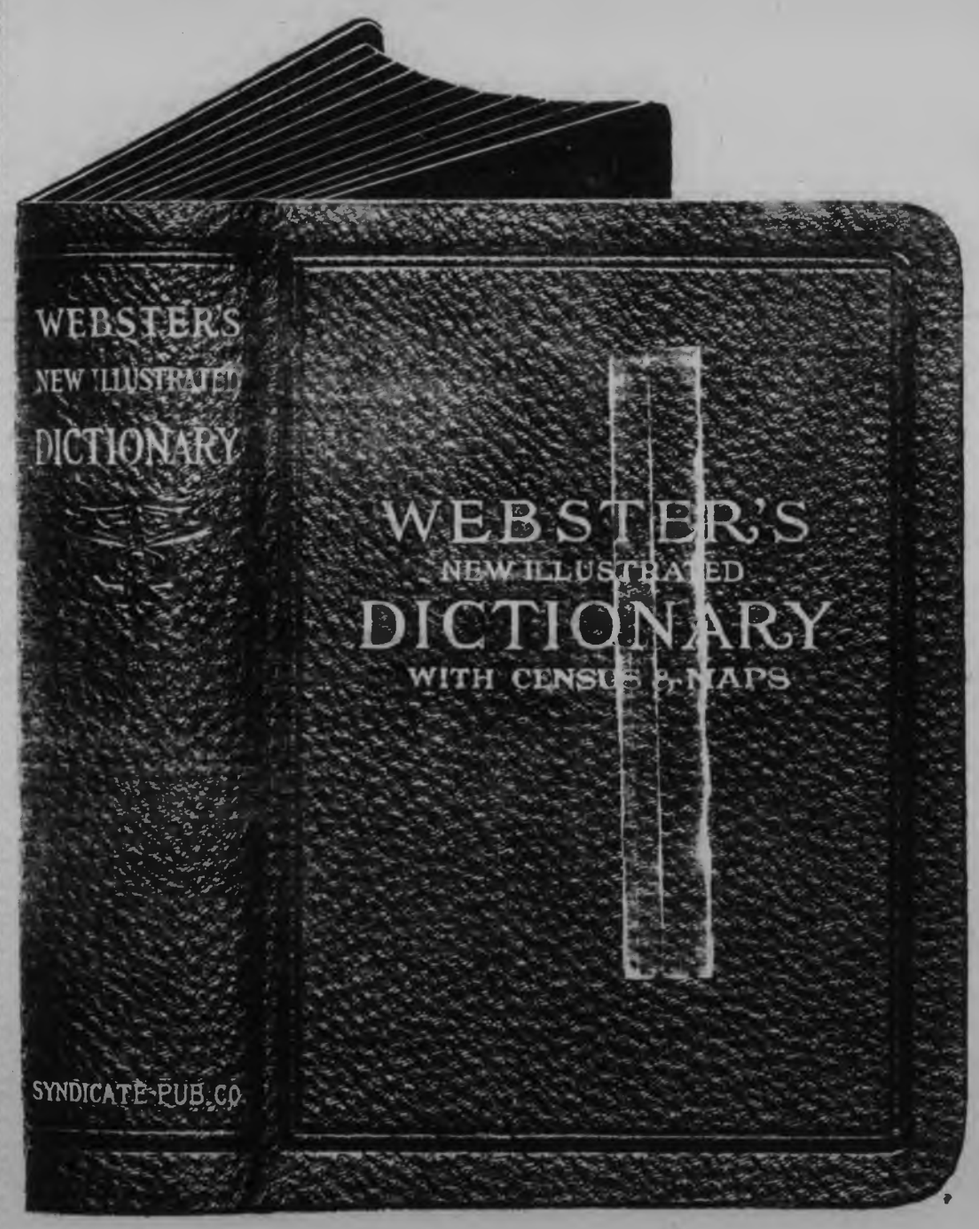
"And so," I said to Miss Clement, "you wish me to wait another day?"

"I think it would be worth while," [illegible]

"Anh I do too," I told her. "I don't suppose you've seen an afternoon paper, have you?" I went on. "Well, they contain some news of interest. They say that Mr. Cameron came home last night, and for once, at least, they tell what is very nearly the truth."



If sincerity ever carried over a wire it carried then in Miss Clement's congratulations, and there was something almost divine in her forbearance to ask for particulars. She congratulated Evelyn, too, and promised to come to see her, soon; and then once more she assured me that she would yet learn everything we could possibly care to know.



"The Chinese," she added, "are a deliberate race, Mr. Clyde. They refuse to be hurried. But eventually we shall have our answers."

With Evelyn beside me the hours no longer dragged. We talked unceasingly; reviewing everything from the receipt of the first letter; conjecturing on each of the score of little problems making up the one great mystery, but arriving at nothing definite; adding, if changing conditions at all, to our own confusion.

Quit Sniffling, Stop Sneezing, Cure Your Cold Now!

Thousands of Cases Prove the Quickest Cure is Catarrhozone.

When germs attack the lining of the nose, make you sneeze and gag—when later on they infest the bronchial tubes—how can you follow them with a cough syrup?

You can't do it—that's all. Cough syrups go to the stomach—that's why they fail.

But Catarrhozone goes everywhere—gets right after the germs — kills them—heals the soreness—cures the inflammation—makes Catarrh disappear.

"Nothing I have ever used gives the warm, soothing sensation of Catarrhozone," writes Isabel Fry, of Seguin Falls, Ont. "I was in a frightful way with catarrh of the nose and throat—had droppings, hard breathing, bad breath and indigestion. Catarrhozone relieved at once and cured me thoroughly. It is invaluable in colds, sore throat and bronchial trouble." Not difficult for Catarrhozone to cure, because it contains the essences of pine balsams and other antiseptics that simply mean death to catarrh. Large size costs $1.00, and contains two months treatment; smaller size, 25c. and 50c. all druggists and storekeepers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Supt. McClellan on Water Conditions

Mr. McClellan, the skilled superintendent of the Trent Canal says that all the dams between Bobcaygeon and Hastings were free of stop logs, and there is no danger. Mr. McClellan, than whom no one is better able to make a statement on such matters, owing to his extended experience, is of the opinion that the high water mark has been reached. The water is getting away faster than was the case last year and will recede more quickly. The height of the water to-day at Buckhorn dam is 9 feet 1 inches.

A Wise Local Cat.

The Strand Magazine has had a number of articles regarding intelligence displayed by certain animals. The homely cat, felis domesticus (to give a Strand flavor to this story) is rarely credited with more intelligence than the law allows. However, a family living on Stewart street, has a cat, of the Thomas "sect," that has ingenuity. A few weeks ago, this Thomas, in a midnight gladiatorial argument with a neighbor's cat of the same sex over the coveted affections of a Maltese tabby, had its front foot badly bitten. Thomas limped in next day on three legs and was made much of by the children of the house, who supplied the wounded warrior freely with milk. In due time the foot healed. Now, whenever Thomas wants food he limps on three legs, licking the presumably wounded paw. As soon as milk is provided, Thomas discovers that his foot is all right again.

Milkman Lost By Water.

Whether it was Nemesis or fate is not known. Still a Lindsay milk dealer, whilst driving across a creek on Wellington street, sustained a heavy loss by water, the element too often thought to add to a milkman's profit. Mr. Hallet, the milkman, whilst crossing the creek, had one of his horses slip on the slimy creek bed and fall. The milk waggon upset, dumping cans and bottles, and, incidentally, Mr. Hallet into the icy water. The waggon was smashed to pieces by the current. Mr. Hallett's account book was also washed away. The horses were saved. Loss $150.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

DEBATE CLOSED ON A DAY'S NOTICE TWENTY MINUTES LIMIT FOR SPEECH

Premier Introduces Resolution on Sir Wilfred Laurier's Refusal to Name a Date---Much Milder Than English System---Full Opportunity Given to Discuss All Important Mesures and Supplies

Ottawa, April 8.--The issue isjoined at last. Closure is before the House. The formal notice has been given and the debate upon it will begin in a very few days, possibly to-day.

The notice followed a formal request from Mr. Borden that the Opposition agree to the setting of a date for the completion of the debate on the Naval Bill. The exhange of speeches is interesting and the two statements arre herein set out at length. But the details of closure rank first.

On so important a matter the exact words become of interest. So, although the phrasing is severely technical, the new resolution may be given. Rule 17, as it now stands, is that when there is a conflict between members who rise simultaneously and desire to speak a motion may be made that one of them "be now heard." The resolution is as follows:

The Resolution of Closure.

Resolved, that Rule 17 of this House be amended by adding thereto the following.

(2) Every motion heretofore debatable made upon routine proceedings, except adjournment motions and every motion standing on the order of the proceedings for the day, or for the concurrence in a report of a standing or a special committee, or for the previous question, or for the third reading of bill or for the adjournment of the House, when made for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance, or for the adoption in committee of the whole, or of supply, or of ways and means, or the resolution, clause, section, preamble or title under consideration shall be debatable, but all other motions shall be decided without debate or amendment.

No Speaking After Two A.M.

(3) Immediately before the order of the day for resuming an adjourned debate is called, or if the House be in committee of the whole, or of supply, or of ways and means, any Minister of the Crown, who standing in his place, shall have given notice at a previous sitting of his intention so to do may move that the debate shall not be further adjourned, or that the further consideration of any resolution or resolutions, clause or clauses, section or sections, preamble or preambles, title or titles shall be the first business of the Committee, and shall not further be postponed, and in either case such question shall be decided without debate or amendment, and if the same shall be resolved in the affirmative, no member shall thereafter speak more than once, or longer than twenty minutes in any such adjournment debate, or (if in committee) on any such resolution, clause, section, preamble or title, and if such adjourned debate or postponed consideration shall not have been resumed or concluded before two of the clock in the morning, no member shall rise to speak after that hour, but all such questions as must be decided in order to conclude such adjourned debate or postponed consideration shall be decided forthwith.

(4) On Thursdays and Fridays, when the order of the day is called for the House to go into committee of supply, or of ways and means, Mr. Speaker shall leave the chair without putting any question, provided that, except by the consent of the House, the estimates of each department shall first be taken up on a day other than Thursday or Friday.

A BAD SCRAP AT LINDSAY DEPOT

Lindsay Warder: The G.T.R. station was the scene of a rough and tumble fight on Saturday evening about 6 o'clock, which resulted in the arrest of one of the bellicose inclined individuals by Chief Chilton. It would appear that an antagonism prevails among certain settlers from the north country and on their arrival in Lindsay prepare to air their warlike feelings upon reaching the G.T.R. station on the return trip.

Peace reigned supreme until the leaving of the Toronto train and the coach for Kinmount was being pulled out, then the trouble started and oaths and profanity rent the air.

It is not known how many were into the fracas, but the chief offender was arrested. He was in an intoxicated state and received several cuts on the right cheek and neck during the few rounds in the mix up.

After being placed in the lock-up he grew fierce and smashed several panes of glass and other fixtures in the cell.

He was arraigned before P. M. Jackson at yesterday morning's court and as he was never charged with an offence before he was leniently dealt with.

CATHOLICS SEIZE PARK

Big Row Over Land At Healey's Falls

(Specialto The Times.)

Healey's Falls, April 9.—A considerable feeling has been aroused over the action of the Roman Catholic Church at this place, in taking possession of a plot of ground adjoining the Trent River, belonging to the Government. This plot has been used as a park by residents and picnic parties from both banks of the river for many years. This park is one of nature's beauty spots and is ideal in its location and surroundings.

It appears that the Church took possession of this property, it is said without authority and have erected a small church thereon. It is further said that an effort was made to secure a lease from the government by the priest. When this became known, a strong feeling against the proposition was aroused among the Protestants, not only of this locality, but among those who had been wont to hold their picnics there. Strong representatives, it would seem, have been made to the Minister of Railways and Canals against the proposition, and, it is understood the matter is now being considered by the Department. The Protestants here have firmly decided not to allow admittance of this end of the wedge for a lease of the property would mean its permanent acquisition.

WOMEN ATTACK HISTORIC CASTLE HAD POOR LUCK WITH EXPLOSIVES

Ancient Ruins of Dudley Castle Scene of Latest Outrage--"Votes for Women and Damn the Consequences" Painted on Old Cannon Displaced by Blast

Dudley, England, April 8. Militant suffragettes in the course of last night attempted to blow up the ruins of the ancient and historic Dudley Castle, the keep of which dates back to the eighth century, when the original stronghold was built by a Saxon Prince.

The whole of the inhabitants of the town were awakened by a loud explosion at midnight coming from the direction of the castle A large force of local police was despatched there and on searching the surrounding grounds found some chemicals and blasting powder, some of which had failed to explode.

Two old siege guns weighing a ton each were thrown out of their positions in the embrasures of the castle by the explosion.

Many of the windows of a group of adjacent cottages were broken, but none of the inmates were injured.

NO CLUE TO PERPETRATORS.

"Votes for Women and Damn the Consequences" was printed on one of the old cannon, and "In Honor of Mrs. Pankhurst" on another, while a quantity of suffragette literature was scattered about. The police found no clue to the perpetrators.

One account of the explosion says that the militant suffragettes loaded and fired one of the big guns, which was a relic of the Crimean War. It was a Russian cannon, captured at the siege of Sebastopol and, with otherns, had been placed in the castle as a meniento.

RESUME ATTACK ON MAIL BOX

London, April 8.—Another campaign of destruction was started against the mail boxes to-day. In widely separated districts many of the pillar boxes were rendered useless and much mail was destroyed by the insertion of corrosive fluids, ink and burning rags saturated with oils.

Manuel Going Back To Throne?

Lisbon, Portugal, April 8.—Former King Manuel of Portugal declares: "I foresee that I shall soon return to the throne of Portugal," in an interview published to-day in the Monarchist newspaper Correio, which does not disclose his whereabouts.

Manuel outlines a programme of social and economic reforms which he intends to introduce when he returns. He describes the condition of Portugal as deplorable, affirming that actual depotism has replaced parliamentary self-government and is controlling the courts of justice while neglecting the country's agriculture, commerce and industry and augmenting the taxes to such an extent as to force 120,000 Portugese to emigrate during 1912.

The interview is regarded by many people as one of the many indications that the Monarchist party in Portugal is relentless in its activity.

TRADE REACHED BILLION MARK CANADA'S WONDERFUL PROSPERITY

Surplus to be Nearly Twenty Millions -- Greatest Ever

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, April 8.—The financial year which closed on March 3 was the most prosperous in the history of Canada and thanks to buoyant revenues and careful financing on the part of Hon. W. T. White, the position of the Dominion was never so sound as at the present moment.

Canada's securities now stand higher in the British market than those of any other overseas Dominion.

Billion in Trade.

For the first time in Canadian history the foreign trade passed the billion dollar mark, an increase for the year of some one hundred and fifty million dollars. The revenue for the year reached $70,000,000 or an increase of $35,000,000. The expenditure was about $154,000,000 so that the Finance Minister when he brings down his annual budget will be able to announce a surplus of from fifteen to twenty million dollars.

No New Loans.

Through careful financing for the first time for years Canada has not had to raise a solitary loan during the past fiscal year. Last fall a loan of $6,000,000 which had matured was paid off in cash. Out of the surplus Mr. White has purchased from ten to twelve million dollars worth of Grand Trunk Pacific bonds saving the country from part of the enormous loss involved in the famous "implement" joker placed by the Laurier government in the Grand Trunk Pacific contract. The last loan obtained by Mr. White was in February of 1912, to meet a loan falling due in May of $25,000,000. Through negotiating a loan before the spring labor disturbances it was secured at the high figure of 98¾.

Liberal Tribute.

The Liberal "Witness" of Montreal says of the prosperity of the Dominion:—

"Commercial prosperity seems to follow Mr. Borden's stately lead as faithfully as it did the white plume of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. As our trade increased by leaps and bounds during Sir Wilfrid's long term, so it is continuing to increase, and Canada never had such a year as the last. A revenue increased by thirty-five millions has left a treasury running over against the Government's many undertakings for expenditure. If investors abroad needed assurance of Canada's prosperity, these figures would seem to supply it."

SPEECH DRAWS A REPLY

Manchester Guardian and the London Times Defend Sir Ed. Grey In His Choice of Two Evils

London, April 8.—Without mentioning Sir Wilfrid Laurier's name, The Times and The Manchester Guardian, representing both political parties, dispose conclusively of his remarkable reference to Montenegro. In yesterday's debate at Ottawa Laurier is reported as denouncing the coercion of Montenegro. The Guardian shows Grey's choice was between an isolated action by Austria, which certainly would have ended in crushing Montenegro, and an international action by which alone Slav freedom can be secured with an Austro-Russ war. The Guardian, which always passionately advocates the freedom of the small nationalities, says Grey rightly chose the second alternative.

The Times finally disposes of Laurier's reported argument when it says. "Sir Edward Grey assigns two grounds for the powers in agreement. They must appeal to all reasonable Englishmen, but ought to appeal in particular force to that school of Liberal politicians which prides itself on devotion to the principle of nationalism and pacificism."

THE WEATHER.

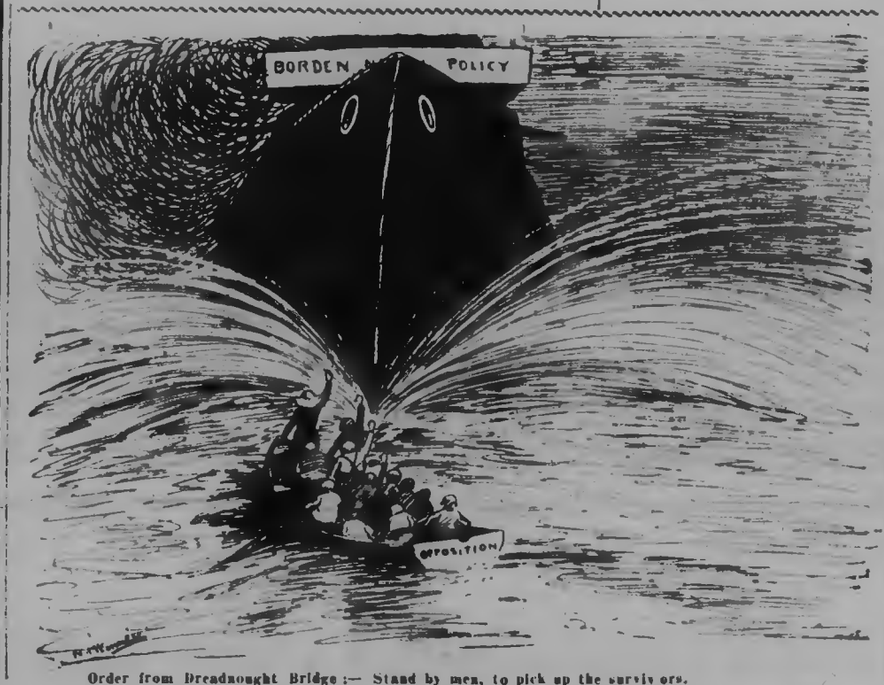
To-day: Increasing easterly winds and becoming unsettled.

VALIDITY OF BAR TAX MAY BE TESTED BY HOTEL MEN

Convention of Hotel Keepers to Discuss Advisability of Asking Courts to Interfere

Toronto, April 8.—The five per cent. tax imposed by the Provincial Government on the bar receipts of the hotels of Ontario will be one of the burning questions to be discussed at a convention of the hotel men of the Province, which opens on Thursday at St. George's Hall.

The operation of the tax, the method of its collection and other aspects of the matter will be taken up, and if the delegates assembled are agreed the outcome of the convention will be the launching of an effort through the courts to test the validity of the imposition of the tax.



To Train Hotel Help.

Another matter that will be taken up by the convention will be establishment of a school for the training of hotel help. The matter was broached at the recent meetings in Ottawa of the hotel men of the Dominion. The proposal that will be considered in Toronto will be the establishment of a school similar to those that have already been successfully inaugurated in some European countries, where all classes of hotel help from clerks to bell boys, from chefs to chambermaids are to be educated.

LIBERALS AT OTTAWA WILL BEGIN A NEW BLOCKADE

Continuous Sitting Expected to Begin as Opposition Will Fight Closure

Ottawa, April 8. Consideration of the proposed closure rules will not be taken up in the House before Wednesday, it is expected, as two days' notice is required. Judging from the comments of the members on both sides, matters are shaping for some lively sittings of the House. Conservatives say that while they regret the necessity of introducing closure, the Liberals have brought it upon themselves and the rules must be amended unless the opposition will agree to pass the naval bill within a short time. The Liberals on the other hand aver that the proposed closure is most drastic and that they will fight it to the end. It would not be surprising if continuous sittings are started again about Wednesday. The Ministerial idea is that it will take about two weeks to amend the rules as proposed, while the Liberals declare that they will move many amendments, and that the resolution will be still under discussion two months hence. On the whole, the situation is one of the most remarkable that has ever existed at the capital and dramatic developments are looked for.

Every Child Has a Right. to be informed about any article of food or drink likely to affect his future welfare and comfort.

There's a lesson about tea and coffee which is apt to come late in life when unsteady heart, disordered digestion and upset nerves drive home facts which should have been known years before.

Tea and coffee contain caffeine, a habit-forming drug, that doctors and hygienists know to be harmful to both young and old.

INSTANT POSTUM
in place of tea or coffee

provides a delicious drink of rich, distinctive flavour. It is made of wheat and the juice of Southern sugar-cane—absolutely free from the drug, caffeine, in tea and coffee.

A spoonful of Instant Postum with hot water produces instantly a delightful beverage which children and grown-ups alike may drink with fullest benefit.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 306 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

EDITORIAL NOTES

And is it any wonder the Duke went home?

Has the Borden naval policy made you poor, or has it increased your self respect as a true Canadian?

The Grecks may be illustrious in their own land, but they shine more in Canada. Price 5 cents per shine.

The behaviour of the Opposition in the House of Commons these days, is a striking proof of the old adage: "talk is cheap!"

In this windy month of April the dignified and stout citizen is forced to engage in the exhilarating sport of running a race with his hat.

Canada may be "daughter in her mother's house, and mistress in her own," but does any self-respecting daughter want to sponge on her mother?

Vancouver World. No woman can be very friendly with any other woman whom her husband was ever engaged to. Possibly the wife fears lest the former flame should ask questions and gloat over what she missed.

The latest thing is moving pictures for Sunday schools. The children will be sure to turn out in large numbers and with great enthusiasm when there is to be a view of Pharoah's daughter finding Moses in the bullrushes, or Jonah being swallowed by a whale.

The ladies of a Methodist church not a hundred miles from Peterborough, have compiled a cook book, which contains the following recipe: "Mix and moisten with milk one pint of finely chopped cooked ham and two pints of fine bread crumbs. With this mixture fill evenly cases formed from shredded wheat biscuits and then lay a fresh egg on each." The recipe is simple and easy to follow up to the point of laying a fresh egg on each of the biscuits, and that we do not believe is possible for anyone but a hen to do.

OBSTRUCTION AND REACTION.

The champions of Obstruction are ranged on the side of Reaction and Mednaevalism against the forces that make for peace, prosperity and progress. Doubtless they will deny this. Perhaps they don't even realize that it is so, but if they don't it is because their outlook is narrow and because they cannot see beyond the parochial limits of local party politics. Great Britain whatever faults has always been the Hampden of the nations. Her genius is commercial rather than military, but she has always combined with her commercialism the power to protect her commerce. It is because Britain has put the prosperity of her people first and has recognized that her navy and military are but a means to that end that the flag of Britain never fails to evoke the enthusiasm of her sons.

The two contending forces in Europe to-day are Modernism standing for free political institutions and Government by the people, and Mednaevalism standing for rule by a military aristocracy. Britain and her allies represent Modernism; Germany or rather the German Emperor and ruling classes represent Mediaevalism.

The Asquith Government which represents the extreme anti-war party in England, at first refused to recognize the gravity of the German menace, but far the last two years they have been fully alive to it, and are making every preparation to meet it. We could have no better proof if proof were wanted of the necessity of every part of the Empire standing together ready to render mutual help at this crisis than the fact that the Liberal Government in England which inherits the traditions of Hampden and Pym, of Bright and Cobden, has sounded the old Cromwell cry of "To your tents, oh Israel," and has (not asked Canada to give immediate aid) but has accepted the aid apparently so freely offered, supposing that the offer was genuine. Who that remembers Sir Wilfrid's grandiloquent words when tending that aid can wonder that Britain should suppose the offer genuine. In the face of these facts how can Laurier with any decency justify the actions of the obstructionists at Ottawa. True the actual obstruction has been largely left to the baser elements in the party but Sir Wilfrid has never repudiated it and Sir Wilfrid's press has sent up a shrill and somewhat hysterical chorus of actual approval. And so we have the uninspiring spectacle of politicians of the Pugsley stamp endeavoring to withdraw from the offer to which their party is committed at a time when the Liberal Government in England is straining every nerve to combat the forces of reaction and preserve the peace of the world. We have also the extraordinary spectacle of a Liberal Opposition trying to prevent the majority in the House of Commons passing a measure which has been passed upon by the people, for suppress as they will they knew that Borden had made his pronouncement of the naval policy before the election of 1911. It is time that Sir Wilfrid spoke out. Nero fiddled while Rome burned. We trust Laurier will not follow his example.

Since writing the above we find that Laurier has apparently sanctioned the Obstructionist, so that apparently the baser element in the party has prevailed.

A HAPPY, LAUGHING CHILD IN A FEW HOURS

If Cross, Irritable, feverish, tongue coated and sick, give delicious "Syrup of Figs."

Your child isn't naturally cross, irritable and peevish, Mother! Examine the tongue; if coated, it means the little ones' stomach is disordered, liver inactive and its thirty feet of bowels clogged with foul, decaying waste.

Every mother realizes after giving delicious "Syrup of Figs" that this is the ideal laxative and physic for children. Nothing else regulates the little one's tender stomach, liver and bowels so effectually, besides they dearly love its delightful fig taste.

For constipated bowels, sluggish liver, biliousness, or sour, disordered stomach, feverishness, diarrhoea, sore throat, bad breath or to break a cold, give one-half to a teaspoonful of "Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, sour bile, undigested food and constipated matter will gently move on and out of the system without griping or nausea, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

No More Asthma
A Cure Discovered That Really Does Cure

Thousands Testify to the Lasting Benefit Derived by This Marvelous Preparation.

The country is simply wild over the wonderful cures of chronic asthma that are being made every day by Catarrhozone. It is a scientific surprise, a perfect marvel the way it brings old chronics back to health. You will say so yourself after you have used it once, say so after the very first time. Ever since people first began to have asthma, Catarrhozone is certainly the best remedy discovered.

Creighton E. Thompson, well known in Calgary, writes:—"Nothing too strong can be said for Catarrhozone. I suffered four years from asthma in a way that would beggar description. I went through everything that man could suffer. I was told of Catarrhozone by a clerk in Findlay's drug store and purchased a dollar package. It was worth hundreds to me in a week, and I place a priceless value on the benefit I have since derived. I strongly urge every sufferer to use Catarrhozone for Asthma, Bronchitis and Catarrh.

The one-dollar package lasts two months; small size, 50c.; sample size 25c.; all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Profits in Forestry.

The Vanderbilt experiment in forestry near Asheville, N. C., seems to be turning out very well. By a sale made of large timber on 68,000 acres of mountain forest land at $12 an acre, or $816,000, to Louis Carr and W. F. Decker, George Vanderbilt will receive a profit of $680,000 on an investment of $136,000 made twenty years ago when he bought this land at $2 an acre. In addition to this he retains the land itself and all timber under fourteen inches in diameter. The purchasers have twenty years in which to remove the 250,000,000 feet of lumber estimated to be on the tract. Mr. Vanderbilt retains about 15,000 acres immediately surrounding Biltmore house.

English Soccer Notes

England created a record in the season of 1908-09 by winning the International Championships without having a goal scored against them.

The figure 22 has loomed up prominently in league records. Look at the following:

Preston North End, in the first season of the league, went through the competition without sustaining a single defeat in 22 matches.

Sheffield United did likewise in 1899-1900, when the league had been extended to 18 clubs, meeting with their first defeat at Bury.

Bolton played 22 league games before they scored their first win at Trent Bridge.

On the same ground in 1906-7 Notts County gained their first victory at home, Manchester United, in their 22nd match.

J. E. Doig kept goal for Sunderland for 14 continuous seasons.

After the suspension of their players in 1906-7 by the Football Association, Manchester spent no less than $28,000 on the transfer of new players.

Commencing in 1867, Queen's Park did not lose a goal during the first seven years of their existence.

The following Blues have captained their respective Varsities in both soccer and cricket: A. H. Evans, C. J. Ottaway and C. B. Fry, all of Oxford, and G. J. Ford, of Cambridge.

The Stoke Club has its formation in 1863.

Nott's County celebrated their jubilee on May 31st, 1912, by a banquet.

The referee's whistle was first blown on the Nottingham Forest S.W ground in 1878.

Shineguards were first brought out in 1874 by W. S. Widdowson, the Nottingham Forest player and internationalist.

Millwall opened their new ground at the Den, New Cross, on October 22, 1910. Hanworth, of Brighton, scored the first goal.

The first match on Manchester United's new ground at Old Trafford was played on February 19, 1910.

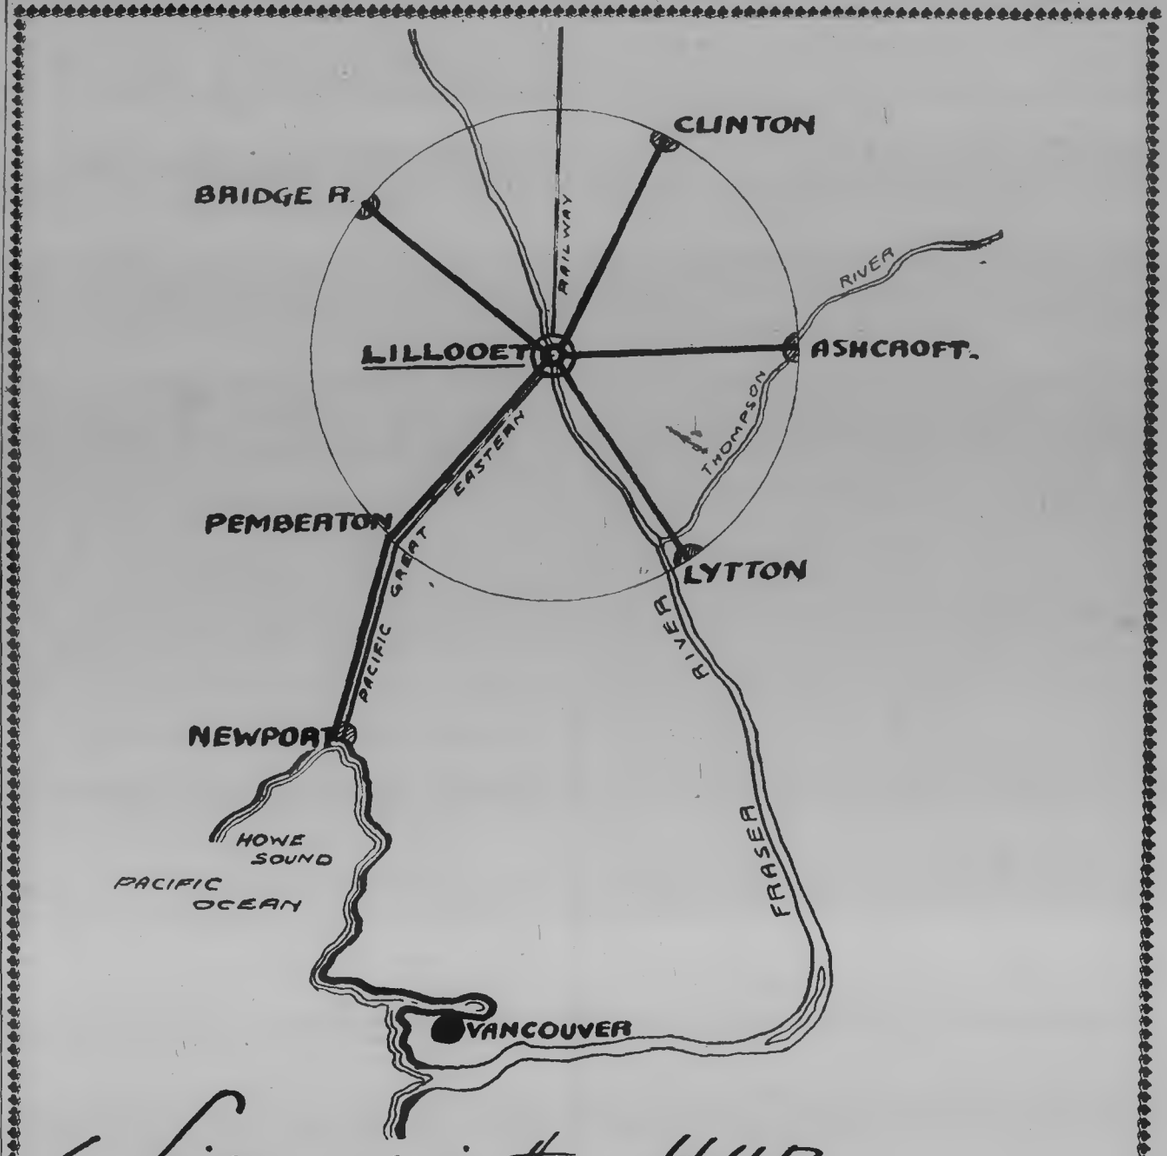
NOT TO BE WAITED ON

A Housewife Writes on the Subject of Hired Men

I think that the most of the hired men look to be waited on too much, writes an Ontario housewife. We have two hired men the year round. We have had some good ones, but sorry to say some very, very, oh, very bad ones! And if they were not afraid to turn themselves to help the housewife, I think it would be better for them. I have often laughed to see them go to the water pail for a drink and none in it. They would take the dipper and go to the pump and get their drink and come in with the empty dipper. Now, was it going to hurt them to take the pail and bring it in full? I believe to live and let live, but I do not believe in hiring a man and waiting on him when they are so mean, nor do I not believe in a woman bossing the hired man but I think it is her place, if he does anything wrong in the house to speak to him quietly about it, and he should not think she is trying to boss him because she has spoken to him.—Canadian Farm.

Walnut Creams

Rub half a pound of icing sugar through a sieve, slightly whip the white of an egg, add enough of it with vanilla essence to make a firm paste, knead it smooth, divide into two parts, coloring one pink or, if liked, into three, making the other green, and if preferred, each one may be differently flavored. Form into a thin roll, cut off half inch pieces, roll into little balls, and press firmly between two halves of walnuts. Smooth the edges and, if liked, brush the cream edge with white of egg and roll in colored sugar, desiccated cocoanut, or chopped pistacio nuts.



Position in Sleep

Be careful about forming bad sleeping habits. Don't allow yourself to become addicted to sleeping in one position or you will soon find that you can't feel comfortable in any other. And one sleeping position, long kept, is bound to have a bad effect on the health.

Sleep on one side and then the other. Switch to sleeping on your stomach occasionally. If sleeping on your back doesn't seem to induce nightmares, don't be afraid to sleep that way once in a while. Don't curl up with your hands on your knees. And don't sleep on a thick pillow.

Assisting Stock Raisers

Plans for the building up of a big live stock and dairying industry in Northern Ontario are now being perfected by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Any group of twelve settlers may form an association and each one will be given a choice of a high-grade bull, two boars or five rams. These animals will be purchased by the Ontario Government from well-known cattle, sheep and hog breeders in Older Ontario.

USE OF LEFT HAND

Belief Growing That Man Should be Ambidextrous

Why is it that we neglect to use the left hand so much?

Among English-speaking people 97 out of every 100 are right-handed when they reach reach maturity. Out of every 100 such persons 17 are born right-handed, three are born left-handed and the remaining 80 are born without preference as to either hand. Eighty are influenced to become strongly right-handed during early childhood.

No great asset in the world is so neglected as the average left hand. Formerly all the world was ambidextrous. Primitive man had no preference which hand he used. And in various parts of the world efforts are now being made to revive the use of the left hand.

Japan has for many years been teaching two-handedness to the men of its army and in its Public schools. The German Government is following Japan's example. Sir Robert Baden Powell, founder of the Boy Scouts, does not consider a man a well-trained soldier unless he can mount equally well on either side of his horse, use the sword, revolver and lance equally well with both hands.

SENATOR DIXON

HON. GEO. H. PERLEY

Some Life History of a Man Who Has Prospered in Canada

Hon. George H. Perley Minister without portfolio in the Dominion Cabinet is a lumberman of the Ottawa Valley; he is actively concerned in several firms, and in particular is heavily interested in pulpwood transactions. Also he is a millionaire.

He is a slight man of middle height, with a pale, rather thin face, with a rather closely trimmed beard, remarkably black, and abundant hair, also remarkably black, a scrutinising dark eye and a certain air of physical delicacy.

Mr. Perley was born in the United States. He belongs to a New Hampshire family, the stock being originally Welsh. Prior to 1857, W. G. Perley, the Cabinet Minister's father, lived in New Lebanon, New Hampshire; in that year he came to Ottawa, prospered exceedingly, became naturalized, and from 1887 till his death in 1890 was M. P. for the capital city.

When the elder Perley made the change of residence he delayed moving his family, and the future Cabinet Minister was born at New Lebanon while his father was a resident of Ottawa. The American connection was kept up for some years, and the younger Perley, after attending the Ottawa Grammar School, was sent to St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire. He went to Harvard and graduated there, taking his A. B. in 1878.

In 1900 he went into politics. He contested Russell and was beaten. In 1902, there was a bye-election in the country of Argenteuil in Quebec across the Ottawa River from Russell. Mr. Perley had interests in the county and he contested it, only to be beaten again. He settled down to nurse the constituency, and in the general election of 1904 he won. In 1910 he was made Chief Whip of the Conservative party and when the Conservatives came into power in 1911, Mr. Perley was taken into the Cabinet.

Unique Thefts of Silver

Two high graders arrested at Cobalt charged with stealing bullion had a remarkable method for obtaining the precious metal. One of the men worked in the refinery in charge of a furnace where bullion was melted. He would dip a cold steel bar into the molten metal and a certain amount of silver would congeal around the bar. This would then be drawn out, several pounds at a time being obtained this way, and the process would be repeated.

SAW WEST DEVELOP

One of First White Women Born in Manitoba Witnessed Stormy Scenes

Mrs Mary Ann Clelland, who was one of the first white women born in Manitoba and who died at Treherne, Man., at the age of 76, had in common with all the old timers of the West many varied and stirring experiences during her life time.

She was the daughter of Duncan McRae, the builder of the forts at Upper Fort Garry and Lower Fort Garry for the Hudson's Bay company. Her father also built the old Scotch Presbyterian church and St. John's cathedral, Winnipeg.

Mrs. Clelland was twice married and was the mother of 14 children, nine of whom are still living. Her first marriage took place in 1852, when she became the wife of Alexander McDonald.

Mrs. Clelland remembered the events of the Metis uprising known as the first Northwest rebellion. She also witnessed the flood which, caused by the overflowing of the Red river, submerged the whole of the territory on which the city of Winnipeg now stands. She sat on the banks of the river and watched houses and barns being carried away by the flood.

When over sixty years of age Mrs Clelland walked from Selkirk to Winnipeg to the bedside of her son who had met with an accident. The weather was so bad that horses could not make the trip.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Robert Cameron, capitalist, consults Philip Clyde, newspaper publisher, regarding anonymous threatening letters he has received. The first promises a sample of the writer's power on a certain day. On that day the head is mysteriously cut from a portrait of Cameron while the latter is in the room.

CHAPTER II.—Clyde has a theory that the portrait was mutilated while the room was unoccupied and the head later removed by means of a string, unnoticed by Cameron.

CHAPTER III.—Evelyn Grayson, Cameron's niece, with whom Clyde is in love, finds the head of Cameron's portrait nailed to a door where it has been used as a target. Clyde pledges Evelyn to secrecy.

CHAPTER IV.—Clyde learns that a Chinese boy employed by Philetus Murphy, an artist living nearby, had borrowed a rifle from Cameron's lodgekeeper.

CHAPTER V.—Clyde makes an excuse to call on Murphy and is spulsed. He pretends to be investigating alleged infractions of the game laws and speaks of finding the head of an opium dope under the tree where Cameron's portrait was found. The Chinese boy is found dead next morning.

CHAPTER VI.—While visiting Cameron in his dressing room a Nell Gwynne mirror is mysteriously shattered.

CHAPTER VII.—Cameron becomes seriously ill as a result of the shock. The third letter arrives mysteriously on Cameron's sick bed. It makes direct threats against the life of Cameron. Clyde tells Cameron the envelope was empty. He tells Evelyn everything and plans to take Cameron on a yacht trip.

CHAPTER VIII.—The yacht picks up a fisherman found drifting helplessly in a boat. He gives the name of Johnson. Cameron disappears from yacht while Clyde's back is turned.

CHAPTER IX.—A fruitless search is made for a trace of the boat seen by the captain just before Cameron disappeared.

CHAPTER X.—Johnson is allowed to go after being severely questioned. Evelyn takes the bullets to an expert in Chinese literature who pronounces them of Chinese origin.

CHAPTER XI.—Clyde seeks assistance from a Chinese fellow college student who recommends him to Yup Sing, most prominent Chinese in New York. The latter promises to seek information of Cameron among his countrymen.

CHAPTER XII.—Among Cameron's letters is found one from one Addison, who speaks of seeing Cameron in Pekin. Cameron had flatly declared to Clyde that he had never been in China.

CHAPTER XIII.—Clyde calls on Dr. Addison. He learns that Addison and Cameron were at one time intimate friends, but had a falling out over Cameron's denial of having been seen in Pekin by Addison.

CHAPTER XIV.—Clyde goes to meet Yup Sing. Sees Johnson, attempts to follow him, falls into a basement, sprains his ankle and becomes unconscious.

CHAPTER XV.—Clyde is found by Miss Clement, a missionary among the Chinese. He is sick several days as a result of inhaling charcoal fumes. Evelyn tells Clyde of peculiarly acting anesthetic with the result a person temporarily unconscious. Murphy is discovered to have important relations with the Chinese.

And if, in passing, at intervals, where opportunity offered, I spoke tender words and pleaded for a definite, or at least a closer, more intimate understanding between us, who shall say that I was to blame? She was never more lovely, never more appealing than she was that morning; and I begged for an admission of a sentiment above and beyond the mere sisterly regard to which hitherto she had persisted in limiting her expressed affection for me.

More than once I had read in her eyes—without unseemly conceit, I trust I may be permitted this assertion—what I now asked in lip avowal. But there seemed to be with her a notion that the occasion was ill-suited to my plea.

"Philip," she said, "dear Philip, I care for you very much; almost as much as I care for Uncle Robert. You have been very good to me, and very good to him, and if I could tell you that I love you in the way you ask, I—" And there she hesitated a shade of a second. "Even if I could tell you," she corrected, "I wouldn't tell you now. It is not stubbornness, Philip. It is just a woman's way. Ask me again, when Uncle Robert is well, and all this horrible nightmare has passed. Promise me that you will ask me again!"

"Never fear," I returned. "I'll ask you."

"And promise me, too," she added, "that until all the skies are clear once more, you will not mention the subject."

I was on the verge of promising; not because it would be an easy promise to keep for I knew it would be very difficult, but because I could deny her nothing. I was on the verge, I say, when the library door opened, and Louis, pale and excited, and so in haste that he had not paused to knock, was exclaiming:

"Monsieur Cameron! Pardon' Mais, enfin, c'est vous prete?"

A score of fears springing instantly to birth within us, Evelyn and I were on our feet before the speech rapidly delivered as it was, was finished. Were we ready! We evidenced our readiness in no such voiceless thing as words.

Louis stood aside for us to pass, and as I went by him, I asked, under my breath:

"What is it, Louis?"

"Ah!" he whispered. "Monsieur Cameron is talking in the strange tongue which neither Monsier Bryan nor I myself can understand."

CHAPTER XIX.

The Pang of Disillusion.

The sick room was dark. So dar that for a little, until our eyes accustomed themselves to it, we could barly distinguish objects. But our en required no attuning. Even in the pas[illegible] any door[illegible] ing on with[illegible] and as we entered, a hoarse [illegible] in the gloom. Like an [illegible] from ambush

To us both the tone and words were alike unfamiliar. An inflection and modulation the voice was strange. And the uttered sounds were a coarse, horrid jargon. Once I thought I detected an English oath, but I was not sure.

Evelyn clutched my hand and I could feel against me the trembling of her slim young body. Gladly I would have spared her this ordeal, but I had been no less unprepared than she. And now, as gradually shapes defined themselves less dimly in the gloom, the horror grew; and, held by it, speechless, inert, I stood where I had paused, the quivering girl very close beside me—staring, listening, wondering.

It was a large room, lofty of ceiling, with high windows, across which heavy curtains were drawn; and the only light was that which stole between these hangings or filtered through three dark, richly-colored, glass medallions set in a side wall.

Cameron's bed, a massive, ornately carved four-poster, was hung with fringed and embroidered velvet, and in the dusk of the chamber it took on the somber likeness of a catafalque, adding to the eerie seeming a touch of the funereal. Incongruously from the shadowy midst of it came that ranted rigmarole of strange words, now high pitched, now bass, now guttural.

What had at first seemed a moving gray patch had developed by degrees into the white, night-robed, sitting figure of the invalid, swaying excitedly, with arms extended in ceaseless gestures. For a long moment this uncanny object had held my gaze, but presently near the bed's foot, I descried Bryan's white uniform and the sight brought a measure of relief. In response to a beckoning head-tilt, the nurse joined us.

"I thought you had better come," he whispered, quite calmly. "I thought possibly you might understand what he is saying."

"But I don't," I whispered back. "If it's a real language I never heard it. What do you imagine it is?"

"I have an idea it's Chinese," he answered. "It sounds like the stuff you hear at a Chinese theater, and I caught two or three words of pidgin-English, just before you—" He broke off suddenly, and plucked at my sleeve. "There!" he murmured. "Did you hear that? Mackee. That was plain enough. It means 'never mind.' A little while ago he was evidently trying to hurry some one. It was chop-chop about every other sentence."

Evelyn's eyes shone luminous in the gloom.

"Can't you give him something to quiet him?" she begged. "It's awful to let him go on like this. It's cruel. He seems to be in such distress."

"I can, of course," Bryan returned. "But I thought Mr. Clyde was anxious to have everything he said reported, and—"

"Oh, do give him something," she insisted.

Bryan left us to obey. I saw him stop at a table near the bed, and in the half light I caught the glint of a hypodermic syringe. But, as if scenting his purpose, Cameron's voice lulled abruptly. For a second or two he was quiet, and then, before any one of us, I think, suspected his purpose, he turned, suddenly, swiftly, and slipped from beneath the bed clothes to the floor where he stood erect, with arms upraised and tensed, shouting in shrill, strident key what seemed to be orders, directed not at one but at a horde.

The great bed separated him from both Bryan and myself, but we skirted it in haste, and came upon him before he had taken more than a single step. As we confronted him, his arms lowered and his clenched fists shot forward threateningly. But a far more startling happening at this juncture was his abandonment of his jargon, and his adoption of intelligible English.

"Below!" he yelled, fiercely. "Below, you yellow dogs! Below, I say! Every cur's son of you! Below!"

Despite this truculence he was not difficult to master. Together Bryan and I grappled him; in another moment we had him flat on his bed once more, and the nurse was pressing home the piston of that little shining instrument of glass and silver which I had so recently seen him take up from the medicine table.

For a moment the patient rolled about, restlessly muttering strange oaths, mingled with suppliant murmurs. And to me this was the most sadly trying part of the incident. I would gladly have retreated; but Evelyn begged me to wait.

"Just until he is quiet," she pleaded; "just until he falls asleep."

At length he lay quite still and we thought from his regular breathing he had succumbed to the narcotic, and so were about to go, when he started up with a little feeble cry, low-voiced, but clearly distinct.

"No, no, for God's sake, not that! I didn't kill them. I swear I didn't kill them. It was an accident. She stove on a rock. I—I—didn't, I say! I didn't—I—"

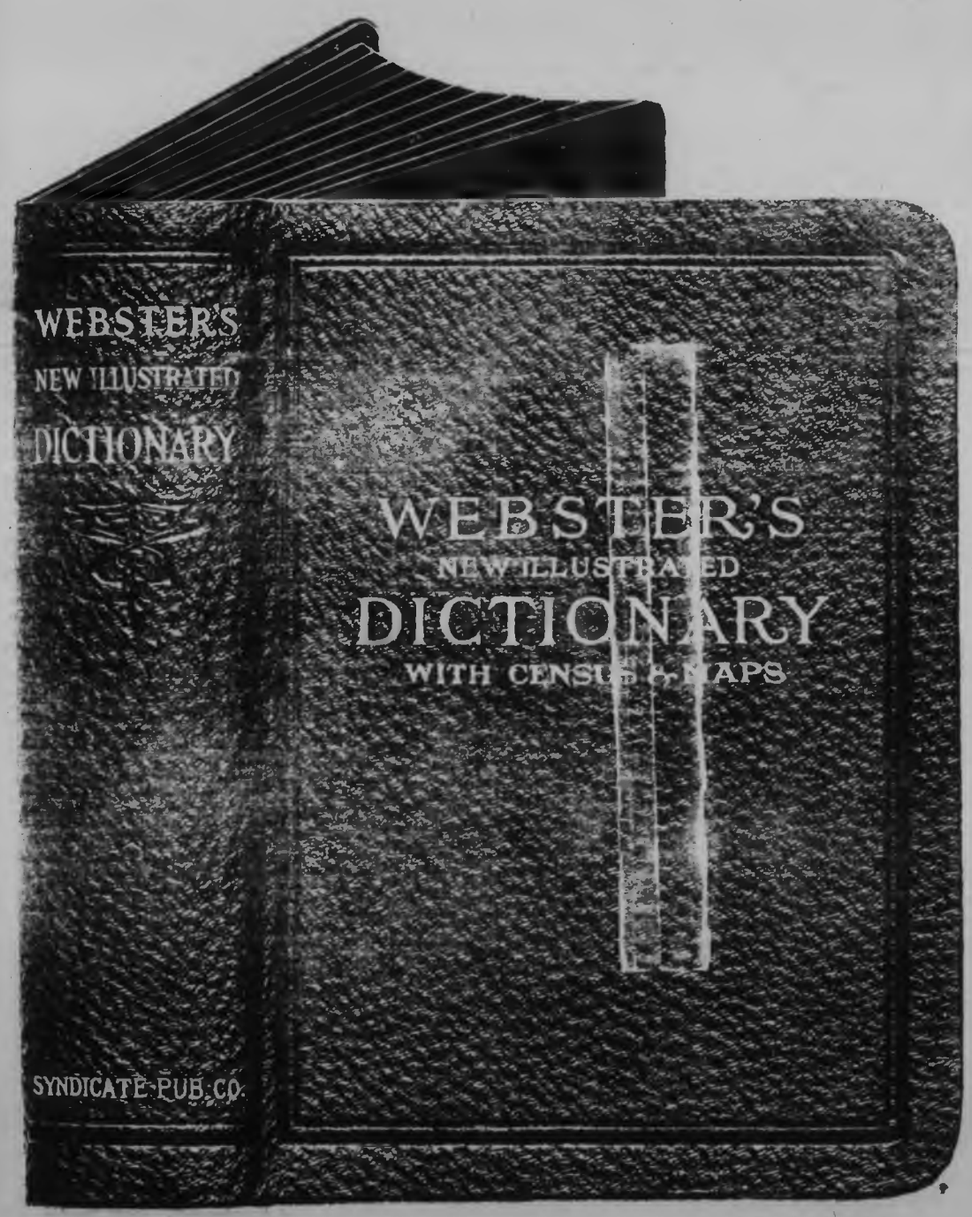
His voice trailed into silence. He dropped back, heavily, upon the pillows. He slept.

It is one thing to have your faith in a friend shaken. That is serious enough in all conscience. But your faith may tremble, and sway and rock, and still there is always the possibility of its being resteadied and made firm again by explanation—by extenuation even. It is quite another thing to have your faith toppled headlong, by the snatching away of the last vestige of support, the last sliver of underpinning. That is more than serious. It is calamitous; it is catastrophic; it is tragic.

Back in the library again, I set to pacing the floor. I think Evelyn resumed her seat in the big leathern chair. I am sure. For a time I was not conscious that she was in the room. That it was inconsiderate of me, I admit. It was, perhaps, unpardonable. And yet it was not wilful. Frankly, I had forgotten her, absolutely, in the stress of the emotional tempest raised by that revelation in the darkened bedchamber.

[illegible], I strode from bookcase to bookcase, over the soft, neutral-tinted Persian rugs; and all the while there echoed those repeated denials of Cameron's that he had ever been in China. "Never nearer than Yokohama," he had said. "Once I ate chop suey in a Chicago Chinese restaurant." "I have always been interested in China and the Chinese, but I know only what I have read." And the words of his quondam friend came back to me now, too, with redoubled emphasis: "He refused to admit what I knew to be the truth."

Nevertheless I had chosen to believe that Cameron, should he ever return to us, would be able to clarify this turbid stream of circumstance, and prove the fallibility of appearances.



The illusion to which I had clung, however, was now in shreds. Cameron, returning, with body enfeebled, and brain confused, had spoken in his unguarded delirium. The mask was dropped, the screen thrown down, and barefaced and stark he stood revealed, a woeful figure in the impartial glare of truth.

A Lindsay Collision

The spective drivers of a Lindsay grocery cart and a Lindsay butcher's cart tried to turn the corner of Glenelg and William streets at the same time on the same side, although going in opposite directions. It was a case of an overwhelming force meeting an insurmountable obstacle. The rigs were smashed.

Mr. Miller Up Against It.

Mr. Finch Miller, the genial local Immigration Agent, has a tough proposition to solve. Yesterday he received a letter from the East Ham (London) Distress Committee, asking him if he could place some 38 families, who would bring with them no less than 104 children. It would be a hard matter to place so many married families in this vicinity.

A Send-Off That Cost.

Joe Lacasseur, who is giving up his tobacco store and pool room on George street, was a victim of misplaced kindness on the night of April 5th. Some of Joe's friends gathered in the pool room to bid him farewell. They brought with them the liquid hilarity considered by them necessary to give a proper "tang" to the occasion. Some 27 empty and full lager bottles were found on the premises, as well as a whiskey flask. Joe was assessed $22.60 for his friends' too strenuous efforts to bid him hood-bye.

A Human Camel.

W. Howard, proprietor of the Ontario House at Port Hope, was charged with selling liquor on Sunday. The principle witness was a drunk named Chartran. When arrested, Sunday night Chartran said he got his booze at the Balmoral hotel, at Cobourg, and later on that he drank 50 cents worth of lager in the Ontario House. If the latter story is true, Chartran must be a near relative to a camel, but closer to a hog. The case was enlarged.

Belleville Man Ran Amuck.

Henry Bryan, of Belleville, who was on his way to Beaverton, and who, incidentally is a bright looking young man, after stagnating as a telegraph operator in the former town, struck the bright lights of George street on Monday night. The lure of city excitement was too strong for Henry, and he worshipped at the shine of Baccus. Henry got ore-eyed. Not only that, but Henry flourished a gun and threw several citizens into cat fits. Result, $20 for the gun and $2 for the jag, at yesterday's police court.

Hotel Changed Hands.

It was learned last night that the Munro House, one of Peterborough's leading hotels, had changed owners, Mr. R. J. Munro having disposed of an interest in the business to Mr. J. M. Brooks, of this city. Mr. Brooks has the reputation of being one of the best hotelmen in Canada, so that the continued success of this hotel is assured. It is understood that Mr. Munro will go West for a time, where he has some substantial investments. In his departure Peterborough loses an estimable citizen.

Noted Horseman Here.

Mr. John Hawthorne, of Simcoe, the well known importer of Percheron, Clydesdale and Belgran horses, was in the city yesterday, to see Mr. Harry Nesbitt, Peterborough's veteran horseman, to whom he recently sold a Percheron stallion. In conversation with a Times representative Mr. Hawthorne remarked that his town of Simcoe has the largest canning factory in the Dominion. He said that buildings are now being added to enable the company to make cans and labels for the combine and also to make tin-plate.

MAKES YOUR BACKACHE VANISH, DRIVES ALL RHEUMATIC PAINS AWAY

New Discovery Eases Stiff, Sore, Swollen Joints and Muscles, Relieving Backache and Bladder Disorders After Few Doses are Taken.

No matter how badly you suffer, how chronic your case may be, or what has failed to cure you, your pains will leave, your aches vanish and the tortuous, killing backache or rheumatism will bother you no more.

This is what Croxone, the new scientific discovery, does for sufferers of such troubles. It cures these diseases because it reaches the cause and removes it. It soaks right into the walls and linings of the kidneys and cleans out the stopped-up, inactive organs like water does a sponge—neutralizes, and dissolves every particle of uric acid and makes the kidneys sift from the blood all the waste matter and muscles to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism. It soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder and leaves the kidneys in a clean, strong, healthy condition so they can filter the blood and keep you well.

If you suffer with backache—have pains in the neck or sides—nervous or dizzy spells—a few doses of Croxone will relieve the congestion and you will be surprised how quickly all kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles will disappear.

Croxone is different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else on earth ever used for the purpose. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves your sufferings the very first time you use it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

IT'S EASY TO PEEL OFF ALL YOUR FRECKLES

(From the American Home)

The contrast between the freckles and the clear skin usually is so great that no bleach can be more than partially successful in obliterating the disfigurements. Ordinary mercolized wax is far better; it literally peels off the freckles. Get an ounce of it at the nearest drug store and tonight spread on enough to completely cover your face; remove in the morning with warm water. Repeat daily until every freckle has disappeared.

Rough, blotchy, pimpled skin, also common at this season, may be entirely gotten rid of by this same method, without discomfort or inconvenience. The effort is decidedly worth while, the new complexion obtained being so clear, smooth and youthful.

If bothered with wrinkles, after washing off the mercolized wax bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. This is the most effective and quickest-acting wrinkle treatment known.
